Trap club holds big PITA shoot

Scattergun enthusiasts from all over the state, some of them among the Northwest's outstanding shooters, are in Bend for the annual "Memorial Day" shoot, today and Sunday at the Bend Trap Club. The public is invited to view the contests, and there is no admission charge. About 125 trap shooters are participating.

A special attraction will be a 50-bird handicap under lights, to get under way this evening at about 8:30 or 9 o'clock. Activity Sunday will start at 9 a.m., to continue through the afternoon. Today's contests started at 10 a.m.

This is a registered PITA shoot, with participants vying for some $1500 in prize money, plus trophies and some $600 in merchandise prizes.

Two hundred clay birds are targets for today, plus doubles. The Jim Morris memorial handicap will be this afternoon.

Scheduled for tomorrow are the 16-yard target shoot and the Neelan Gilbert memorial shoot, a 100 handicap.

Villanova rates favorites in IC4A track test

NEW YORK (UPI)—Villanova was a heavy favorite to capture its fourth straight team title in the IC4A track and field championships today although the Wildcats may face unexpected opposition from Maryland and Manhattan.

Maryland produced the big surprise of Friday's round by topping the field of 49 schools with 13 qualifiers, including its mile relay team. Villanova and Manhattan shared the runner-up spot, each placing nine men and a relay team.

But not even Maryland coach Jim Kehoe was confident his team would come out ahead of powerful Villanova.

Best times in Friday's track events were turned in by Gerald Ashworth of Dartmouth and Bob Mattis of Manhattan in the 100-yard dash (9.8), Mattis in the 200 (21.5), Hubie Brown and Bob Bagley of Morgan State and Don Webster of Villanova in the 400 (48.2), Frank Tomoe of Fordham in the 800 (1:52), Bill Flippin of Yale and Larry Livers of Villanova in the 120-yard high hurdles (14.5) and Chris Stauffer of Maryland in the 440-yard high hurdles (53.1).

Salt Lake City suffers 16th consecutive loss

By Ron Supinski
UPI Staff Writer

A $125,000 bonus pitcher, a former American Leaguer and a guy named Smith today were the pitching toasts of the Pacific Coast League.

And the goat? None other than sockless Salt Lake City which suffered its 16th loss in a row to come within one defeat of tying the PCL record for consecutive losses, set by Sacramento in 1925. Righthander Pete Smith set down Salt Lake with only two hits. The 23-year-old pitcher from Natick, Mass., fanned seven and walked two to bring his record to 5-4.

Stan Johnson doubled to score Smith with Seattle's run in the sixth inning. Smith had walked and advanced to second during a successful rundown of a Seattle player who was picked off second.

In other games Lew Krausse of Portland, signed by the Kansas City Athletics for an estimated $125,000, pitched a six-hitter in beating Spokane 9-2 and Dallas-Ft. Worth's Lee Stange, who had a 4-3 record with the Minnesota Twins last season, shut out Hawaii 4-0 on five hits.

Rain forced postponement of the San Diego at Oklahoma City game.

Outfielder Ken Harrelson of Portland socked a homer, double and two singles to drive in three runs. Portland's Ron Debus also collected four hits, including a triple and double. Gene Wallace hit a bases empty homer for Spokane in the ninth.

Krausse, who evened his record at 4-4, struck out six and walked three in going the full route. Phil Ortega (2-4) was the starter and loser for Spokane. He was removed in the fourth inning when Debus singled off his leg.

Stange, a righthander, limited Hawaii to five hits in winning his fourth game against a single loss. Infielder Ray Bellino provided the plate punch for Dallas-Ft. Worth. He doubled home three runs in the fourth.

Dallas-Ft. Worth infielder Cesar Tovar singled in the first inning to stretch his consecutive game hitting streak to 22. The victory gave the Texans a half-game edge over second-place San Diego in

Better-than-par shooters to be '500' survivors

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI)—Par was no problem for contestants in the $55,000 "500" Open golf tournament today, and it appeared that only players who shot par or better for 36 holes will survive for the last two rounds.

In Friday's first round 74 pros and one amateur were par or better. After today's tour, the field will be trimmed to the low 75 pros and ties for the final two rounds.

Fred Hawkins, a non-winner on the tournament trail since 1956, set the early pace, coming in with a 64, seven strokes under regulation for the course and two swings under his closest competitor.

John Carmichael, a 23-year-old from Martinsville, Ind., made one of the best runs of the round to tie Hawkins, but could do no better than par on the final five holes and wound up with a second place 66.

USSERY WINS THREE

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bobby Ussery, the leading rider at Aqueduct, booted home three more winners Friday. He scored on Stygian Star ($14,200), Whittier ($6,000) and Casing ($5,300).

Don't tell Hodges about Mets' woes

By United Press International

Poor Gil Hodges. If he thought the New York Mets were the worst team in baseball he must be beginning to wonder about the woe-begone Washington Senators.

They have lost eight out of nine since Hodges officially took over as their manager on May 23. And the way they have lost some of those games would bring tears to the eyes of a hobbyhorse. Gil watched them lose their first game under him on a cheap homer. They dropped another one on a muffed infield pop-up and Friday night they went down to defeat again on a grand slam homer by the rival pitcher.

Orlando Pena was the fellow who did it, clouting his first major league home run during a six-run rally and pitching a five-hitter for good measure in leading the Kansas City A's to a 9-3 victory over the Senators.

Six Homers Hit

Pena, who had lost his last five games, struck out seven and did not walk a batter en route to his fifth victory. His fifth inning homer was one of six hit during the game.

Ed Charles and George Alusik also connected for KC while Larry Osborne, Don Lock and Jim King each homered for Washington. Don Rudolph was charged with his seventh defeat in 10 decisions.

Elsewhere in the American League, the New York Yankees climbed into a percentage tie for first place by blanking the Cleveland Indians 4-0; the Los Angeles Angels downed the Baltimore Orioles 7-4; the Detroit Tigers ended the Minnesota Twins' 10-game winning streak 3-1, and the Chicago White Sox shut out the Boston Red Sox 6-0.

In the National League, the St. Louis Cardinals shaded the San Francisco Giants 6-5, the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the New York Mets 2-0, the Chicago Cubs edged the Philadelphia Phillies 2-1, the Houston Colts beat the Milwaukee Braves 3-2, and the Cincinnati Reds downed the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-4.

Whitey Ford set down the Indians on three hits for his sixth victory as Tom Tresh and Elston Howard each hit two-run homers for the Yankees. Both blows came off Jim Grant, who lost his fifth game against three victories.

Ex-reliever Dan Osinski scored his third victory of the season and his first as a starter in the Angels' win over the Orioles, who dropped their third in a row. Rookie Charley Dees led off the fifth inning with a homer off loser Milt Pappas and the Angels clinched the outcome with two more runs in the same frame for a 7-2 lead. The loss was Pappas' first after four wins.

Hairy-chested men, big tobacco chewers a thing of the past

By Oscar Fraley
UPI Staff Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Time was when a major league ball player who wore eyeglasses was as rare as a set of dry tonsils at a brewer's convention—but not anymore.

The old rough and tumble crowd of the hairy chest and "chaw" had as much regard for the bespectacled player as it did for umpires. Theumps were the only ones supposed to wear them.

Nobody will ever know how many potentially great players were lost in the process.

Kids with specs stuck them in their pocket to keep from getting picked last or ignored completely when it came time to choose up sides. Thus they wound up playing an out-of-focus game to satisfy prejudice.

But those days are gone forever, according to August Nelson of the Better Vision Institute, and the facts bear him out.

Acceptance of players who wear glasses has been gradual through the years. Part of this is due to the fact that a better educated generation has taken over. But so intense, too, is scouting for young players with talent that they'll sign a guy who needs plate glass windows if he can find the plate or hit the ball.

Ryne Duren actually found his faulty vision an asset when he was the big relief man for the New York Yankees. Duren was one of the plate glass breed and he had to look hard to see the batter. Thus, when he cut loose his fast one in their general direction, nobody was taking a toe-hold against him just in case the pitch was erratic.

"Specs" Toporcer earned his nickname because he wore glasses in becoming a second baseman for the Cardinals. Eye-glasses kept him on the scene for years despite deteriorating vision before he finally lost his sight.

Phil Linz, the infield handyman of the Yankees, first was fitted for glasses during his rookie year at Kearney, Neb.

"Randy Gumpert, the manager, was hitting ground balls at me and I wasn't seeing them very well," he explained. "Then in night games I had trouble seeing pitches."

An eye man found a slight vision defect. Once fitted with glasses, Linz was on his way up to the big club.

Back in 1960, Frank Howard of the Dodgers was hitting over .400 when he was ordered by the front office to take an eye examination. The reason was that he was staggering around in the outfield under fly balls. His difficulty was myopia. He could see objects close by but not at a distance.

Another outfielder with the same problem was Leon Wagner of the Los Angeles Angels. He had the same defensive trouble while maintaining a lusty batting average.

A pitcher such as Ken MacKenzie of the Mets wouldn't think twice about having a sore arm treated. And he didn't think twice, either, when he found he needed glasses 15 years ago.

"I wore glasses playing hockey as well as baseball at Yale," he says. "People ask me if I'm not afraid of being hit by a batted ball. The answer is that glasses give me normal vision and help me avoid such accidents."

Phillies owner Bob Carpenter, a member of the board of the University of Delaware, heard there about optical tests to measure how fast a hitter's eye contracts when a fast ball is thrown to him. The test was given to the Rochester team and Carpenter said it "was terrific in spotting the good hitters."

Now, some fans might suggest, it's time to use it on the Phillies. Glasses there might well be the necessary answer.

REACHES TENNIS FINALS

SURBITON, England (UPI)—Darlene Hard of Los Angeles, the No. 1 United States player who plans to quit the game after the Wimbledon championships, meets Deirdre Catt of England today in the women's singles final of the Surrey lawn tennis championships.

They'll Do It Every Time

Elks, Brandis and Healy's gain Little League victories

Three decisive victories resulted from baseball play in the Bend Little Leagues yesterday evening.

In the National League, the Elks put together an all-around team effort to whip the Eagles 10-5 at Marshall Field.

Gary Wyatt pitched a five-hitter for the win. All five hits off of him however were collected by two individuals on the Eagles team.

Karry Thalhofer, the Eagles' tosser, got three hits for four times at bat, while Steve Bjorvik went two for three. One of Bjorvik's was a double.

Arlic Seemls led the victors when he went four for four.

Over at Harmon Field, the Brandis Little Leaguers put on a tremendous blast in a giant fourth inning to run roughshod over the Moose, 8-2.

Ron Storey went the distance on the hill for the victors, and limited the Moose to only two hits. The Moose's Bruce Westfall got both of them, rapping singles in the first and fourth innings.

In that giant Brandis fourth frame, Chris Wetle, Ron Storey, Jim Barnett and Bob Gotchy got single base hits off of Burl Flanery, Moose tosser.

Moose batters got their two tallies in the fourth inning, largely on the strength of a triple by Maurice Douglas. Burl Flanery went the distance for the losers and was credited with the loss.

An explosion in their half of the fifth inning, allowed Healy's Little Leaguers to pick up five runs, enough for a 5-4 margin over the VFW in the Cascade League.
