A WORTH-WHILE PRAYER

The following "business man's prayer," reprinted from The Printing Art, seems timely at any time and to the point. It makes a good Christmas time prayer, too, for a business man or any one else:

"Teach me that sixty minutes make one hour, sixteen ounces one pound, and one hundred cents one dollar. Help me to live so that I can lie down at night with a clear conscience, without a gun under my pillow, and unhaunted by the faces of those to whom I have brought pain.

"Grant that I may earn my meal ticket on the square, and that, in earning it, I may not stick the gaff in where it does not belong.

"Deafen me to the jingle of tainted money and the rustle of unholy skirts. Blind me to the faults of the other fellows, and reveal to me mine own.

"Guide me so that each night when I look across the dinner table at my wife, who has been a blessing to me, I shall have nothing to conceal. Keep me young enough to laugh with my children.

"And when come the smell of flowers, and the tread of soft steps, and the crunching of wheels out in front, make the ceremony short and the epitaph simple."

PROGRAM ANNOUNCED

Final Arrangements Made for Agricultural Council Meet.

The complete program for the annual meeting of the Crook County Agricultural Council to be held in Redmond on December 23, has just been announced by County Agent Blanchard, as follows:

Call to order by the president. Reading of the minutes by the secretary. Report of the county agricultural agents.

"A Program of Work for the County Agricultural Council," by Paul V. Maris, state leader of county agents.

"Cooperative Orders."—How the Council can help in getting a better quality, grade and standardization of seeds, alfalfa, clovers, garden, etc., cotton seed cake, beet pulp, gypsum, strychnine, etc., by P. H. Dencer; discussion by C. F. Hoskins, W. F. Mackey and Council.

"Rabbit Extermination Campaign."—Plan for each club to effect a cooperative effort in killing rabbits, E. S. Bernard; discussion by S. W. Merrill, C. L. Mead and Council.

"Community Stock Shipments."—A stock shipping plan which allows all kinds of odd lots of stock, hogs, sheep, cattle, etc., an opening to market in a regular car, by C. F. Hoskins; discussion by W. M. Ogg, P. H. Dencer and Council.

"The Potato Industry."—Plans for building up a stronger potato growers' association, a standardization of potatoes, grades, quality, disease control, fairs etc, that will go to make up a renowned Central Oregon product, by J. L. Gibson; dis-ussion by S. D. Mustard, E. Saunders and Council.

"Grain and Forage Crop Development."—Methods of establishing hardy, frost resistant, standard varieties for the most profitable farming, by A. S. Fogg; discussion by T. M. Boerste, A. D. Norton and Council.

"The Dairy Industry."—The cooperative car lot importation of dairy calves, the bull association, cow testing association, silo building, feeding etc., by C. D. Jarrett; discussion by W. M. Ogg, Chas. O. Christiana and Council.

"Farm Demonstrations."—Bringing home the practical and scientific lessons of successful methods with soils, grains, forage crops, live stock, feeding etc., J. N. B. Gerking; discussion by A. S. Fogg, C. F. Hoskins and Council.

HELP ON THE CENSUS

In order that none between the ages of four and 20 may be omitted from the school census now being taken Superintendent Thordason requests, if anyone knows of any individuals between those ages whose names were not taken by the census enumerators, that the names names be handed in to him or City Engineer Gould. Mr. Thordason says that young married women under 20 years of age are often omitted from such census.

K. OF P. OFFICERS ARE NOW ON TOUR THROUGH COUNTY

Leslie E. Crouch, grand vice chancellor of the Oregon Knights of Pythias, and Walter Gleeson, grand keeper of records and seals for the order, were guests last night of the Redmond lodge. Because of the inability of Denton G. Buraick, listed as one of the speakers of the evening, to be present, no especial program was carried out.

Mr. Crouch and Mr. Gleeson will be entertained this evening by the local Knights, at a banquet to be given at the Emblem club, under the direction of N. P. Smith, M. D. Knutson, F. T. Parker and L. M. McReynolds, committee in charge. Tomorrow night the grand officers will visit the Prineville lodge.

AMUNDSEN, SOUTH POLE FINDER, WILL TRY TO FLY PART WAY TO NORTH POLE

ROALD AMUNDSEN AND THE FRAM

Photos by American Press Association.

Captain Roald Amundsen, the Norwegian explorer who discovered the south pole, arrived in New York on the Scandinavian-American liner Frederik VIII, from Copenhagen in his next trip to the arctic regions in July, 1916. The explorer wished it to be clearly understood that he did not intend to make all the trip in an airplane, as had been stated erroneously in some publications. The airplane would be taken on the ship to make the last hundred miles to the pole.

Captain Amundsen's hair is white, and his face is bronzed and weather beaten from many years of exposure to wind, sun and sea, but his blue eyes seemed as steady and bright as they were years ago, and he walked down the pier at Hoboken with the springing, rolling gait of a martinet.

"I intend to leave Norway in July, 1918," Captain Amundsen said, "in an auxiliary schooner of 600 tons, which is now under construction. She will have a 200 horsepower engine and three masts with fore and aft sails. I will have a crew of ten men. My plans are to follow the coast of Siberia until the ice breaks up and then begin to drift toward the pole. I expect the trip will take from three to five years. If the flow takes the direction that I think it does we will come out of the ice between Spitzbergen and Greenland, thus making almost a complete circle.

"My object in taking an aeroplane is to fly to the north pole from the nearest point that we pass on the ship, which, I suppose, will be about 100 miles away. This should be covered in a two hours' flight, and I would stay twenty-four hours to make observations and then fly back.

"My object is not to find the pole, because that has already been done. I wish to make observations of the ocean currents and air currents in order to complete the meteorological records and make it easier to predict weather conditions in other parts of the world. If you know the air currents at the poles it makes it easier to estimate the air currents in other parts of the earth. I obtained some observations of the air currents at the south pole on my expedition when it was discovered.

Alan H. Hawley, president of the Aero Club of America, said that the club would be glad to co-operate with Captain Amundsen in every way to make a success of the expedition. Pictures show Amundsen and the Fram, the ship he used on his successful south pole expedition in 1911.
