RODEO PRINCESS—Miss Carolyn Berg, sponsored by the Bend Elks, is a court member for the Central Oregon Junior Championship Rodeo, June 8-9 at Redmond. The queen will be named on the basis of ticket sales (60 per cent) and horsemanship (40 per cent.) Carolyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Berg, 1031 Jones Road, is a member of the 4-H Red Riders. She was a member of the court for the Spray Rodeo last week, placing second in sales.

An estimated 6,000 men stay off jobs

PORTLAND (UPI) — An estimated 6,000 members of two big lumber unions went on strike today in Oregon, Washington and California in a dispute over wages.

The strike was called against the giant U. S. Plywood Corp. and the St. Regis Timber Co. by the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) and the Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union (LSW.) Negotiations broke down Tuesday afternoon.

Eight operations of U. S. Plywood and five of the St. Regis firm were affected.

These two firms are members of the so-called "Big Six" which conducted negotiations with the unions separately from other lumber companies throughout the Douglas fir region.

No Indication

There was no immediate indication of when or if the strike would spread and what action the employer group might take. Representatives of the Big Six planned a meeting here this afternoon to discuss the situation.

A spokesman for the unions said negotiations were terminated with the two firms and "discontinued" against the other four large companies—Weyerhaeuser, Crown Zellerbach, International Paper and Rayonier.

Talks also were discontinued with the Timber Operators Council (TOC), which represents 196 separate operations from Alaska to Northern California. No strike against the TOC or the four large firms was planned at the time, a spokesman said.

Expired Saturday

Contracts between the employers and the unions expired last Saturday.

One company remained in negotiations with the unions — Scott Paper Co. Talks were scheduled for Thursday.

A LSW spokesman said talks would be carried on with Georgia-Pacific Corp. at "some future time." The company is not a member of the Big Six.

The IWA said it had scaled down its demands from a 40-cent hourly increase over three years to 35 cents. The LSW had asked 60 cents per hour over the three years.

Unions also sought pay for travel time and benefits in some job classifications. Harvey Nelson of the IWA said the employer group had offered in wages, 8.5 cents per hour for 1963, five cents for 1964 and 2.14 per cent in 1965. About 79,000 workers are in the two unions in the West.

Nelson indicated this would be a "selective" strike — that is, against those employers which are able to withstand a strike.

The last general strike was in 1954.

No Immediate Action

A spokesman for the Big Six said no action was planned immediately to meet the strike. However, he said that the members would meet today to plan a course of action. He said it was not known if a lock-out was planned by the four members of the management group not being struck.

About 6,000 workers in both unions were involved in the strike. The IWA was striking U.S. Plywood operations in Reedsport, Eugene, Roseburg, Willamina and Mapleton in Oregon and Seattle, Wash.; and St. Regis operations in Olympia and two at Tacoma, Wash.

The LSW was striking U.S. Plywood at Lebanon, Ore., and Redding, Calif., and St. Regis at Morton and Seattle, Wash.

Moslems spark riot against Iranian regime

Some 230,000

Mourners file past body of Pope John

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Hundreds of thousands of persons filed through St. Peter's Basilica today to pay a final tribute to Pope John XXIII.

Within eight hours after the great doors of the massive church had been flung open, an estimated 230,000 mourners had moved past the red-draped catafalque where the late pontiff's body lay in state.

Even as the mighty crowd paid its last respects, the church machinery for choosing a new pope began its operation. The Vatican announced that the College of Cardinals will meet June 19 to begin selection of a successor to John XXIII. Many of the 82 cardinals were in Rome, and others were on their way from all over the world.

Simultaneously, the Vatican newspaper Osservatore Romano published excerpts from the late Pope's diary in which he frequently expressed his complete submission to the will of God and commented on his hopes for the Ecumenical Council which he called to bring the church into step with modern times and to work for union of all Christianity. The council was suspended automatically with his death Monday, and it will be up to his successor to decide whether to reconvene it.

Huge Crowd Gathered

By the time the doors were opened at 8 a.m., more than 10,000 persons had gathered in St. Peter's Square, their numbers stretching across its cobblestones.

Soviets tell space plans

WARSAW (UPI) — Soviet plans to launch an unspecified number of spacecraft this year—after a 10-month break in manned space flights—were announced Tuesday to an East-West space meeting here.

Prof. Anatoly Blagonravov, head of the department of technical sciences at the U.S.S.R. Academy of Sciences and a space rocket expert, made the announcement but gave no exact dates or details.

He was reporting to the International Committee for Outer Space Research (COSPAR). Dr. Richard Porter, chief of the U.S. delegation, also reported on American space plans.

Western observers said Blagonravov's report, although vaguely worded, was the most specific disclosure made by the Soviets thus far on their space plans for 1963.

They have announced no manned flights since the double flight last August of Andrian Nikolayev and Pavel Popovich, who completed 64 and 48 orbits respectively.

Blagonravov told the COSPAR delegates that the manned space shots during 1963 would be supplemented by two unmanned shots toward Venus and Mars and more launchings of small space satellites.

Many had waited all night to pay their last respects to the peasant farmer's son who had become the Pope of peace and had captured the imagination and admiration of the world in a reign of slightly more than 4½ years.

The throng, many of whom had waited outside in the rain, moved past the body 20 abreast at a rate of nearly 30,000 an hour. For the first time the Vatican ordered St. Peter's kept open all night for the mass tribute to the man who had shattered so many Vatican traditions.

By the time the doors of the church closed again Thursday night, additional hundreds of thousands will have passed by the body.

There was little time for those who passed the bier in an unending stream — men in black ties, women in veils, nuns and priests in their habits—to do more than cross themselves before they passed on.

Women brought their children for a final look. Others dropped a single rose or small bouquet of flowers as they passed. Many were in tears.

Vendors Sell Pictures

Outside, street vendors sold mementoes and pictures of the late Pope and black veils for women.

The catafalque on which the body of Pope John rested is the same one used for Pope Pius XII in 1958. It has been inclined more, however, to permit a better view of the body, which is held in place by bands of silk across the chest and knees.

At the sides of the catafalque are four Noble guards, four secret superintendents, four Swiss guards and four Palatine guards.

Commencement planned by COC Saturday night

Central Oregon College will hold its ninth annual commencement exercises Saturday evening, June 8, at 8 p.m. in the Bend High School auditorium. Dr. Roland Bartel, associate dean of the University of Oregon school of liberal arts, will be the speaker.

The public is invited to attend, and tickets will not be required. Faculty members and candidates for degree will wear colorful caps, gowns and hoods.

Twenty-four students will receive the associate of arts degree and 14 students will receive the associate of science degree. Seventeen students who are completing the practical nursing program will also participate.

The Rev. Richard Knutzen, pastor of First Lutheran Church, will give the invocation and benediction. Owen Panner, chairman of the COC area board of education, will present degrees. The college choir, under the direction of Dallas Quick, will sing.

Awards and scholarships will be announced and presented.

BILL WILSON

Chamber forum due on Friday

Bill Wilson, an officer of the advertising agency that handles Oregon's and Deschutes county's out-of-state advertising, will be speaker at the Bend Chamber of Commerce forum luncheon Friday noon at the Pine Tavern. His subject will be, "Observations on Watching the Tourists go by."

Persons planning to attend are asked to make reservations at the Chamber office.

Wilson is vice-president of Cole & Weber, Inc., of Portland. He acts as account supervisor and creative group director. Formerly a radio writer, he received a gold medal from Freedom Foundation for "contributions to a better understanding of the American way of life."

A native of The Dalles, he was a member of The Dalles High football team that defeated Bend in 1935 and got beat by the Lava Bears the next year. He attended Willamette University, and received a degree from the University of Oregon in 1946. In 1942, as a member of the UO swim team, he won the Pacific Northwest intercollegiate fancy diving championship.

He spent three and a half years in the Army service forces. There he edited Army newspapers and wrote Army radio shows.

He began his advertising career in 1946, and went to Cole & Weber in 1953, as account executive. He became vice-president in 1961, and director of the creative group in 1962. Advertising accounts he supervises include those of First National Bank of Oregon, Hyster Company and Northwest Natural Gas Company.

The local program is in observance of Oregon Welcome Week.

Castro renews attack on U.S.

HAVANA (UPI) — Premier Fidel Castro, sporting Soviet medals picked up during his 37-day tour of Russia, said Tuesday night U. S.-Cuban relations can be "normalized" — if the Americans will deal on Communist terms.

In a 3½-hour telecast, Castro denounced "clowns and demagogues" in the United States who insist that his revolutionary regime must break with Russia as a prelude to negotiations with Washington.

"If they (the Americans) want to talk with us, they must give up the idea that we must break our ties with the Communist bloc," he said.

"We are Communists... How are we going to break with our friends in order to talk with our enemies?"

Castro wore green army fatigues as usual, with the badges of the Order of Lenin and Hero of the Soviet Union pinned to the left breast pocket. The medals were awarded to him during his tour.

Premier says maximum 20 dead, injured

By Joseph Mazandi

UPI Staff Writer

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Religious rioters stormed through the center of Tehran today in an apparent bid to topple the government. But Shah Reza Mohammed Pahlavi's troops smashed the insurgent ranks with tanks and machine gun fire.

Premier Assadollah Alam, who ordered a "ruthless" suppression of the rioting, told United Press International "a maximum of 20 persons were killed and injured" in the fighting.

However, late today machine gun fire still echoed through the rubble-strewn and burning streets of Tehran's bazaar area, which is the heart of the city and the birthplace of past Persian assassinations and revolutions.

Whip Up Mobs

Government spokesmen said Moslem leaders whipped up the mobs in order to block the Shah's land reform and women suffrage programs. Screaming and waving the rioters ripped through the bazaar area and ran into the troops.

The troops did not fire above their heads. But at first the mob did not stop.

I saw them running directly into the bullets of the troops. It appeared obvious the rioters really seemed to think they had Tehran in their hands as they braved the bullets.

But the troops in the American-supplied heavy tanks showed they meant business. I saw the troops coolly take aim and fire.

I saw one man drop dead right in front of me.

Rolls Past Him

I recoiled and a second rioter rolled past me, leaving a trail of blood.

Still the rioters came. And still the troops fired.

It seemed a miracle no more were killed.

Passersby caught in the bazaar dashed off, not daring to stop to aid the wounded.

When the firing stopped and the smoke cleared away, the troopers were there. But the rioters were gone.

It was a full 30 minutes before the bazaar's inhabitants crept back. They carefully spread newspapers over the dead.

Arrest Religious Leader

The rioting broke out following the arrest of Moslem religious leader Rouhollah Khomeini. He was arrested after similar riots Tuesday.

Seven rows of machine gun-equipped troops lined up in front of the palace of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, whose land reforms and political changes including giving women the right to vote are bitterly opposed by the old line, conservative religious groups and landlords.

Other troops cordoned off all major roads leading to the palace and other government buildings.

All government offices were closed and the city took on the appearance of a besieged fortress.

Minister of State Jahanir Tafazzoli told United Press International, "So far we have received no definite report of any deaths having occurred in today's riots."

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — President Kennedy, speaking at the Air Force Academy commencement, today announced a government decision to go ahead with development of a supersonic commercial transport plane capable of traveling at more than twice the speed of sound.

Kennedy interpolated the supersonic plane decision in his prepared speech to the Air Force graduating class.

Off Golden Gate One dead, 43 saved in ship collision

ABOARD CUTTER COMANCHE (UPI)—Crew members of a Japanese freighter took to lifeboats today after their ship collided in dense fog with a U.S. refrigerated ship 35 miles off San Francisco's Golden Gate.

One crewman of the Japanese ship Kokoku Maru was killed, but the 43 others were plucked from bobbing lifeboats by two Coast Guard cutters. Three of the 43 were injured.

The second ship involved in Tuesday night's collision, the Military Sea Transportation Service vessel Asterion, headed for San Francisco Bay but developed an oil leak and stopped off the Golden Gate.

Two tugs put a line aboard the 6,245-ton Kokoku Maru and took her under tow. The vessel had a gash 30 feet wide and 45 feet high on its starboard side.

The vessels collided at 10:05 p.m. PDT, five miles off Point Reyes, 35 miles north of San Francisco. The 7,771-ton Asterion was en route to San Francisco from the Far East. The Japanese vessel left San Francisco earlier Tuesday for Japan.

Very Little Visibility

The Coast Guard said that visibility was a quarter of a mile when its rescue vessels arrived on the scene. The Kokoku Maru was dead in the water, and listing to starboard. The Asterion had a large hole above the waterline on the bow but was not taking water.

Jaycees set canine derby on July 27

Entry blanks are now available in three locations for youngsters who wish to enter their dogs in the first annual Jaycee Pot-hound Preakness, slated Saturday, July 27 at the Municipal Ball Park.

The blanks may be picked up either at the city police station or in the offices of Doctors W. D. Ward or James E. Hoffman, veterinarians. The number of dogs to race will be limited to the number of racing blankets distributed. A youngster who registers early has greater assurance of getting a blanket.

Only dogs of Deschutes County youngsters, or families with a youngster between the ages of 6 and 16, may compete. Each dog must have a current rabies certificate and be examined by a licensed veterinarian of Deschutes County.

A $1 entry fee will be paid to the veterinarian at time of examination, and turned over to the Junior Chamber of Commerce. No greyhounds, miniature greyhounds or whippets will be eligible for competition. Prizes will be awarded following each race.

Junior Rodeo queen choice due tonight

Special to The Bulletin

REDMOND — Queen of the Central Oregon Junior Championship Rodeo, to be held June 8-9 at the Deschutes County fairgrounds in Redmond, will be selected this evening by a panel of judges at the fairgrounds.

One of four princesses will receive the title on the basis of horsemanship, personality, appearance and ticket sales. Contestants are Carolyn Berg, Bend; Vivian Liston, Redmond; Linda Munkres, Prineville, and Karen Krebs, Madras.

The queen's identity will be revealed Friday evening at the queen's ball, scheduled to begin at 9 o'clock in the Redmond Grange Hall. Wes Tittle and his Tri-County Boys will provide music.

More than 100 young contestants from Oregon, Idaho, Washington and California have signed up for junior and senior events. Bulk of the proceeds will go to aid the Central Oregon School for Retarded Children, according to the Redmond Veterans of Foreign Wars and Redmond Lions Club, co-sponsors.

There also will be a rodeo breakfast Sunday from 7 until 10 a.m., to be sponsored by the Redmond Recreation Council to raise funds for the summer recreation program. The meal will be served at the Buckaroo Breakfast site on the fairgrounds.

Rodeo events will begin at 1 p.m. both Saturday and Sunday. Top award of the rodeo, the trophy saddle, has been on display in Central Oregon towns for the past few weeks. Scores of other prizes are being provided by local businesses and individuals.

Judges of horse riding and senior events have been selected from Silver Lake and Klamath Falls, reports Ed Ivory, chairman of the Junior Rodeo Association.

College plans are approved

SALEM (UPI) — Detailed plans for the construction of a science center for Central Oregon College were approved today by the State Board of Education.

The emergency board has obligated $225,000 for the project.

Discusses lessons of Cuban crisis

Kennedy begins 5-day tour in West

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI)—President Kennedy said today the Cuban crisis last fall demonstrated that military policy and power must be tied closely to political and diplomatic decisions in the future.

"Whatever the military motives and implications of that reckless attempt to place offensive missiles on the island of Cuba may have been, the political and psychological motives and implications were equally important," Kennedy said. The chief executive flew to Colorado Springs on the first leg of a five-day Western inspection and speaking trip. In a commencement address at the U.S. Air Force Academy Stadium here, Kennedy told the young Air Force officers that the nation would need military commanders "who can foresee the effects of military moves on the whole fabric of international power."

"We need men who can cope with the challenge of new political situations as well as new entry weapons — who can keep their forces flexible as well as reliable, and alert without being trigger happy," he said. "For we live in a world where the principal problems are not susceptible of military solutions alone."

In his prepared remarks Kennedy attacked the suggestion that an Air Force career was "mortgaged to an obsolete weapons system, the manned aircraft."

The President said there was no truth to the forecast that Air Force officers of the future would be "nothing more than so-called

"silent silo sitters."

"Some of you will fly the fastest planes, reach the highest altitudes and lift the heaviest payloads of any aviator in history," he told the graduates. "Some of you will hold in your hands the most awesome destructive power that man has ever conceived."

"Some of you will work with the new leaders of new nations which were not even nations a few years ago. Some of you will support guerrilla and counter-guerrilla operations that combine the newest techniques of warfare with the oldest techniques of the jungle.

"And some of you will help to develop new planes that spread their wings in flight, detect other planes at unheard of distances, deliver new weapons with unprecedented accuracy and survey the ground from incredible heights."

Thus the President pictured what he called the "onrush of technology" which he predicted would lead to a constantly expanding role for the U.S. Air Force.
