Kenya sole British East African possession—won't be for long

By Jack Ensell
UPI Staff Writer
NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI)—The erstwhile colony of Kenya is Britain's sole remaining possession on the East African seaboard, and it won't be for long. In three-day parliamentary elections which end Saturday (May 18), it took the first step to become an independent member of the family of nations.

Comparison of 4 U.S. space flights given

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—All four U.S. astronauts who completed orbital flights encountered at least some difficulty in space. Here is a comparison of their flights:

John H. Glenn Jr.
Near the end of the first of his three orbits on Feb. 20, 1962, signals indicated that the heat shield had separated from the base of the capsule. This raised the threat of a flaming death on re-entry. In order to hold the heat shield in place it was decided not to jettison the retro-rocket pack and he made a safe re-entry. Later it was determined that the signals had been faulty and there had been no heat shield danger.

M. Scott Carpenter
Carpenter completed three orbits on May 24, 1962. He ran out of fuel for his automatic system just before re-entry and he had to line up his capsule by manual control. As a result, his retro-rockets fired late and he overshot his landing area by 250 miles.

Walter M. Schirra Jr.
His capsule performed almost without a flaw but after the first of his six orbits on Oct. 3, 1962, he encountered a minor heat problem in his space suit. The heat in the suit rose to about 88 degrees but Schirra was able to correct the trouble quickly.

L. Gordon Cooper
Cooper, who completed 22.9 orbits Thursday, encountered trouble on his 20th orbit when his automatic control system went out. Like Carpenter he had to line up his capsule for re-entry by manual control. But his timing was right on the beam and he landed within 7,000 yards of his rescue ship.
