Foes of power preference plan appear set for delaying tactics

WASHINGTON (UPI)— House opponents of a Senate bill giving the Pacific Northwest preference of power produced from Columbia River dams appeared set today to employ delaying tactics in an effort to kill the measure.

Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Calif., for example, succeeded Wednesday in delaying completion by the House reclamation subcommittee on the administration bill which would pave the way for construction of transmission lines to carry power from the Pacific Northwest to Los Angeles.

He failed, however, in an effort to turn the hearing into a wide-range probe of Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall's power policies.

An effort by Hosmer to question Udall on nuclear power plants was thwarted by objections from Rep. Jack Westland, R-Wash., one of the sponsors of the bill to guarantee the Pacific Northwest first call on power generated at federal dams in the area.

Hosmer, who questioned Udall for about an hour, succeeded in prolonging the hearing beyond the time the committee could sit.

Committee Chairman Walter Rogers, D-Tex., said he would seek unanimous consent for the committee to sit while the House was in session, but Hosmer and Rep. John P. Saylor, R-Pa., indicated they would object.

Hosmer repeated charges that Udall was seeking to gain control of the entire national power network.

After Hosmer had questioned Udall for about an hour, Rep. Harold T. Johnson, D-Calif., asked unanimous consent that each member be limited to 15 minutes.

Hosmer demanded a vote, contending that he should be allowed to continue because it dealt with "the future of American power and who's going to control it."

After losing on a 7-4 vote, Hosmer protested that a quorum was not present. Rogers, who had not voted, rejected the protest because the required 12 members were present.

Rep James A. Haley, D-Fla., at one point threatened to turn the hearing into a table-pounding shouting match when he demanded that Udall tell how much a federal intertie would cost.

"You don't seem to have any regard for coming here to tell the truth," he shouted when Udall replied that he would testify on the cost figures before the Appropriations Committee.

Udall insisted repeatedly that the Interior Department already had authority under existing law to build the 1,000-mile intertie. But he said the bill before the committee was intended to meet "legitimate objections" in the Pacific Northwest by giving the area first call on electricity generated at federal dams in the area.

Udall said he believed the first of several proposed interconnections should be built by the federal government, but insisted that a $24 million budget request also would make it possible to negotiate with private power companies for construction of other interties.

Parts of Texas under water after storms

By United Press International

Heavy thunderstorms, high winds and tornadoes left parts of Texas torn and under water today.

Rainstorms drubbed the wheat belt and fog shrouded highways across Pennsylvania and western New York.

More than one inch of rain soaked the Oklahoma Panhandle and central South Dakota in six hours during the night.

An estimated 10 inches of rain fell near Wellman, Tex., Thursday night. U.S. 62 was under four feet of water between Wellman and Seagraves.

Police helped some residents of Brownfield, Tex., from their homes when the deluge backed up drains and flooded streets.

The Weather Bureau reported 7 inches of rainfall south of Abilene, Tex., and amounts ranging from 4½ to 5 inches in Abilene itself.

A tornado and 100 mile per hour winds hit the town of Balmorhea in far southwestern Texas Thursday night. The storm uprooted nearly all utility poles, twisted trees from the ground and left water standing 4 feet deep in some parts of the downtown area. A home was unroofed and a drive-in movie screen was toppled.

Showers also fell through the Pacific Northwest and in Florida. Nearly one inch of rain was reported in east central Florida.

Fog extended from northeastern Ohio through Pennsylvania and into western New York. Motorists travelling along the shore of Lake Ontario in New York were warned of the treacherous fog after eight of the state's holiday highway fatalities occurred along a 70-mile stretch of U.S. 104.

THUMB REPLACES CAR

JOPLIN, Mo. (UPI) — Robert E. Taylor, 18, and Dennis Raum, 17, of Gladbrook, Iowa, were collared by police Wednesday for driving an unlicensed car officers considered unsafe because it had been cut off from the windows up, had no muffler, was in bad mechanical condition and the front door lay in the back seat.

The boys said they had paid $25 for the car during an unsuccessful job hunting trip. Police agreed to release them if they sold the car.

The youths were paid an undisclosed sum by a junk dealer and headed home—hitchhiking.

Johnson urges racial accord

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson believes whites and Negroes must work together to solve racial tensions because "it is not our respective races which are at stake—it is our nation."

In a major address on race relations, Johnson Thursday urged both races to resolve their problems within the law and "lead the way through this moment of challenge and decision."

His Memorial Day speech reflected the administration's growing concern over racial conflicts.

Johnson said there is no other way out of the present crisis than for both sides to work together.

"One hundred years ago, the slave was freed," he said. "One hundred years later, the Negro remains in bondage to the color of his skin.

"The Negro today asks justice. We do not answer him—we do not answer those who lie beneath this soil—when we reply to the Negro by asking, 'patience.'

"It is empty to plead that the solution to the dilemmas of the present rests on the hands of the clock. The solution is in our hands. Unless we are willing to yield up our destiny of greatness among the civilizations of history, Americans — white and Negro together—must be about the business of resolving the challenge which confronts us now," Johnson said.

"Our nation found its soul in honor on these fields of Gettysburg one hundred years ago. We must not lose that soul in dishonor now on the fields of hate."

Jimmy's wife got carried away on plans

By Vernon Scott
UPI Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)— When Jimmy Durante returned from a recent personal appearance tour he pulled up in front of his home and discovered a catastrastroke.

His old homestead had been leveled to the ground.

"The only thing still standing was the chimney and the swimmin' pool," the Schnozz cried out, obviously still in shock. "You coulda knocked me over with a ton of feathers."

Sure enough, Jimmy's home for more than 30 years in Beverly Hills, had been demolished as thoroughly as Jimmy destroys pianos.

"The first thing I do is look up my wife Marge, and I say to her, 'Marge, what's going on here? I turn my back and look what happens! No house! And Marge tells me she can explain. But I still don't understand the explanation."

Nose Knows

Durante stroked his nose, more from affection than out of contemplation. It seemed to give him strength to continue his story.

"Before I left town Marge says we need another bedroom in the house for our baby, Cecelia Alicia, who is now two years old. I says 'okay. Knock down a couple walls and add a bedroom.'

"But she got carried away. With the help of some bulldozers my little Marge knocked down every wall in the jernt. She tells me it was impossible to extend to the back door without knocking down the back of the house.

"So I says, 'why didn't you extend to the front?' And she says, "'we couldn't extend to the front without knocking down the whole front of the house.'

"It looks like they compromised and pulled down everything just to be sure there was enough space to add another room."

Too Small Anyhow

Jimmy buried his nose in a hot cup of tea, muttering something about Inkas and Dinks and Dos. His swing around the country included an appearance on the Perry Como television show, probably at the very moment his own video antenna was being dismantled.

"Maybe it's a good thing they tore down the house," Durante sighed.

"After all it was only a three-bedroom place. For a home in Beverly Hills that looks very bad. To tell the truth, I used to hear my neighbors grumble about having a house like that in such a nice community."

FOG DELAYS FLIGHTS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fog delayed at least 70 flights in and out of Idlewild and LaGuardia airports Wednesday. The delays were expected to continue throughout the day.
