We extend to all our customers hearty wishes for a tranquil and prosperous New Year.

This is the time of year when one looks two ways—in retrospect and in prospect. Looking backward, we congratulate ourselves on the warm and loyal support extended to us by old patrons, and for the large number of new friends we have made.

Looking ahead, we see a long program of activities in behalf of Service.

We are ever searching for the best and finest in merchandise, and our ideal of quality beckons to ever greater achievement.

We are setting a new standard for service in merchandise and in performance for the year 1923.

Christmas Carols Heard in Bend; Brass Quartet and Choir Awaken Many

Christmas day was ushered in with the usual early morning carols, there being at least two parties of musicians abroad in Bend; a quartet composed of Dr. R. D. Ketchum, playing a trombone, and William Dunstan, W. M. Dickerson and Ashley Forrest, cornetists, and the junior choir of the Methodist Episcopal church.

The quartet played in 16 different parts of the city, while the singers visited members of the Methodist church who are quarantined or otherwise confined to their homes, making seven stops before singing at the Altamont hotel, where they were invited in and served with cookies and hot drinks by Miss Alice Spalding, proprietor.

All employees of the Standard Oil Co. in Bend, Redmond, Prineville and Madras met at Madras on Tuesday night for discussion of sales and service methods. The Bend delegation reports that the road was good, considering recent weather.

Both these splendid varieties of berries (high and low growing), which are probably the best berry growing on bushes in the world, are a free gift of God to the people of New England. Beautiful in its white or slightly roseate flower, beautiful in leaf and habit, the bush is, of course, most lovely when laden down with its curculian berries—large, round and plump, dusted over with a fine soft fuzz or bloom, and packed full almost to the point of bursting with a juice which is more delicious than any known nectar. The ripe, rich, woody flavor of the perfect New England blueberry is indescribable. In it are the perfume of the wild rose and of the clover; in matters of the palate the savor of the blueberry is precisely what the bell-like note of the woodthrush is in the domain of sound. Esthetically, as well as in habitat, the two are closely associated. Both sensations are ineffable, and quite without parallel in nature.—"Nomad" in Boston Transcript.

DEATH PACKAGE CASE UNSOLVED

Poison Cake Still Mystery After 2 Months—Clues to Source Lacking

(By United Press to The Bend Bulletin.) PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 26.—The Sterrett poison cake mystery has gone down on the crime annals of Pennsylvania as "unsolved."

Two months ago today Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Sterrett of Devon, near here, received a neatly wrapped parcel post package that contained two large slices of wedding cake.

Shortly after eating the cake, Mr. and Mrs. Sterrett became ill and were rushed to Bryn Mawr hospital. Sterrett died from poison that was secreted in the "devil's food." Mrs. Sterrett recovered after a long illness.

Investigators and postal inspectors began a nation wide search for the sender of the "death package." The parcel bore no identification marks and the address was typewritten, baffling authorities.

Sterrett was a public accountant, and search was instituted for a man who would have had a motive in taking the accountant's life, because he had found discrepancies in accounts, but without avail.

Clues first pointed to an insane man who was once employed by Sterrett, and later to women, one in Youngstown, Ohio, and another in Pittsburgh.

Typewriters, hundreds of them, were examined to find the machine that addressed the parcel, but without success.

The investigation had included hundreds of drug stores where the arsenic that was blended with the sweet white icing on the cake was purchased, but without result.

Even a coroner's inquest into Sterrett's death has not been held, because of the lack of one single thing upon which a jury might hang a verdict.

Mrs. Sterrett has closed up her house at Devon, sold her furniture and returned to the home of her mother at Clarendon, Pa.

Hearty appreciation and very best wishes for a Happy New Year
