OREGON HAY CROP FOR 1921 OVER TWO MILLION TONS; SPUDS FEWER

The Oregon hay crop for 1921 is estimated at 2,297,000 tons. The 1920 crop was estimated at 2,362,000 tons, and the three-year average, 1918-1920, at 1,975,000 tons, says the U. S. bureau of markets and crop estimates.

The U. S. 1921 crop is now estimated at 97,000,000 tons. The 1920 crop was estimated at 103,000,000 tons and the three-year average, 1918-1920, at 102,000,000 tons.

Condition of the Oregon potato crop was reduced during July from 97.0 to 87.0 per cent. This condition indicates a probable production of 5,150,000 bushels. The state crop of 1920 was estimated at 5,590,000 bushels, and the three-year average, 1918-1920, at 5,107,000 bushels.

The U. S. potato crop of 1921 is now estimated at 316,000,000 bushels. The 1920 estimate was 430,000,000 bushels, and the three-year average, 1918-1920, is 399,000,000 bushels.

The condition of other Oregon crops on August 1 was reported as follows: Corn, 92 per cent; alfalfa, 95 per cent; pasture, 95; field peas, 96; field beans, 95; tomatoes, 95; cabbage, 90; onions, 90; apples, 80; peaches, 40; grapes, 95; pears, 70; melons, 95; hops, 90.

CAMP LOCATION IDEAS VARIOUS

what site is chosen, a little money will not make it a camp ground. Bend, in order to compete with other Oregon cities, must build the prettiest camp possible.

Mrs. Carrie Manny, president of the Woman's Civic league, reported that organization as unanimously opposed to the use of the city park as a camp ground, on account of the objection of residents in that district.

Bend is the logical tourist center of Oregon, said E. L. Vinal, and the nine-acre site mentioned by Mr. Miller will not be adequate in a few years. He objected to the city park for the same reason.

Mr. Miller, in upholding the decision of the former committee in favor of the present site, pointed out its admirable situation. Many camps are objected to because they are hard to find.

Cave Signs Ordered.

Mr. Hamilton told of the many cars from California he had seen at Crater Lake, and enumerated the reasons why more of them did not come through Central Oregon, information being circulated that it was impossible to get out of Crater Lake park on the east side, that our roads are impassable, and the camp ground question. The latter lies within the control of Bend people, he said. The site, wherever it may be, is not as important as that the people get behind the city council and find ways and means of improving it.

The Lava River cave committee reported its plans for putting up signs pointing out the roads to Lava River cave, the Arnold ice cave, the Crane Prairie road branching from The Dalles-California highway, along the Century drive, at the Lost lake road intersection, at the Tumalo road where it leaves The Dalles-California highway, and the East lake road.

On motion of Clyde McKay, the purchase of the signs was authorized.

ROAD COMMISSION PRESIDENT HERE

R. A. Booth, president of the state highway commission, passed through Bend Tuesday night on his way from Crater lake, where he has been camping, with his family, to The Dalles, where he was called by the illness of a brother. He left his wife and son Ray at Crater lake.
