

DAZZLING DECORATIONS—Countless fascinating articles can be made from salvaged tin cans, it was proved by exhibit of Needles and Pine extension unit, Sisters, at the Homemakers Fair yesterday. Mrs. Fred Painter, member of unit, shows some of trinkets.

SERVICE CARRY-ALLS—Fabric bags for carrying plate and silverware, called "potluck packers," were made on the spot by members of the Cascade extension unit, Redmond, at Homemakers Fair. Mrs. Wayne Crosswhite and Mrs. Donald Reding show technique.

Newton, Rhoda lose Jefferson school posts

Special to The Bulletin
MADRAS — Existing unexpired contracts with Gerald Newton, superintendent of the old Madras elementary school district 509C and Carl Rhoda, superintendent of the former Madras union high school district U-1 were terminated this week after a meeting of the new district 509J board with the two administrators.

After reaching financial settlement the existing contracts, two years for Rhoda and four years for Newton were terminated. Rhoda then resigned from the post and the following day announced that he had accepted a position as superintendent of the 12 grade school district at Oakridge. After Newton's four year contract was terminated, the board signed Newton to a one year contract at his present salary and then placed him on a leave of absence at half pay.

Louis Kowolowski, 509J board chairman, said after the meeting that termination of the contracts was asked of the two superintendents because as a result of unification of the district there were no longer posts for two superintendents in the unified district.

Stating that both men were of approximately equal ability and both had records of long duration in the district and because the board wished to play no favorites, the board chairman reported it was the consensus of the district board that interests of the district would best be served through starting out the new district with a new superintendent. The board is currently discussing qualifications desired in the new administrator and will soon accept applications for the post in the 12 grade district that includes the former Gateway, Metolius and Madras elementary school districts and the Madras union high school district.
