It's a girl for Mr. and Mrs. Rex E. Purkerson, Box 36, Parrell Road. The 6-pound, 12-ounce baby was born Wednesday at St. Charles Memorial Hospital, and has been named Susan Jane.

Sunshine Club of the Pythian Sisters will not hold a meeting in June because of conflicting vacation plans.

Commissioners mull rock wall, take no action

By Gerald Drapeau
Bulletin Staff Writer

Bend city commissioners last night talked at length about the hazards of a rock wall that sticks out over a dirt roadway, but took no official action on it.

The wall belongs to Robert D. Rief, 1559 Division Street. He built it to protect his property line which projects over part of the Division roadway fronting his house. Over the years the road has "shifted" from east to west to the point where traffic flows regularly through Rief's front yard. The wall is considered a definite safety hazard, but Rief refuses to remove it.

It was decided to consult further with the city attorney before taking any official action. The city may eventually pave the roadway, buy a portion of Rief's property, or claim that portion as a "privilege easement" by virtue of the fact that motorists have used it for more than ten years.

Other Business

In other business, the board approved a new ten-year contract with Rural Fire Protection District 2, amounting to a $14,000 year assessment to the district. Part of that sum will be made up through purchase by the District of a new tanker.

Commissioners also:

1. Authorized City Manager Hal Puddy to negotiate with a Corvallis engineering firm to make studies for a long-range water development program. Federal matching funds will help finance the study.
2. Authorized the transfer of $131 from the emergency fund to cover over-expenditure of Civil Defense funds.
3. Approved an application for a malt beverage license, submitted by John and Jean Holly, new owners of the Century Tap Room.
4. Designated July 3 as the date for public hearings for elimination of two dilapidated buildings.
5. Tabled a discussion on whether to trade in the city police ambulance on a new model. The ambulance is a 1961 model.

Probers find 'grave laxities' in air safety

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Congressional investigators said today they have found "grave laxities" in airline safety and urged tougher inspection of pilot practices.

They urged the government to make unannounced inspections of airliners in flight to check whether pilots and crew members are properly performing their duties.

A house subcommittee, headed by Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, said it had "uncontroverted evidence" of improper conditions in the form of photographs taken secretly in the cockpits of airliners.

"Pictures taken during commercial flights with passengers aboard indicate that on at least two large commercial airlines, pilots and co-pilots slept, read newspapers and 'girlie' magazines, permitted stewardesses to fly the aircraft, or had stewardesses sitting in their laps during flight operations," the subcommittee said.

New drug rules are announced

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) announced new drug regulations today to carry out laws enacted last year as a result of the thalidomide scare.

The regulations cover manufacture, effectiveness and advertising of drugs. Published in the federal register today, they carry out provisions of the Kefauver-Harris drug amendments of 1962.

The new rules complement regulations published Jan. 8 covering investigational drugs - or drugs distributed to doctors only for prescription to patients as a means of final testing.

It was via this avenue - distribution by doctors - that the thalidomide tranquilizer drug which caused birth of deformed babies was circulated among the public. Most of the deformed births occurred in Europe, but a few cases were reported in the United States and set off congressional investigations with resulting new legislation.

Today's set of regulations require drug manufacturers to employ adequately trained personnel, maintain adequately equipped facilities and to use precautionary controls at every stage of drug manufacture, processing, packing, labeling or storing.

They also require manufacturers to furnish increased amounts of data so that investigators can determine whether a new drug is safe and will perform as intended.

The new regulations also stipulate in detail how drugs may be advertised and labeled so that both the doctor and patient can understand what they contain and the effects they may have.

'Tin Goose' forced down in Arizona

PARKER, Ariz. (UPI) - A 34-year-old Ford tri-motor aircraft was forced to make a precautionary landing here today en route east on a re-enactment of the first continental air flight.

A Trans World Airline (TWA) spokesman said the "Tin Goose" made an unscheduled landing here because of an oil leak, which was described as "not too serious."

The leak was repaired and the tri-motor took off for its next scheduled stop, Winslow, Ariz.

The Tin Goose left the starting point of its transcontinental trip - Los Angeles International Airport - at dawn.

The historic and probably exhilarating experience will be shared by three Trans World Airline pilots who have to go, a TWA public relations man who thought up the idea and is struck with it, an ex-TWA hostess who actually flew Ford Tri-Motors and probably doesn't remember how uncomfortable they were and nine intrepid reporters whose front offices apparently didn't like them.

TWA is staging the Los Angeles-Newark flight, via 11 intermediate stops, as a tribute to the 25th anniversary of the Civil Aeronautics Act - the law that created the basic present airline route structure and the legal authority under which U.S. civil aviation now operates.

Area beckons geology group

A dozen undergraduates students led by Dr. Lloyd W. Staples, head of the University of Oregon department of geology, are at the Horse Heaven mine in Jefferson County, in the opening phase of the University's 14th annual geology summer camp.

The students are enrolled in the upper division course in field geology required of all geology majors. The course began last week with a study of sedimentary rocks and fossils in the Cape Arago area of the Oregon coast.

The students will spend about four days in the Horse Heaven mine area, east of Ashwood, studying igneous rocks and evidence of ancient volcanic activity. From the mercury mine, the group will continue on to the Mormon Basin in northern Malheur County, to complete the five weeks in the field. Headquarters will be at the Silver Hill Mine, 20 miles south of Durke, where they will occupy buildings attached to the inactive gold mine.

With the group this year are several students from Notre Dame University.

Drag Columbia for fisherman

PORTLAND (UPI) - Sheriff's officers dragged the Columbia River near the Vancouver-Portland Interstate bridge today for a missing fisherman.

John Davenport, 42, Vancouver, was pulled into the water from his 28 foot gillnetter Wednesday when his feet became entangled in the net.

Authorities said his net had caught on a pier of the bridge. When another fisherman tried to free his boat, police said, Davenport got caught in the netting and was pulled feet-first from the deck.

Davenport was a fisherman for Bumble Bee Seafoods.

SALEM (UPI) - Gov. Mark Hatfield Wednesday signed into law the measure allowing him to create a Department of Commerce - the first major reorganization measure asked by the governor that has been approved by the legislature.

Other measures signed Wednesday included an exemption from property taxes for elderly, and a law requiring labeling of balloon bread.

Among other bills signed were those which:

- Set the tax on banks at 3 percent.
- Provided off-street parking at Portland State College.
- Allows public employees to join labor unions.
- Increasing salaries of state police and state officials.

Roads to close on reservation

Most roads on the Warm Springs Indian Reservation will be closed to public travel effective Wednesday, June 26. Superintendent A. W. Galbraith has announced. Increasing fire danger requires the closure to protect Indian resources, he explained.

Roads which will continue to be open to the public are those from US Highway 26 to Simnasho, Simnasho to Wapinitia, Simnasho to Kah-nee-ta Hot Springs and Kah-nee-ta Hot Springs to Warm Springs. The closure removes access to all public fishing areas on the Reservation with the exception of Lake Simustus where access to the lake through the PGE Pelton Park Camp Grounds will not be affected by the closure.

Permits for travel in the closed areas may be issued by the Bureau of Indian Affairs Branch of Forestry at the Warm Springs Agency but will be limited for business only on the Reservation and will not be issued for recreational purposes.

Superintendent Galbraith emphasized that the Kah-nee-ta Hot Springs will remain open all during the summer season and the closure would not affect public travel to or from that area.

Central Oregon group set as host for foreign guests

Central Oregon College, acting in cooperation with Chambers of Commerce of Madras, Prineville, Redmond, and Bend, has organized a committee to host diplomats from foreign nations interested in becoming better acquainted with the American way of life, and specifically, the economy of Central Oregon.

Attending the organizational meeting June 18 at the College, were Ronald Culbertson, representing the Madras Chamber of Commerce; Robert H. Sterling, representing the Redmond Chamber of Commerce; William Dodge, representing the Bend Chamber of Commerce; William Hudson and Don Pence of Central Oregon College. The Prineville Chamber of Commerce, headed by Richard McRae, has indicated an interest but was unable to send a representative for the Tuesday meeting.

The program was explained to the committee by Dr. Jennelle Moorhead, Coordinator, Institute of International Affairs, a branch of the General Extension Division, Oregon State System of Higher Education. The chairman of the local committee will be William Hudson of the COC staff. Each of the Central Oregon Chambers of Commerce will name an official coordinator who will serve on this committee and coordinate the activities of foreign diplomats as they may be sent into the area by the State Department.

The Oregon program is unique in that the foreign diplomats are hosted by comparatively small cities where the persons being hosted have a much greater opportunity to become acquainted with the American way of life at the local level and would be hosted in private homes and would have the opportunity of viewing agricultural, business, and industrial operations that are comparatively small in size and thus more appropriate for export to their countries.

Kids, matches result in fire

City fire crews extinguished a brush fire that broke out on a vacant lot at E. Sixth and Emerson Wednesday. Firemen said it was caused by children playing with matches.

Only other fire run Wednesday was to the U.S. National Bank at Oregon and Bond, where moss caught fire near some sidewalk trees.
