National monument status due for 'Fort Rock Cave'

Special to The Bulletin
FORT ROCK — Plans are under way here for special ceremonies to set aside the famed "Fort Rock Cave" as a national monument. The observance is tentatively scheduled sometime during the week of June 17.

A Fort Rock Grange committee headed by Mrs. Maurice Ward will assist Mr. and Mrs. R. A. (Rube) Long in plans for the occasion. W. Ward Yeager, superintendent of Crater Lake National Park, will present both a bronze marker and a certificate of registration to the Longs.

The cave, located in Nigger Heel Butte, about a mile and a half from the well known landmark, "Fort Rock," is on the Rube Long property, with access to be made available to the public.

Growers busy with seeding

Special to The Bulletin
PRINEVILLE — Crook county potato growers moved rapidly into their fields as the week began, taking advantage of every hour without rainfall to get their seed into the ground, according to a survey of spud growers Tuesday.

Planting for the 1963 crop is about a week late, due to the unusually wet spring. It was generally agreed. Some growers reported problems with pre-cut seed, which they had cut as much as two weeks ago to be ready for the normal planting date and which they had been forced to hold over as the rains continued.

About 2000 acres is expected to be planted in potatoes in Crook county this year, according to a spokesman in the county agricultural office.

The county office also reports that weed-spraying along roadsides in the county has begun this week by the county weed control employees. Crook county maintains a weed-control district for this purpose.
