

CROWDS WATCH DEDICATION OF NEW HOSPITAL

ROOMS ARE BLESSED BY BISHOP

MARKS BEND ADVANCE

Mayor Points To Achievements In March of City's Progress—Surgeon Contrasts New and Old Methods—Cooperation Asked.

Dedication of St. Charles hospital, constructed under the direction of the sisters of St. Joseph, and financed to a considerable extent by donations from the people of Bend and the surrounding country, drew crowds which filled the halls of the first floor Sunday afternoon as Bishop Joseph F. McGrath preceded by Fathers Luke Sheehan and Gabriel Harrington, passed through the building blessing each room in the hospital. A driving snow prevented the program of addresses which followed from being given out of doors as had at first been contemplated.

Praising the work of the Catholic sisters in their labors of mercy, Mayor E. D. Gilson, the first speaker of the afternoon, pointed to the new hospital as another achievement marking the progress of Bend. He assured his hearers of the hearty cooperation of the people of the city, extending his best wishes for the success of the institution.

Dr. Charles F. Bloom, representing the medical profession of Bend, contrasted modern surgical methods with those of a few decades ago, and compared the facilities which Central Oregon practitioners have at their command with the obstacles which the pioneer physicians and surgeons in this section were called upon to overcome. In its equipment and arrangement, St. Charles hospital is second to no institution of the kind even in the large cities, he declared.

Community Fortunate Bishop McGrath spoke of the new hospital, not as a work of the church, but of the community. Unflinching he praised the self-sacrificing lives of the Catholic sisters and congratulated the people of Bend in having so thoroughly up to date a hospital under their direction. He now has on file, he stated, applications from no less than 12 cities and towns in the diocese asking that sisters be sent to their communities or that hospitals be started. He has been unable to meet the demand, he said. He bespoke the continued cooperation of the people of Bend.

The new hospital, according to Contractor E. P. Brosterhous, can not be turned over to the sisters until sewer connections are completed, and this will not be possible until the frost is out of the ground, making possible the laying of pipe. He estimates that this will mean another month before patients can be received.

Donations Aid

The building, occupying an area of 34x67 feet, was completed at a cost of $30,000, and will furnish accommodations for 30 patients. It has been under construction since September, with a two months' layoff due to adverse weather conditions.

Six private rooms, the receiving office, and a ward are on the first floor, the basement contains the nurses' dining room, kitchen, two rooms for quarters for the sisters, and the heating plant, while on the top floor are three private rooms, the surgery, sterilizing room, surgeons' wash room, delivery room, infants' room, and the maternity ward. A diet kitchen is on each of the two upper floors. The elevator is yet to be installed. The building is equipped with dust chute, laundry chute, and dumb waiter.

The surgery is completely equipped with the very latest of appliances and is declared by local surgeons to be a model in every way.

Of the private rooms one has been completely furnished by Mr. and Mrs. W. L. O'Connell, while in another bedding has been donated by M. P. Cashman.

K. K. K. MAN TO SEEK COMMISSION TO ENFORCE DRUG LAWS IN BEND

On his next trip to Bend C. C. Starr, organizer in Central and Eastern Oregon for the Ku Klux Klan, expects to be equipped with authority as a state officer to look into local violations of the narcotics laws, he states. Starr made the statement Friday, supplementing his contradiction of a report that he is now representing Governor Olcott in the anti-drug crusade.

"If any direct violations should come under my notice now," "I should lose no time in reporting them," he said, adding that he had authority from the sheriff of Multnomah county. That he is a Multnomah deputy was his answer to a question as to the exact nature of this authority. He expressed a belief that much in the way of law enforcement of the kind could be done locally.

While unwilling to give any figures as to the actual membership of the Ku Klux Klan, Starr stated that the organization is running fractional orders in Bend a close race, and that it now includes some of the most prominent men in the city.

Commenting on the purpose of the Ku Klux Klan, Starr pointed out that while the white race must answer every appeal for help from the lands of the black, brown and yellow races, it must at the same time fight for the preservation of its own ideals and institutions.

"The conflict of the ages has been a conflict of ideals," Starr said. "America stands at the head of the Anglo-Saxon nations and as such is menaced by the most powerful combination of alien forces ever assembled against a people."

It is to combat such menaces that the Ku Klux Klan is extending its memberships, he intimated. The Ku Klux Klan believes in the tenets of the Christian religion, white supremacy, protection of pure womanhood, just laws and liberty, closer relationship of pure Americanism, upholding of the constitution of the United States, sovereignty of state rights, separation of church and state, freedom of speech and press, closer relationship of capital and American labor, prevention of the causes of mob violence and lynchings, prevention of unwarranted strikes by foreign labor agitators, prevention of fires and destruction of property by lawless elements, limitation of foreign immigration, local reforms, and law and order, he said.

Several initiations have already been held here, but by whom Starr would not say. Officers have been elected, but the names of these are also being kept secret. "Not that we have anything to be ashamed of," Starr said, "but we just don't do it that way."

CONFLICT IN JURY LAWS POINTED OUT BY JUDGE OF CIRCUIT COURT

A condition may arise in which it will be impossible to try criminal cases in which the defendant or the complaining witness is a minor, as a result of changes which the last legislature made in the jury trial laws, was the statement of Circuit Judge T. E. J. Duffy at last week's meeting of the Woman's Civic league, in explaining the laws relating to women's service on the jury.

One law says that women need not serve on the jury unless they wish; another says that six women must serve on a jury in a case of this kind; and still another says that jurors may not be drawn from the bystanders in court, or in any other manner except through the regular drawing from the jury list.

Duffy explained that while for men jury service is mandatory, at the risk of a $20 fine for failure to appear, women have a right to exempt themselves.

Special arrangements will have to be made at the court house for the woman jurors, said Duffy, and a woman bailiff will be provided. He promised to be lenient in the matter of holding the juries for protracted periods.

Forty women were drawn for jury service in Jefferson county, and 20 in Crook, said Duffy, but as Crook county is crimeless and has no civil cases calling for jury trial, no jury will be called. Judge Duffy is counting on a present of a pair of white gloves from the sheriff, in accordance with ancient tradition.

In connection with the difficulties of the new jury law, Judge Duffy pointed out that jury service is a moral obligation upon women in the cases where women jurors must be provided. A further troublesome feature is that jurors must be drawn in their order, and that after the six men required have been accepted, the defense might insist that another man is qualified and must sit on the jury.

"What happens when a woman accepts jury duty and then changes her mind?" was one question asked of the judge. He pointed out that the judge may excuse any juror for cause, but that he need not do so.

Miss Bonnie Stockwell played two piano solos in a distinctive manner, and Miss Alice Stockmon, accompanied on the piano by Miss Dorothy Dodds, delighted those present with two vocal solos. Mrs. J. Edgar Purdy presided.

CLUB TO PRESENT THREE PLAYLETS

Irish Political Sketch To Draw Interest of Theater Goers— Venture Is Novelty.

Just by way of novelty. The Players, recently organized dramatic society which presented "The Gypsy Trail" last week at the Grand theater, will give three one act plays for their next evening's entertainment, which will be on Friday evening, March 27, according to plans laid at Sunday night's meeting at the Pilot Butte Inn.

Particular interest should attach itself to "Rising of the Moon," an Irish play which gives an insight into the political struggle of the past few years, and portrays the real character of the Sinn Feiner, rather than the comic Irishman so commonly seen on the stage. George Pauly, director, will take the leading part. The other plays will be "A Pot of Broth," a comedy, and "Riders to the Sea," a bit of serious drama.
