

COUNCIL HEARS GILSON PERMIT CHANGES READ

LEVERETT TO ANSWER PINE ECHOES

BAKER VENTS SPLEEN

President of Council Doesn't Like Bend Papers, And Says So, Too—No Praise Given Administration, He Tells Aldermen.

Providing three amendments to Mayor E. D. Gilson's waterworks franchise, already recorded in the county clerk's office, an ordinance introduced at Friday's meeting of the city council was heard without comment. The amendments, if passed, stipulate the use of Spring river water, a 20-year term of life for the franchise and beginning of construction within two years after the removal of all legal obstacles. The ordinance states that the mayor and his heirs, "shall not be held responsible for delays beyond their control."

The mayor yielded his gavel—a large key to the city jail—to G. H. Baker, president of the council, before the reading of the amending ordinance.

Pamphlet Policy Unpopular.

Councilman Fox spoke feelingly in defense of fellow members of the council, attacked, he said, in issues of the Deschutes Pine Echoes, a pamphlet published by employees of the Brooks-Scanlon Lumber Co. He hinted strongly that some action in reprisal would be taken, but was unwilling when questioned at the close of the council meeting to make a definite statement as to what form this might take.

"When the mills asked to be left out of the city limits," he said in his address to the council, "they made certain pledges. I will take no more of the council's time except to say that at an early meeting I will introduce certain resolutions."

Mr. Fox was asked after adjournment if his resolutions would contemplate extending the corporate limits of Bend to include the plant of the Brooks-Scanlon Lumber Co. Smilingly he declined to answer, stating merely that the news would come out in due time when the resolutions are introduced.

Papers Pevce Baker.

"It's a good thing to let 'em go; they'll probably break their own necks," heatedly declared Mr. Baker at the close of Mr. Fox's remarks in the council session. "No one ever gained anything by mud-slinging. The same might also apply to the newspapers. If the newspapers ever see fit to commend anything the present administration did, I would recommend that a special meeting be called to revoke such action, because the council certainly would have made a mistake."

Councilman Leverett stated he was well pleased with the notice he had received in the Pine Echoes. "I will answer them in two weeks," he said.

A. Whisanant, Bend newspaperman, rose to address the council, but was interrupted by Councilman Baker, informed in so many words that he was a fool, then told that he might proceed.

"I withdraw my request to address this council, now or at any other time," declared Mr. Whisanant after listening in silence to the tirade.

To Enforce Peddling Laws.

Mayor E. D. Gilson informed the council that John Steidl, pioneer realty man, is considering renewing his offer of from 12 to 15 acres of land bordering the Deschutes for park purposes. The land is located south of the main part of town and would cost the city nothing but a small sum annually for improvement. He suggested that numerous vacant lots about the city might be acquired for similar use. Camp ground betterment and the installation of a "Welcome" sign at the depot were other suggestions made by the mayor.

The peddling license ordinance is being ignored, N. H. Gilbert declared. He mentioned the matter of a license for hotel buses. Chief of Police Fox promised that immediate steps to collect fees would be taken. J. M. Janssen, farmer, who recently asked a reduction of the peddler's license fee, is planning to test the city law, Councilman Nordeen stated. A meat inspection ordinance was favored by Mr. Gilbert as the remedy for the whole situation.

Put it in The Bulletin.

RETAIL LUMBER SALES GAINING, EARLY BUILDING BOOM FORESEEN

The outstanding feature of the lumber industry is the increase in the volume of sales made by retail lumbermen, says the American Lumberman, of Chicago. Each week sees an increase in the number of homes being built. Big building operation continues slow in development, though there is a very evident tendency to start building of this character. For example, one Chicago firm of architects, specializing in bank architecture, has within the last week received orders to draw plans for three bank buildings of considerable size. As a matter of fact, the Lumberman says architects' offices are crowded with preparation of plans, not only for individual homes, but for bigger buildings. "The people are hungry for homes and indications point to an early boom in building for practically every section of the country," it is pointed out. "This boom, of course, is contingent upon reduction in the price of some materials which have as yet fallen little, if any and then the maintenance of reasonably stable prices."

"The volume of wholesale sales of lumber has shown some increase, but this branch of the trade is much more sluggish than is the retail end. That is, while retail lumbermen are experiencing a better demand, they continue to buy on a hand-to-mouth basis and are not placing orders for their annual requirements. Production remains at a very low level even for this season of the year and is materially exceeded by both orders and shipments. Prices at wholesale have shown little, if any, change during the week."

ASKS HOUSEHOLDERS TO SPRINKLE ROADS

Valuable Cooperation Possible In Residence Districts, Says Chairman of Streets Committee.

If Bend residents in the district outside that covered by proposed paving plans will take a little extra time to sprinkle the streets in front of their homes, valuable cooperation will be extended to the city administration in its work for better roads within the city limits, declares J. S. Innes, chairman of the streets committee of the council.

Street repairing which has been going on in the residence section this year has featured the use of gravel, found to be greatly superior to volcanic clinders, and this material has packed well during the wet season. Frequent sprinkling will prevent its being torn up during the summer months, Mr. Innes believes.
