

PARISIAN TOUR PLANS GIVEN; VARIED ENTERTAINMENT, TRULY GALIC IN FLAVOR, ARRANGED

All preparations for a Parisian tour modeled directly after those frequently enjoyed by the American overseas soldier, a few years ago, were launched last week by the governing board of the gymnasium, recently taken over by the American Legion. The tour will be conducted by regularly licensed guides in charge of P. Pierson, chief of gendarmes, and every corner of the gymnasium will shelter some Parisian attraction, reproduced from memory. "Four transportation a Paris" reads the permit which will be issued to those desiring to enter the gymnasium on July 14, 15, and 16.

The general committee in charge of the affair will be the governing board of the gym, as the three nights' entertainment is to come as the wind-up of the membership campaign which was started last week, when application blanks were distributed among members of the Legion and

Auxiliary unit at their joint meeting. Each evening, while the Parisian tours are on, dancing will be in progress on the main floor of the gymnasium, while entertainers on the stage will present a varied program. These features will be in charge of Charles W. Erskine, as manager of the "Folies Bergere."

Crosby Shelvin, as provost marshal, will have charge of the entrance, and of the military police who will be on duty. James Harrison, mayor of Aix les Bains, will have the swimming pool as his chief domain, and J. G. McClellan, prince of Monaco for three nights, will supervise the games of chance. As his croupier he has selected Hugh O'Kane. C. H. Waite will direct the affairs of the Cafe de Paris, and J. C. Wright will be the dominating influence in the Latin quarter, which will be found located just under the roof at the end of a long flight of winding stairs.

SUMMER DULLNESS HITS LUMBER, BUT EARLY ACTIVITY FORESEEN

Added to the unusual dullness in the lumber trade induced by the general business depression that has been apparent practically all of this year now has come the usual mid-summer dullness that lumbermen generally expect at this season, says the American Lumberman. This has caused a marked lull in demand. There is a great deal of small building under way in various parts of the country that is making the retail lumber business in many sections quite active, but retailers, as a rule, are taking care of this demand out of stocks on hand and are buying from the manufacturers only enough material to fill their immediate needs.

"While in the aggregate this buying amounts to a large total, at the same time it has not brought any particular degree of prosperity or even satisfaction to the manufacturers, for this call for building lumber has broken up assortments in the yards, depleted the yards of the most popular items in building lumber, but left on hand a large amount of other material for which there has been no sale," continues the Lumberman. "This lack of general business has made it necessary for the mills to continue to curtail production. Production at the mills reporting to the West Coast Lumbermen's association last week was 29 per cent below normal, and with a number of mills announcing their intention not to resume operations after the shutdown for the July 4 holiday, the next fortnight is going to show a still larger curtailment in production in that territory.

"The same condition is largely true in southern pine territory, where production has been largely curtailed for some time. The hardwood situation has shown little improvement.

There is a fairly satisfactory demand for the higher grades, but the call for low-grade hardwoods is slack and prices have reached on some items probably the lowest point in the history of the industry.

"Wholesale prices of lumber generally now are at a very low point and these reductions, to a large extent, are being reflected in prices at the retail yards. Lumber manufacturers generally are hopefully looking to the early payment by the government to the railroads of the amounts due them, as it is felt that this will enable the roads to do a great deal of maintenance and repair work that requires large amounts of lumber. There is a much larger percentage of bad order cars being reported than is normally the case and much lumber will be necessary for the repairing of these cars before they can be placed into service again.

"Despite the present extremely dull situation in the lumber trade, the industry is expecting an early resumption of activity that will permit a much better showing during the latter half of the year than has been possible in the first half just closing.

"Reports made to the National Lumber Manufacturers' association for 24 weeks ended June 18 show: Production, 3,519,531,295 feet; shipments, 3,655,148,471 feet; and orders, 3,764,980,664 feet."

FULL OF PAINS AND DIZZINESS

"I was full of pains and had such a swimming sensation in my head I could hardly sit in a barber chair to get a shave," writes Swift Nelson, 211 W. 35th St., New York, N. Y. "I felt better the next 24 hours after taking Foley Kidney Pills, and I haven't had any trouble since." Safe and effective. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

TOURIST CARS FILL GARAGES

CAMP GROUND TAKING CARE OF OVERFLOW

Merchants Benefit as Result of Motor Travel — Tourists Remaining For Some Time in Central Oregon Most Profitable, Is Shown.

Cars belonging to tourists are filling the garages in Bend every night, in addition to the large number that are parked at the city camp ground. A large share of the garage business at present comes from tourists, managers state. Most of them are from California and other states to the south, or the Willamette valley, as the eastern tourists have not yet reached this section.

Merchants are also getting a great deal of business from travelers, particularly the grocers, for the reason that Bend is the last place where larders may be replenished for several hundred miles in a number of directions.

The most profitable tourists, dealers point out, are those who stay in Central Oregon for a length of time, camping at the lakes or elsewhere. They not only purchase more goods here, but are the best advertisers later, as they remember and tell about the places where they stopped for some time.

NEW DODGE POLICY GOES INTO EFFECT

Local Agency of Walther-Williams Company Closed Pending Selection of Associate Dealer.

Putting into effect the Policy of Dodge Brothers to place the sale of their cars in the hands of dealers and associate dealers, rather than with dealers and agencies, the local agency of the Walther-Williams Co. has been closed pending the appointment of an associate dealer. The formalities attendant on the closing of the agency were attended to yesterday by Harry E. Walther, who came in from The Dalles for the purpose.

The associate dealer will be appointed within 30 days, Mr. Walther stated, saying also that this action is not to be construed as reflecting in any way on the former agency manager.

ADVERTISING URGED

A suggestion along this line is offered by A. G. Clark, of the Central Oregon Motor Co.

"Central Oregon should advertise its attractions to these people who drive through in search of pleasure," he stated. "They are in no hurry, and will camp in this section if the people here will advertise the attractions of the surrounding country."

"I suggest a map covering in detail the roads of this section, radiating from Bend, in a folder telling of the scenic attractions, fishing, swimming and other advantages of the various resorts. It would be well worth while for the merchants here to have such a map prepared, to pass out to all tourists."

FISH PLentiful

A marsh or two is crossed and the boys find a deer track, fresh from the night before. Then they inspect a deserted cabin, and a few moments later arrive at the lake. Then they fish and swim for an hour until dinner. Of course there are boys who didn't get their chocolate bar—or a whole one, anyway.

Silversides are plentiful, and every boy who brought a rod, or can borrow one, soon has a fish or two in his hip pocket.

"I'm going to take mine home," says a thoughtful boy. But home is a week away, and the fish must be fried tonight.

An early start is made for camp, and the boat is soon in constant use and threatens to disrupt the camp with its popularity, for only five boys can ride at a time. There is also a ball game, four on a side to start, but soon there are 10 or 12. Nobody can keep track of the score, so both sides win.

The kitchen squad is still on duty, although they were relieved for the hike, and soup, meat, potatoes and the day's catch of trout are prepared for supper. There are fruit, bread, butter and chocolate.

Camp Is Noisy.

The boys ought to be tired after hiking, fishing, rowing and playing ball all day, but after supper, while the two boys who failed in their duty as rear guard, and the two who went rowing without permission wash the dishes, the camp is a bedlam of strife

BOYS ENJOYING CAMPING TRIP

LIFE IS STRENUOUS AT ELK LAKE

Scouts Learning Woodcraft During 10 Day Outing—Hike Along Skyline Trail To Horse Lake Is Rewarded By Heavy Catch.

Just as a thin shaft of sunlight from across the summit of Bachelor strikes a group of six white tents on the peaceful shore of Elk lake, the quiet is disturbed by the shrill sound of a whistle. One long blast and five short, and the day is begun in the Boy Scout camp. Six boys, huddled in warm blankets, stir themselves, utter a brief protest—because they are boys—and begin pulling on khaki trousers and shoes not quite dry after yesterday's hike.

One boy remains curled up in his blankets. He is the smallest—not yet 12 years old, so he is not a Scout, but a guest. He will be a Scout when the boys go on their hike next summer. But in camp he must obey Scout rules. He is roughly pulled from the warm covers by the patrol leader, for this is the kitchen squad, and 24 boys are to be fed before 7 o'clock.

The fire under the big camp cooker is already laid, and is soon burning briskly. Camp Steward Frank Owen is on the job, but he does little beyond directing the kitchen patrol. Bacon is sliced and fried, while the big chocolate pot is heated. Omelet and toast also make their magic appearance.

None Complain

One long blast on the Scoutmaster's whistle arouses the entire camp, and from each tent a file of boys appears, and soon the edge of the lake is lined with boys at their morning toilet. One boy has lost his shoes, so his patrol is the last out—and all six boys have to get wood.

Breakfast is served. Each patrol is called together, the leader reports all present, and the boys file into their places, where they undergo an awful suspense until the whistle is blown to "fall to." The food is plentiful and well cooked, but no meal is complete without a little bickering as to which is whose. No complaint, though, for there is a summary punishment attached.

There are five boys who stayed out too late yesterday afternoon in the boat. This morning they are the dishwashing squad. And they accept the penalty in silence—for they want to use the boat today.

All Go for Hike.

Beds are neatly made and camp rubbish is collected, and more wood is carried. Then four or five pack sacks are loaded with dried beef, chocolate bars and crackers, and the patrols are lined up again. The Scoutmaster leads the way, two patrol leaders are assigned as rear guards, and the troop is on its way along the Skyline trail to Horse lake.

Up over the mountain, along a narrow path lined with jackpine, fir, hemlock, tamarack and balsam—the boys know them all now—goes the long procession. Soon a snowdrift is crossed, and the scawlag in the rear throws a snowball at someone up the line and the procession is nearly disrupted by the snow fight which follows. The Scoutmaster is patient.

and noise, to which the Scoutmaster turns a deaf ear, unless the kitchen is encroached upon.

Johnny Jones complains of illness—But he is all right when the castor oil is brought. Some other boy must be treated for a toothache, and new bandages must be prepared for the two boys who have cut their hands and the one who slid into third base and bruised his head.

The boys are quiet for 15 minutes while the Scoutmaster tells a story, and then bedlam breaks loose once more, to be stopped by the "go to bed" signal. Fifteen minutes later two short blasts for silence, but there is still a suspicious buzzing from five tents. By half past 10 all is quiet. Thirty-four boys are dreaming of killing bears, and the Scoutmaster dreams that there is an army of Boy Scouts climbing, one by one, into a small rowboat.

FIND STILL IN SISTERS WOODS

WHISKEY MAKING APPARATUS HOME MADE IN EVERY DETAIL—OWNER AND LIQUOR CAN'T BE FOUND.

A complete home-made still, the first with a half-way condenser ever seen by the authorities in this county, was seized in the woods near the Duckett mill beyond Sisters Saturday night by Sheriff S. E. Roberts. The whiskey-making apparatus had apparently been moved since the last run of moonshine had been turned out, for no liquor could be discovered in the vicinity. The still's owner was not apprehended.

The boiler had been cut out of sheet copper and soldered together, the intermediate condenser was housed in a small lard pail, and the worm, made of copper tubing taken from an auto, was cooled by water flowing through a five-gallon oil can. Even the mash was fermented in a home-made container, a high pine box being used for this.

The still is one of the smallest he has ever confiscated, says Sheriff Roberts.
