From Two Trees Has Grown an In-From Two Trees Has Grown an Industry Which Is Now Estimated in Millions.

From two lone orange trees, to which buds of the seedless "navel" or ange of Brazil were grafted some years ago, has grown an industry which last year showed a net profit of some forty million dollars. Today one hundred and seventy-five thousand acres of California land is planted to navel oranges, which are set out in numbers ranging from 80 to 130 trees to the William Saunders, one-time superintendent of the government horticul-tural grounds at Washington, D. C., learned in 1870 that a new seedless orange had been developed at Bahai, Brazil, and procured 12 of the young trees through the aid of a missionary. They were brought to the United States and planted under conditions as nearly those of their native land as could be found, but they could not withstand the more rigorous northern climate, and they soon died. Buds had been taken from them, however, and grafted upon sprouts of native propagation. Two of these sprouts survived and were transplanted to the West coast in 1875.

From them have sprung the thousands of trees which have made the navel orange the foremost among the many varieties of oranges. Every year buds have been taken from them to impart navel characteristics to home-grown seedlings, and still though somewhat ravished by time, these patriarchs an-nually add their small quota to the thousands of bushels of fruit their offspring yields.

One of them stands just outside Riverside.

PASS UP ALL KINDS OF WORK Masculine Natives of the South Se Islands Cannot Be Brought to Do Any Labor.

The natives of the Marshall islands, 50 years ago, before the advent of the missionaries, were typical savages of the South seas. They lived a natural wild existence, unburdened by clothes, and eating only what nature provided for them-coconut and the pandanus fruit. They had no houses. They lived under thatched roofs, supported at the four corners by poles. Today the natives wear white linen suits. The stiff white collar seems to make their faces blacker than they really are, and to bring out the designs of the tattoo marks more clear-They have schools and hospitals. which were started by those brave missionaries of half a century ago. Their chief is particularly modern. He lives in a house, and since Japan has taken possession he has a wireless station on his island, the island of Wotje. He even dictates to a stenographer, who sits on the floor with a typewriter between his legs. The natives are not so far modernized, however, that the men will bestir themselves to do any work. They do not believe in work. They leave work to the women. The hardest task the men perform is to carry around the babies. They do this so the women will have nothing to interfere with their work.

Plants Have Heart and Pulse Beat.

Plants have a heart and pulse and a "blood circulation" very similar to that of the animal world. This is the sensational discovery of Sir Jagardis Chandra Bose, the famous Indian hotanist. According to Sir Jagardis, great quantities of water are absorbed daily by the average tree. This water is driven up to the very top of the tree and then breathed out again through the leaves. Experiments were carried out by Sir Jagardis at his botanical institute in Calcutta. He says there is no characteristic manifestation of animal life which could not be found in simple form in plants also. The plant has a beart beat and a "pulse" astonishingly similar to that of animals. Besides, it also reacts upon stimulation in almost the same way, and shows that it possesses a

A tablet is to be placed in one of wards of a London hospital in honor of the Congo chief, Mandobi, who volunteered, when sleeping sick ness appeared among his tribe, to go to England and submit to all the experiments necessary to determine the cause of this malady and to discover a remedy. For several months he permitted himself to be bled daily in order to supply material for the microscopists. At length the germ of the sleeping sickness was discovered; but almost simultaneously the volunteer subject of these researches paid for that discovery with his life.—The Living Age.

Did You Ever Stop To Think?

That in many cities you will find a clique known as the "anvil chorus. That this chorus is composed of the leading drones of the city. That these drones are alway against public improvements in spite of the fact that it has been proven that for every dollar spent in public. improvements, two dollars are spent in investments in homes and new business enterprises. That city builders are often hampered in their work by the "anvil chorus" loudly singing "shirk, shirk, shirk.'

That the more the boosters work, the more they boost, the more they build, the louder the tune of the 'anvil chorus."

That the "anvil chorus" needs the undivided attention of the city builders. Some way should be found to have them change their hammer song to "work, work, work,"
