MASONS HONOR CHILD

Many of Lodge Attend Services for Gertrude Gaither.

Extending sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Gaither, parents of little Gertrude Gaither, who died Thursday night in this city, a number of the members of the local Masonic lodge, to which Mr. Gaither belongs, attended the funeral services held this afternoon from the Ninwonger undertaking parlors. Many others were also present. Floral offerings were beautiful.

Rev. H. C. Hartranft was the officiating minister, and following the chapel services interment was made in the Bend cemetery.

Nellie Leslie, Mildred Butler, Mildred Kline and Ida Ninwonger were the pall bearers.

FUNERAL NEAR BEND

Large Number of Friends Attend Services for Mrs. Lowe.

Members of the Grange, and a number of Bend residents as well, paid their final respects to the memory of Mrs. Charles Lowe this morning, when funeral services were held from the family home seven miles from Bend. More than 150 were present, and following the services fully half the number joined the cortege to the Bend cemetery, where interment was made.

Rev. H. C. Hartranft officiated at the services, both at the home and at the graveside.

Mrs. Lowe died Thursday night from heart trouble.

WOOL CLEANING IN ALEPPO.

Much Like a Conjuring Trick Is This Old Eastern Process.

Many of the old eastern processes may still be seen in the bazaars of Aleppo. A contributor to Blackwood's in a recent article describes a man whom he saw at work cleaning wool in exactly the same way as has been the custom in Syria since Biblical days:

"In the shelter of one of the arches perhaps you come upon some curious process in full swing. It may be the cleaning of hair or wool or even the making of woollen felt. The cleaning of wool and hair seems to have something of conjuring about it, so immediate are the results and so unexpected, compared with the rude implement used.

"A man seated cross legged on the paving is the conjurer. His instrument is a wooden bow, about four feet long, in shape like the bow of a violin, but with the back two feet away from several stout catgut strings. On the floor he places a small heap of wool clotted with mud and dirt, and above it stands his bow, its back in the air. Its two projecting horns resting on the floor and its strings touching the wool. With a wooden mallet he strikes the strings lightly and sets them twanging harmoniously and then rocks the bow and lets its back strike the floor or wall. Between the top of the bow or floor or wall comes a tap of the strings with the mallet, and what with the time he keeps and the twanging strings there is a semblance to the distant sound of a drum and harp. Having got into time with bow and tapping, perhaps he begins to hum a song.

"It is all a matter of a few seconds only before the wool begins to rise in a soft white cloud around the bow. It goes on rising, and he slightly stirs it, pulls the lower part more under the strings, changes the position of the bow a little, but keeps up the rocking and tap-tapping and never breaks the rhythm with which he began. Under the vibrating strings the wool grows into a heap in size like a table, but still he goes on, while a cloud of fine dust rises to the roof of the vault. When he stops he has produced a great mound of soft white, fleecy wool and beneath it is a heap of sand and dirt. So he goes on, in the cool shade of his cloister, twanging and tap-tapping and singing and half filling his vault with clean wool as the result of a day's work with this primitive instrument.

"One may see these wool cleaners often, for they are in every town and bazaar. But just as often one stops beside them to hear the sounding strings, the rhythmical tapping, the monotonous song and to see the magical results which follow. It all is a scene as eastern in spirit and as ancient as can be found."

At the Movies

GRAND THEATRE

Charlie Chaplin will be the mirth-maker tonight at the Grand Theatre, in "The Pawnshop," a role the likeness of which he has not before shown up his versatile disposition. "The Pawnshop" has plenty of plot. There are a lot of real thrills mingling in with the laughs and Charlie gets away in great style with some heroics well mixed with fun. Edna Purviance, the beautiful member of Charlie's company, is seen in the role of the pawn keeper's daughter.

Tomorrow and Monday night Jose Collins, well known comic opera star, will appear in the pleasant drama "A Woman's Honor," as a beautiful Italian peasant girl whom three conspired to ruin. Clara Kimball Young, in "The Rise of Susan," appears in this beautiful story without a blush Tuesday.

BEND THEATRE.

Pauline Frederick will be the Paramount star to scintillate at the Bend Theatre Sunday and Monday evenings in E. Phillips Oppenheim's celebrated story "The World's Great Snare." Miss Frederick appears in the role of Myra, and in this film is endowed with numerous opportunities to display her charm and magnetism and emotional power.

When The Pallas Pictures chose Myrtle Stedman to play the role of the most beautiful of all women in the world, as shown in the "American Beauty" at the Bend Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday, they chose a most suitable character. Real charm is manifested in this picture of Bohemianism.
