

REWARD IS OFFERED GRASSHOPPER SLAYER

Argentine Congress May Appropriate $200,000 for Extermination of Insect Crop Destroyers.

(By United Press to The Daily Bulletin) BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 6.—Minister of Agriculture Monorio Puerrydon wants congress to appropriate 1,000,000 francs (about $200,000 United States money) to be given as a prize to anybody who supplies Argentina with an effective scheme for exterminating grasshoppers, or locusts, as they are locally known.

The pest here is nearly as bad as in Kansas and other western parts of the United States for a few seasons 20 or 30 years ago. Crops this year have suffered enormously from the grasshoppers' appetites.

Congress favors the appropriation, but many members think the minister has set the figure too high. Puerrydon insists on the sum he has mentioned and may get it. He refers to it in francs rather than in pesos because, for some reason, he seems to think the prize's chief appeal will be to Europe.

As a matter of fact, the Argentine government has had one unsatisfactory experience of the kind with an European. This was a celebrated French export named Herelle, who made a contract in 1911 to wipe out the pest, and devoted three years to attempts to do it, without accomplishing much. D'Herelle's version, however, was that he would have succeeded but for the interference of the agricultural defense department of the ministry, which, he said, wanted as many grasshoppers as possible, in order to make jobs for the maximum number of departmental defenders against their activities.

REDMOND GETS MUCH OF THE BLAME

(Continued from Page 1.) forest lines exclusively for forest business, but a desire to allow the telephone equipment to be put to use by people having no other means of wire communication, has prompted the change, Mr. Hastings says. No charges will be made aside from switching fees, and the expense of installation.

As soon as the fire season opens, the privilege will be discontinued, for the number of calls from rangers during that season reaches so high a point that there is no time for private calls over the single wire.

The innovation, Mr. Hastings emphasizes, is in no sense competition with the established telephone company, but will rather prove a means of residents of isolated points making connection with the company lines.

GREAT POPULARITY BEING ENJOYED BY AUSTRALIAN BOXER

By C. C. Hamilton.

United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—When Les Darcy sailed into New York harbor aboard the big oil steamship Cushing he knew his arrival at the Battery was being awaited with great interest in New York. The wireless had told him that. But the Australian marvel was wholly unprepared for the reception with which he was greeted when he started up Broadway to his hotel.

The usual crowd of newspaper men and photographers were on hand at the pier when the tug puffed alongside, but Darcy didn't tarry there long. He was bundled into a taxicab and taken to his hotel, where a real reception was staged. Guests at the hotel had been warned in advance of the arrival there of Darcy and he was greeted accordingly. Visitors crowded into his room to see the velvety muscles and development of the man who has beaten nearly every opponent with marvelous ease.

Darcy's first night in New York was just one cheer after another. He was cheered by the street boys, who quickly recognized him as he left his hotel. A few blocks away in Madison Square Garden, New York's annual six-day bicycle race was in progress and the youthful pugilist was taken there for an introduction. When the announcer mounted his stand and started to tell the audience he started something. His closing words were never heard, for the people had begun to cheer and they kept it up constantly while Darcy was in the hall.

New Yorkers have wanted a boxer of Darcy's proportions to cheer for a long time and they didn't stint their feelings. The fact that the pugilist had run away from military service cooled their ardor until the afternoon newspapers came out with the declaration that Darcy intended to return to Great Britain and enlist. Anyway, the New York fight public has grown used to Freddie Welsh, who isn't worrying any about the fate of his country, and they were quick to forget that Darcy had slipped away from recruiting officers.

If Darcy wins his first fight in the United States, he will be the most popular man in the fistful world. He will be ready to start the process of getting just as rich as he can, as quickly as he can.

U. S. MOVES WATCHED

BERLIN, Jan. 6.—The discussion by the Congress at Washington, of American international relations, following the exchange of peace communications, has resulted in the belief in some quarters that Germany, the United States and the Allies are drifting together, rather than that the United States and the Allies are cooperating toward peace.

LACQUER FINISHED ARTICLES ARE NOW IN HIGHEST FAVOR

By Margaret Mason

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Every Yiddish artist in New York is kept busy these days turning out "genuine real old antique Chinese lacquer," tables, chairs, mirror frames, desks, cabinets, bedsteads, and what not.

To be sure, there are a great many true Chinese pieces also, for the astute Chinaman, taking advantage of the forced stoppage of imports from belligerent countries having simply swamped our market with the glories of their arts, consequently Chinese lacquers and embroideries are to be met with at every turn for the better or turn to the right.

But with such avidity have the American lovers of the beautiful gobbled up the wares from China that the Chinese can fill only a few chinks of the popular demand. Hence the abundance of homegrown or Hebraic lacquers that defy detection even when placed alongside an original. After all, they too are redolent of the east even if it is only the East side. The most popular lacquer is in the gold on black or red, but old blue or a soft grey green is also very effective. Whole rooms are lovely done in lacquer and especially bedrooms and dining rooms, with Chinese rugs and Chinese embroideries to carry out the Oriental atmosphere. Lacquer floor lamps are beautiful with pagoda shaped shades of silk and the lacquer mirrors beggar description. Certainly anyone holding the mirror up to nature ought to be sure it is a lacquer one.

Set a serene and wise-eyed Buddha on a lacquer stand and back him up with a Chinese mirror on the wall, and you have an artistic touch in your living room that is hard to beat this side of the Chinese wall.

There are lacquer candle sticks and lacquer trays, after seeing which you will exclaim "the Deuce take all other trays." There are lacquer screens to screen fires and boudoir secrets and lacquer picture frames fittingly beautiful to encase Him or Her.

When it comes to boxes, this is where lacquer really shines, especially when it is built to enshrine different sorts of shoe polish or my lady's jewels. For holding things that go up in smoke, like coal, wood, cigarettes, cigars or love letters, lacquer boxes are alluring in all shapes and sizes. From the head to the foot of the box class, hat boxes and shoe boxes of lacquer sell with alacrity.

Work boxes, candy boxes and powder boxes are so lovely of lacquer, that even Pandora herself would have been so entranced with their external beauties that she never would have yearned to see what was inside. Even Victrolas are all dressed up in black and gold, or red and gold lacquer cases, until they have become veritable Chinese music boxes, with everything except, thank heavens, the music, Chinese.

LLOYD-GEORGE'S HEAD IS BECOMING LARGER

(By United Press to The Daily Bulletin)

LONDON, Jan. 6.—Lloyd-George's head is a growing institution. Prof. J. Millett Severn, a consulting phrenologist, examined the British premier's head back in 1903 and found it to measure nearly 23 inches around the "perceptives." A later examination showed that the lapse of years had increased the circumference more than a quarter of an inch.

"This goes to prove that as the mind is exercised the brain and head are subject to a larger development," said Professor Severn. "This growth can continue after the subject has reached the adult age."

When he examined Lloyd-George's head the second time, Severn told the present premier of the development. His judgment was borne out by the man who makes the leader's hat. He said Lloyd-George was taking a larger bonnet than before. Severn has not had an opportunity to examine the premier's head since the new cabinet was formed.

At the Movies Bend Theatre. Tomorrow and Monday, the Bend Theatre has two well known movie stars to offer, Mae Murray, whose last appearance in Bend was in "Sweet Kitty Ballares," and Theodore Roberts, in "The Dream Girl." Romance and adventure, the meeting of low life and high life form the dominant elements in this feature. Mae Murray plays the part of a girl born in the slums, her young life surrounded by handicaps on every side. In spite of her birth and environment the girl has a love for everything beautiful and artistic. Just at the moment when fate seems to have dealt her a most unkind blow she is brought in contact with better surroundings. The girl's father, an inveterate drunkard, appears most unexpectedly at a moment when she seems at last to free herself from her early life and become the wife of a wealthy young man who is deeply in love with her. Although she loves him very dearly, she bravely decides that her duty is to her unfortunate and unworthy father. Her spirit of sacrifice touches the callous soul of her father and in a flash he sees himself as the wretched creature he is and he decides to withdraw himself from her life. The young people marry and even the wretched father is taken care of.

Hazel Dawn was one of the most talked of movie actresses during the last summer. She appears Tuesday and Wednesday nights at the Bend Theatre, in "Under Cover." With Hazel Dawn appears Owen Moore, Mary Pickford's husband.

If you were a young woman, born into the smartest set in New York society, if your younger sister had committed a crime; if in order to save her, you were forced to become a secret agent of the United States customs to aid in the detection of a man who had smuggled a $200,000 necklace into this country—if you fell in love with the smuggler you were compelled to pursue; if it became a choice between your sister and the man you loved, what would you do? If you were a man who had smuggled a necklace through the customs; if you had suspected that some one of the government agents was on your trail; if you learned that the girl you loved was trying to send you to prison; if you were compelled to fight her, what would you do?

These are the absorbing elements that are thrillingly and dramatically answered in the Famous Players Film company's elaborate production of the recent stage sensation, "Under Cover," Tuesday and Wednesday. The stirring elements of this celebrated drama have been woven into a photoplay of excitement, mystery, surprise, love and laughter, that is yet not without its tear.

Grand Theatre.

"The Man From Bitter Roots" is a story of the big outdoors, portrayed by William Farnum, a big man of the big out doors, and will be seen Sunday night at the Grand Theatre. William Farnum takes the part of a miner, Bruce Burt. Bruce starts out on a hunt for the sister of his former partner in the mining camp, to give her the share of gold dust due her. In the search he tells his story to another man, T. V. Sprudell, who finds the girl, gives her $500, which, he says, is the share due her from the mine, and starts the Bitter Roots Mining company, for himself.

Then Bruce turns up. He has learned of the scheme of the unscrupulous financier, and he is determined to foil it. He finds the girl, tells her the true story, and forms a partnership with her. They determine to fight Sprudell, and regain ownership of the mine. A new plant goes up on the Bitter Roots Mining company property. It belongs to Bruce and Helen. But it is scarcely completed when a devastating fire sweeps the land, destroys the building, and leaves the place in ruins. Everything has gone against Bruce. At a great sacrifice, Helen goes to Bruce's father, a wealthy ranchman, from whom he has been estranged. The purity and goodness of the girl, and her earnest pleas for the son, wins the old man, and father and son are reunited. The Bitter Roots Mining company is reestablished, and Helen becomes general manager of more things than a mine.

Tonight Helen Holmes will be featured in "Medicine Bend," an unusually interesting and scenic railroad and mining camp photoplay.
