SEERESS LOST POWER WHEN NEARING DEATH

(By United Press to The Daily Bulletin)
 PARIS, Dec. 27.—The world famous seeress Madame Dathibes is dead. She had not been so successful in foretelling future events during the last two years, as formerly. At least her prophecies concerning future world events were not so near the mark as in years gone by.

TRIED TO BESTOW MONEY ON FRIENDS WHILE INTOXICATED

In an effort to find out what became of $30 which James Ferrell, convicted of drunkenness, claimed to have lost, Judge H. C. Ellis held informal court late yesterday afternoon, hearing a number of witnesses who had seen Ferrell Saturday night before his arrest. They testified that the prisoner had endeavored to give his money away, and that when they last saw him, he was sitting on the floor in the Depot hotel, playing with the coins. No clue as to the whereabouts of the money could be obtained.

COUNTY BUILDING MATTERS SLATED AT NEXT SESSION

Estimates on the cost of securing headquarters for county officials for the next two years will be considered by the county court tomorrow, when a special session is held at 8 o'clock in the morning. County Judge William D. Barnes stated this afternoon. Several bids on buildings will be submitted, and it is possible that a definite decision may be reached before the meeting is ended.

Other matters which will come up, it is expected, will be in the nature of routine business.

PROGRAM FOR CONGRESS TOLD

DISTRICT BONDS WILL BE DISCUSSED.

Coming Irrigation Meeting Has Many Subjects for Consideration—Legislators Expect to Attend—Brewer May Appear.

(Oregonian)

To make irrigation district bonds legal investments for bank funds is one of the legislative plans that will be put forward at the sixth annual session of the Oregon irrigation congress at the Imperial hotel in Portland, January 4, 5 and 6.

An effort will be made for an endorsement of this proposal so that it can be taken before the state legislature with the approval of the irrigation congress behind it. Many members of the legislature plan to attend.

This will be only one of a large number of legislative suggestions to be aired before the irrigationists. Some revisions in the irrigation district bonding act probably will be offered and provision for better cooperation between the state and federal irrigation bureaus will be sought.

Because the legislature will be hard pressed this year for funds to pay the ordinary running expenses of the state government, it is not probable that the congress will go on record favoring state appropriations. Some of the Central Oregon districts, however, may ask for an endorsement of their plans, not with any idea of getting money from the legislature, but to have the moral support of the irrigation congress.

J. W. Brewer, of The Dalles, is president of the organization and, it is reported, may be a candidate to succeed himself. Joseph T. Hinkle, of Hermiston, who was one of the organizers and the first secretary of the congress, also is being boomed in that connection.

The complete program as arranged by the committee on Saturday, is as follows:

Thursday, January 4.
 Morning session, 9 o'clock—Registration of delegates; 10 o'clock, congress called to order by president; address of welcome, F. G. Dick, city commissioner, on behalf of the City of Portland; O. M. Clark, president, on behalf of the Portland Chamber of Commerce; response, George Russell, Prineville; president's report, J. W. Brewer, The Dalles; a word from the secretary, who will make his complete report at a later session, F. N. Wallace, Tumalo; report of progress committee, C. C. Chapman, chairman, Portland; appointment of committee on credentials; recess.

Afternoon session, 1:30 o'clock—Call to order; main subject, "Irrigation Practice"; P. A. Devers, Portland; "Scientific Side of Irrigation and the Application of Water"; Dean A. B. Cordley, Oregon Agricultural college. During this afternoon session, one-half hour will be accorded in five-minute periods for the explanation and demonstration of irrigation equipment and material. Among the speakers and subjects will be: "Metal Flume and Its Value," John S. Beall, president, Corvallis; "Flume," Co. recess.

Evening session, 8 o'clock—Main subject, "Federal Aid." Report of committee appointed by the fifth annual irrigation congress to promote enactment of the Jones federal aid bill by the congress of the United States. O. Laurgaard, chairman; address, Robert E. Strahorn, developer of Central Oregon; recess.

Friday, January 5.

"Success of the Ochoco District Bond Issue"; H. H. De Armond, Bend; recess.

Afternoon session, 1:30 o'clock—Call to order; main subject, "Needs of Oregon Irrigation Projects"; report of the secretary, F. N. Wallace, Tumalo; address, Dr. C. J. Smith, Portland. "Application of Federal Rural Credits Law to Irrigation in Oregon"; address, T. R. Kay, state treasurer and chairman state land board. "Operation of the State Land Board in Relation to the Jones Rural Credits Law"; "Irrigation Progress in Upper Deschutes," J. E. Morson, Portland; "Irrigation Progress in Crook County," Roscoe Howard, Deschutes; "Irrigation Progress in Harney County," C. R. McConnell, Burns; "Irrigation Progress in Union County" (speaker not named); recess.

Evening session, 8 o'clock—Call to order; main subject, "Financing of Irrigation Projects"; address, Rawles Moore, of Medford. "Attitude of Eastern Investors Toward Irrigation Bonds"; address, John A. Keating, president Lumbermen's Trust company, Portland. "Attitude of Investors Toward Irrigation Bonds"; recess.

Saturday, January 6.
 Morning session, 9 o'clock—Call to order; main subject, "Co-operation With Federal Departments to Assist Oregon Irrigation Development"; address, E. F. Benson, president Washington Irrigation Institute; W. Lair Thompson, Lakeview, chairman legislative committee, Oregon irrigation congress; John Lewis, state engineer, Salem; address, Arthur Hooker, secretary national irrigation congress, El Paso, Tex.; recess.

Afternoon session, 1:30 o'clock—Call to order; address, C. L. Smith, agriculturist O. W. R. R. & N. company. "The Use and Misuse of Water"; report of committee on resolutions; election of officers; adjournment.

Saturday Evening, January 6.
 Banquet, Portland Chamber of Commerce, O. M. Clark, president; C. C. Chapman, toastmaster. Guests will gather in the lobby of the Multnomah hotel for informal reception at 6 o'clock; banquet on mezzanine floor at 6:30 p. m.; admission by tickets. Tickets will be given to speakers, delegates and guests by a representative of the Chamber of Commerce.
