HOW TO FAIL

A West Virginia farmer has given the rules for failure in a dairy. We reprint them here for the benefit of our readers. They are as follows:

"Don't weigh your milk, for then you might have to figure and think."

"Feed the cows timothy hay—it is good for race horses."

"Cow-testing associations are needless—they show how to save and know."

"Keep the barn hot—cows are like woodchucks."

"Don't have many windows in the barn—the hired man might look out."

"Keep the water ice-cold—shivering gives the cows exercise."

"Avoid heavy milkers—they consume too much valuable time."

The point is, of course, that if you want to succeed you must do the opposite.

A HIGHWAY MISUNDERSTANDING

The following appears in this week's issue of the Silver Lake Leader:

"According to published reports, a change of the survey of the Dalles-California highway is quite probable. A move is on foot which, it is said, originated at Bend, to bring the highway east of Bend, traveling the Burns road to a point north of the Evans ranch, thence south to Fort Rock, in place of following the road to La Pine and branching off at that place."

"So far as we have heard, this change is agreeable, provided it follows the survey now made through Silver Lake. A rumor is afloat to the effect that the survey is to be changed south of Fort Rock, placing the highway east of the Conley hills, and on the east side of Silver Lake and Summer Lake. Should this prove to be true, such a change would meet with strong opposition. Silver Lake and Summer Lake have pioneered the way for this part of Central Oregon and are entitled to recognition at the hands of the highway commission."

"To put the survey on the east side of the Conley hills would be to put it through a section of country uninhabited and where it will be an item of great expense to keep the road open on account of drifting sand."

"If Bend wishes to see this change made in the survey and will guarantee that the present survey from Fort Rock via Silver Lake will stand, we are with them."

Although the intentions of the Leader in publishing this article were undoubtedly the best in the world, it is so incorrect and so likely to create a false impression that we feel the inaccuracies should be pointed out.

In the first place there is no ground for the statement that a change in the survey of the Dalles-California highway is probable. This highway is now surveyed through Deschutes county to the Klamath line and bids are to be opened on July 28 for clearing and grading the line south of the Allen ranch. No "move is on foot" to bring this highway east of Bend and thence south to Fort Rock and nothing of the sort has been "originated" in Bend.

Presumably, the matter to which the Leader has reference is the plan now under consideration by the highway commission to locate the state highway from Bend to Lakeview by running south from the Central Oregon highway over what is known locally as the Fort Rock cut-off road. A reconnaissance survey of this route has already been made and, according to Portland newspaper reports, is viewed favorably by the commission. It should be distinctly understood, however, that this is not a matter originating here in Bend and that it does not refer to The Dalles-California highway.

Bend, as represented by the Commercial club, the council or any other body or individual, has taken no part in this matter and expressed no wish. Sooner or later, we anticipate, there will be plenty of controversy over it. It is unfortunate if the town gets dragged in ahead of time on a misunderstanding of the facts.

PROTECT THE BIRDS

In one of the Sunday papers appeared a letter that President Harding had written to the president of a boys' nature club about the owls that live in the White House grounds. Apparently, the question had been under discussion as to whether these owls were or were not a bad thing to have around. The question had been submitted to the nature loving school children all over the country and they, acting as a court, had decided that the balance was in favor of the owls. On this decision the president wrote that the owls would be granted a reprieve, meaning that they would be allowed to live.

This little incident strikes us with especial force just at this time for two reasons. One is that it shows that President Harding is taking an interest in some of those things by which Theodore Roosevelt endeared himself to a number of people. It is not the same interest and understanding that Roosevelt had. His was based on the scientific knowledge of the naturalist and Harding has none of this. But he has what serves almost as well and that is a broad human interest in most of the things around him.

It is a long way from Washington to Bend, but the other idea connects because of the birds here and what, at times, seems to be a lack of interest in them on the part of a lot of our boys. Especially we have in mind requests that we comment on the needless and cruel use of sling shots by some of the boys of Bend. There are so many robins around that they are an ever present and easy mark for the boy with the stone or the sling, but they also are a very valuable ally to the gardener, so valuable that it is desirable to keep as many around as possible.

Then, too, in addition to the use they are there is to be remembered the pleasure they and all other birds give. A strong sentiment against destroying or bothering the birds would save a great many. Its creation would be a good thing for Bend.

Here's hoping that the next challenge is a German, so that Dempsey can at least say that he did fight a German once.

DISARMAMENT

When the czar of Russia, twenty-two years ago, called the first peace conference, the act was hailed as the greatest move toward peace that had ever taken place. And so, at the time, it was. There had been centuries of war, and like centuries of wishing that war might be ended, but never a single step toward ending war. At The Hague, for the first time, the nations gathered and discussed the possibility of putting the wish into effect. From this and the second Hague conference the best that could be brought forth was a set of rules for carrying on war. An arbitration court was also provided which has dealt with a number of international disputes, but neither it nor the rules of the Hague convention amounted to a snap when war came between Russia and Japan, in the Balkans, and with Germany.

Nevertheless, at The Hague a start was made in getting together to talk over the possibilities of peace and in bringing out by discussion the things that stood in the way of peace. There, at least, a foundation was laid which was useful in the development of the structure of the League of Nations, the second great step toward the ideal. Apparently, without the United States, the league will fail, but the failure will be unnoticed if the disarmament conference called by President Harding brings forth any tangible results.

The world wants peace and it does not much care how it gets it so long as it comes. It wants relief from the burden of military taxation, from the fears and apprehensions of war, from the time lost in training for war. It wants peace. If the coming conference results in giving this relief the world will give such honor to its authors as will endure forever.

In announcing the purchase of his former partner's interest in the Madras Pioneer and his own plans for the future, George T. Pearce says: "I am a bachelor and I have two hobbies and they are consistent. I am willing to pay my school taxes to educate your children in return for your payment of your taxes without protest to build good roads upon which I can drive my automobile."

Fair enough.

If the war with Germany is now to be carried into the courts it never will be finished.

Apparently the dove of peace carries a bit of shamrock along with the olive branch in his bill today.

TWO ARE JAILED FOR DISORDERLY CONDUCT

Four charges faced Clay Allison and L. E. Peterson on Friday afternoon when they appeared in police court before Recorder Ross Farnham. Allison pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct and was fined $20 and given five days in jail. Peterson pleaded guilty to running a car while in an intoxicated condition, and paid $20 for his lapse from sobriety. Then he admitted disorderly conduct, and was fined $20 and sentenced to five days in jail. He denied having liquor in his possession, and will face trial on this charge when he has completed his sentence on the disorderly conduct charge.

The men were picked up Thursday night by Mayor E. D. Gilson just after Peterson had driven the car in which they were riding, through a paving barrier. Formaldehyde fumes, lingering in the jail, prevented the men being suitably cared for the evening of their capture, but yesterday no such difficulty was presented.

REPAIR WORK STOPS TANK USE FOR WEEK

Due to long disuse, pipes connecting the plunge at the gymnasium are in need of repair. Norman A. Cobb, manager of the Athletic Club building, states. The work will be rushed, but it will probably be impossible to open the pool again for a week. The plunge was used last night for the last time before repair work begins.

PETITION RAILWAY CROSSING REPAIR

In an attempt to secure the repair of the Third street railroad crossing, the Central Oregon Associates and other property owners of Bend have filed a petition with the state public service commission, E. L. Vinal, manager of the realty company, announced.

BEND DELEGATES' TRIP INTERESTS

That the American Legion news service is particularly interested in the mountain trip taken by the Bend delegation in reaching the Eugene convention this year is mentioned by Attorney Charles W. Erskine, one of the delegates. He is to make a complete report of the trip to headquarters of the news service at Indianapolis. Among other things, the delegates were forced to shovel their way through snowdrifts, and construct a 30-foot bridge in completing their trip on the McKenzie Pass road.

A Talk On Saving

Wisdom may be as shrewdly shown in money saving as in money getting. There are many who show great brilliance in getting money, but make no effort to save. When the end of a year rolls around they wonder why they are no farther ahead than some who did not earn nearly as much but seemed to have more.

To be successful financially it is even more important that a knowledge of saving be thorough than is a knowledge of earning.

When the time comes to count up your results—IT'S WHAT HAVE YOU SAVED—not what you earned.

Better think the saving end of your money matters over. Saving will pay substantial dividends.
