Ground broken Wednesday for new SDA church here

By Jane Brown
Bulletin Staff Writer

Ground breaking ceremonies for the new Bend Seventh-Day Adventist Church were held Wednesday at the building site, on DeKalb Avenue between E. Fifth and Sixth Streets.

L. H. Rudy, president of the Oregon Conference of the church, and his wife, were present for the ceremony. Local officials, E. L. Nielsen, Bend mayor and Hal Puddy, city manager, were also present.

A one-story, full basement, frame construction is planned with an exterior of vertical stained cedar siding finish. All retaining walls will be built of field stone. Parking will be provided on the east and south side of the church.

Merritt Crawford, builder for the Oregon Conference, has arrived in Bend.

He plans for completion of the church in six to eight months. It is hoped that the congregation will be able to use part of the new church by Thanksgiving, he said.

Under the leadership of C. C. Weis, former pastor, a building fund was instituted in 1961 whereby the members pledged money for construction of the new building. Much of the work will be labor donated by the church members and interested friends.

The ground - breaking ceremony marked the beginning of the third church to be built by this congregation. The first building was constructed in 1917. It was a small house of worship with a capacity of 30 persons.

In 1920, a larger church was built on the corner of Harriman and Franklin. This building, sold in 1961, was remodeled and now serves as a clinic for Dr. Max Hemingway and Dr. Thomas W. Adams.

With a membership of over 100, a larger church was necessary. The congregation is meeting in the Nazarene Church at the present time.

Other local people present for the ground - breaking ceremony were Don M. Wilson, local pastor; L. L. GrandPre, assistant pastor; Crawford, the builder; Clair Olson, building committee chairman; Layle Van Tassel and Ernest Thompson, building committee, and other church members.

Bid opening on COC buildings due on June 19

Central Oregon Education District directors at their monthly meeting in Bend this week approved the pre-qualification statements of eight bidders for Phase I of the Central Oregon College building project on the west slope of Awbrey Heights.

Bids on this first phase of construction of the college will be opened at 8 p.m. on June 19, in the Bend Senior High School library.

Presiding at the board meeting was W. C. Robinson, Madras, vice chairman, with all members other than Chairman Owen Panner present.

President Don Pence told the directors that Central Oregon College has been awarded a second class in forestry technology under the Manpower Development and Training Act. This second program will cover a nine months' training period starting in September, 1963.

The board accepted the resignation of Mrs. Helenmarr Wimp, who has been instructor in the practical nursing program since its inception in 1954. Mrs. Wimp indicated a desire to spend more time with her family as the reason for resigning.

The board commended Mrs. Wimp "for the excellent service she has rendered the school in the practical nursing program."

The directors also accepted the application of Dr. Eli Jenkins to rejoin the staff of Central Oregon College on recommendation of President Pence. Dr. Jenkins will return to his position as assistant professor of English.

The board will hold an adjourned meeting on June 19, to hear a report from the president on the financial condition of the college district and to open the Phase I bids.

Looting of parked cars was reported to city police by two residents Thursday.

Chuck Speaker, 24 Shasta, told officers that a billfold containing $25 and a shaving kit were taken from his car, parked in front of his home. Oil probes off coast claimed harmful to fish

COOS BAY (UPI)—A commercial fisherman said Thursday night that oil explorations threaten the existence of fish off the Oregon coast.

Larry Kreitzberg, speaking at a meeting of the Coos Sportsmen's Club, objected to seismic blasting carried on in oil exploration work off Coos Bay by Standard Oil Co.

He said that each fish killed today would spawn 100 others in 10 years. If operations continue, he said, there may be no fish left off the coast.

Bill Haight, biologist for the State Game Commission, said that since May 30 offshore operations have killed 893 rockfish, 180 hake, 20 mackerel and 2 cod. He said the commission has a man permanently stationed on an observer's boat which follows the oil exploration vessel.

R. W. Killen, special representative for Standard Oil, said operations would continue off the bar here for another three days and then move north about 60 miles.

Ralph Shaw, a Coos Bay area commercial fisherman, asked why Standard did not work a five day week and allow fishermen to have weekends. Killen said this would interrupt planned operations.

Killen said the blasts did not frighten fish and added that shrimp fishermen followed oil exploration boats to pick up shrimp that are shaken loose.

Kreitzberg claimed the blasts did frighten the fish. He said one drag fishing boat had pulled in a ton earlier this week and then dragged the same area after a blast and caught only 500 pounds.

About 40 persons attended the meeting.

Zone change hearing due on June 28

At a specially - scheduled public hearing on Friday, June 28, Bend planning commissioners will listen to whatever protests property owners have who live in three residential areas slated for possible zone change.

Requests to re-classify each as an R-4 multiple-family dwelling have been filed by petition. The areas are: four lots in Pinelyn Park at the Drake Road - Newport intersection, by Seaton Smith; lots at the southeast corner of E. Fourth and Burnside, by Al Bell, and property between Saginaw and Roanoke, and E. 10th and 11th, by Jan Ward.

Unless protests are heard, these requests probably will be forwarded to the city commission with favorable recommendation.

It has been pointed out by City Manager Hal Puddy that many affected residents are not aware of what an R-4 zone includes. Basically it permits the building of apartment dwellings for occupancy by several families. But an R-4 classification also allows for other types of structures. Some of these are: boarding and lodging houses, private schools, hospitals, sanitariums and nursing homes (with such exceptions as mental institutions and those for treatment of contagious disease), day nurseries, art galleries and educational or philanthropic institutions (not correctional or mental).

A full list of allowable structures in an R-4 zone can be found by consulting a City of Bend zoning ordinance booklet in city hall.
