Contradictions noted in Laos

VIENTIANE (UPI) — Communist North Viet Nam's Ambassador Le Van Hien said today "more than 50" trucks from his country are transporting Vietnamese "construction workers" on the Plain of Jars.

Just 90 minutes later, Hien's emissary issued a communique saying all the Vietnamese on the Plain of Jars left for home four days ago.

The communique directly contradicted statements Hien made to United Press International in an interview in his office, in which he stated that 300 to 350 Vietnamese workers are "still at Khang Khay." Red stronghold on the strategic plain.

The contradiction only added confusion to the situation in Laos, where the United States is arming one side in sporadic fighting and the Communist bloc is supplying the other side.

Officers on the staff of neutralist General Kong Le have reported that Vietnamese convoys are carrying ammunition for Communist forces.

Only Thursday, Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma accused North Viet Nam of supplying men, arms, trucks and artillery technicians to Red forces fighting his neutralists.

U.S. arms deliveries to neutralists are being made in accordance with a request from Souvanna's office.

The Geneva agreement which "neutralized" Laos provides that the government may request foreign arms if necessary for the defense of its territory.

The Communists maintain that Souvanna acted illegally in requesting American arms, and did not consult them beforehand.

Wanderin' Weldon keeping one jump ahead of posse

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Wanderin' Weldon the wallaroo, a kangaroo-like creature which escaped last week from the San Francisco Zoo, is still keeping one jump ahead of the posse.

The spritely 75-pound animal has been seen several times since it hopped off on its own last Friday, but witnesses seldom got much more than a glance.

Weldon vanishes with the speed of the wind and the bounce of a yo-yo.

The wallaroo made its latest appearance Thursday morning, when the children of Eugene Hamilton woke their parents at 6:30 a.m. with exclamations of "Hey, there's a kangaroo eating weeds in our backyard."

The Hamiltons notified zoo director Carey Baldwin, who raced to the scene in hopes of lassoing the critter. But Weldon bounced over a four-foot fence with ease and went about doing whatever wallaroos do when they have free time in San Francisco.

UNDER OBSERVATION NEVADA TEST SITE (UPI) — Twelve workmen were under observation today for effects of radioactive iodine they inhaled while working in a tunnel complex near where an underground nuclear shot was touched off two days ago.

The Atomic Energy Commission, in a statement issued Friday, did not identify the men and said that none was hospitalized.

Most of the men, however, were being sent to Donner Laboratory of the University of California at Berkeley to establish how great a radiation dosage the men received.

Lincoln White leaving post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — State Department news chief Lincoln White, for many years the government's official "voice" on foreign policy, is leaving his post to become consul general in Melbourne, Australia, it was announced Friday.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk said in a statement, disclosing the appointment, that White had served under eight secretaries of state and "has endured the slings and arrows of outraged newsmen—with limitless good humor, urbanity and great service to this country."

White, 57, has been chief spokesman for the State Department since 1955. He has served in the department's news division since 1943, and has been in government since 1933.

Through most of the cold war and other times of major crisis it has been White who faced newsmen daily to "view with alarm," to "express hopes for an amicable settlement" or to "protest most vigorously."

A native of Chattanooga, Tenn., and a product of Spring Hill College in Alabama, White is identified in all corners of the world with official U.S. government policy.

Although he didn't make policy, he usually announced it and always was the man on the firing line who had to defend it.

Nixons bade farewell to California

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon and his wife Pat, leaving soon for a European vacation, then setting up permanent residence in New York, bade farewell Friday to his home state at a luncheon attended by 1,300 admirers.

"Our hearts will always be in California," Nixon said in a 20-minute talk in which he reminisced about his boyhood in Yorba Linda, Calif. The 50-year-old Republican admitted he never dreamed that one day he would go to Congress and eventually become vice president.

Nixon, defeated in the 1960 presidential race and the 1962 California gubernatorial campaign, will leave with his wife and two daughters Monday on a European tour that will last through Aug. 6. The Nixons then fly to New York where he has joined a law firm.

The luncheon for Nixon came at a time when President Kennedy was visiting the Los Angeles area, but the only mention Nixon made of his visit was in connection with problems that California faces in the future.
