

Big 6 will not invite UO, OSU this summer

By Hal Wood
UPI Staff Writer
CARMEL, Calif. (UPI)—A University of Oregon and Oregon State are "making progress" on entrance requirements that would put them on the same level as members of the Big Six—but they still won't be invited to join the Athletic Association of Western Universities this summer.

"We are making a continuing study of expansion," said Dr. Bradford Booth of UCLA, president of the Big Six Council which is in session here. "We discussed the cases of Oregon and Oregon State. But it will be up to the presidents of the Big Six schools to make any final decision."

"We have been informed, however, that Oregon and Oregon State have raised the entrance requirements for out-of-state students, and that is a step in the right direction. They are in the process of reaching our academic level."

The expansion session Thursday was the final on this subject for the remainder of this spring meeting.

"No other schools are mentioned regarding expansion," said Booth. "We never have received a letter of application from either of the Oregon schools. We are just exploring the matter of expansion."

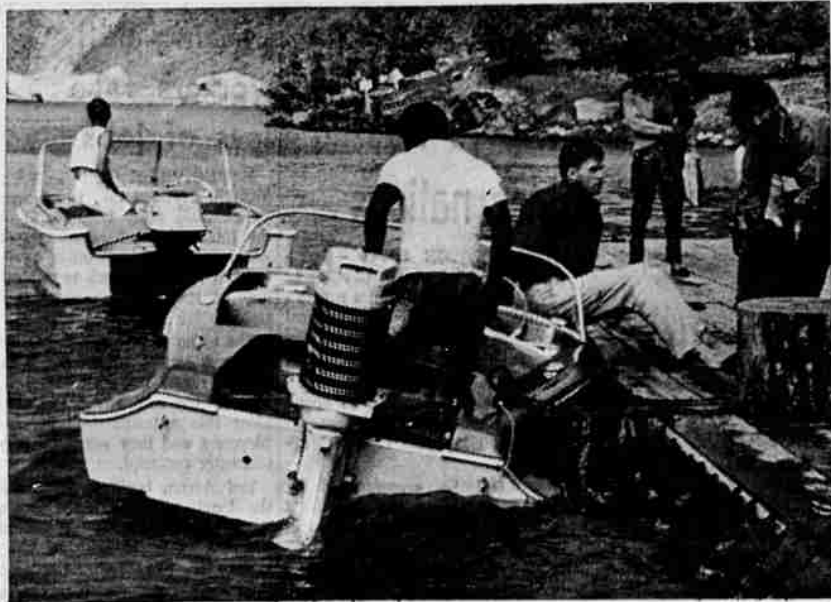

Today's session, which may wind up the meetings, will deal mostly with administrative details.

Golf semis

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — Pat Thompson of the University of Texas, who upset defending champion Kermit Zarley of Houston Thursday, plays University of Arkansas medalist R. H. Sikes in today's semifinals of the NCAA university golf tournament.

In the other 36-hole semifinal today, John Lotz of San Jose State is matched against Jerry Potter of the University of Miami.

The two semifinal winners, who will have worked their way through a starting group of 201 collegiate golfers, battle it out in Saturday's 36-hole final.

FISHING SCENE—Typical of scenes that will greet fishermen on lakes all over Central Oregon this weekend is this recent activity at Pelton Dam's reservoir near Madras. Nimrod prospects look good, especially in the Bend district. Good fishing in the Ochoco district will be spotty.

Oregon, OSU would affiliate

PCC breakup now deemed bad

By Gordon Rice
UPI Staff Writer
PORTLAND (UPI) — When the Pacific Coast Conference exploded amid bitter charges of illegal recruiting, under-the-table payments and low scholastic standards after the 1958-59 school year, the University of Oregon and Oregon State University were hurled out into the cold world of independents.

Four years later their teams are stronger than ever, and their fans have set all-time attendance records.

But school officials still would listen intently to an invitation to join a strong athletic conference.

"I believe the coaches would prefer a conference and I feel quite sure the people would," says Oregon Athletic Director Leo Harris.

"I think a conference affiliation is a good thing," contributes his counterpart at Oregon State, Roy S. (Spec) Keene.

The word "conference" to most people means a reformation of the old PCC, although officials of both schools regard that phrase with about as much affection as the Justice Department has for Jimmy Hoffa.

AAUW Formed
Five of the old PCC schools formed themselves into the Athletic Association of Western Universities, more commonly known as the Big Five. It became the Big Six when they took in Washington State. Then Idaho found some playmates its own size, or perhaps smaller, and went off to join the Big Sky Conference. That left the two Oregon schools.

Harris has refused steadfastly to talk about the Oregon schools joining the Big Six, despite indications they may be invited to join.

"It was the presidents and the boards of regents who were responsible for breaking it (the PCC) up in the first place," he says.

Several coaches have been more outspoken. Oregon football mentor Len Casanova told a group in California's Bay Area recently that the breakup was a bad mistake.

Some coaches of Big Six schools feel the same way.

In the meantime, athletes from the two schools have been an artistic smash hit.

Great OSU Year
Oregon State has just completed the greatest year in its history. The Beaver football team, led by Heisman Trophy-winning quarterback Terry Baker won eight of 11 games, including a 7-0 decision over Villanova in the Liberty Bowl. The OSU basketball team went all the way to the NCAA semifinals and eventually finished fourth in the nation.

Its baseballers won the championship of the so-called Northern Division, made up of the five northern members of the old PCC, and coach Sam Bell put together one of the nation's best track teams.

Oregon, long one of the nation's track powers, won the NCAA title in 1962 and finished third this year. The Webfoot footballers finished with a 6-3-1 record and were in contention for a bowl bid until a final loss to Oregon State.

Don Kirsch's baseball team was ranked second in the nation at one point in the season.

Oregon's athletic department showed an $80,000 profit for 1961-62, and playing before 355,523 football fans last fall gave it another boost. The future football schedule includes such teams as Ohio State and Army.

The situation at Oregon State proves that artistic success is not always profitable. The Beavers lost $64,886 in 1961-62. Their football attendance this year was 254,476, including the Liberty Bowl and an all-time record of 259,598 watched the OSU basketball team.

Home attendance for 12 games was 96,004.

"There won't be a big surplus, but there won't be a deficit either," Keene predicts.

The financial squeeze may become tighter at both schools. The State Board of Higher Education recently raised out-of-state tuition from $870 to $900 a year and boosted dormitory fees. Harris estimates it will take another $26,000 to maintain the same amount of grants-in-aid next year. Keene estimates OSU will need between $28,000 and $30,000.

Brandis Little Leaguers stay alive with 6-1 win

Brandis Little Leaguers managed to keep their American League win skein intact last night, as they took the Moose nine into camp to the tune of 6-1. It was one of three Little League contests.

Brandis scored one in the first inning and five in the second to lead the Moose junior baseballers 6-0. The Moose got a lone tally in the fourth, but couldn't keep going.

Brandis didn't get any farther either, as both teams went hitless in the last two frames. It was three up and three down for both squads in both innings.

In the other two Little League contests, the number three seemed to be the common denominator for losers. The Elks found three runs not enough against the Eagles in a National League action, as the latter crew scored 10 tallies spread over the first, third and fourth frames.

Elks batters got to the Eagles' tosser Gary Dresser for one run apiece in the first, second and third frames.

It was nearly the same story in the Cascade League, when Healy's ran over the VFW crew, 12-3 at Juniper Park. Equally ironic as the Brandis game, this Cascade tilt saw no scoring action in the first two innings. VFW batters broke the ice in the top of the third, and they would have been better off had they not.

Once the scoring barrier was shattered, Healy's went wild. Healy's scoring came in two bunches. Six runs came across home plate in two different innings, the third and the fifth. Kam Healy went the distance on the mound for the win. He tossed 10 strikeouts.

Yang will miss decathlon meet

CORVALLIS (UPI) — C. K. Yang, the world decathlon record holder from Nationalist China and UCLA, does not plan to compete in the national AAU decathlon championships June 28-29, officials learned today.

Yang plans to pass up the event to make a European tour which was arranged by his government, according to word sent by Ducky Drake, UCLA coach. Yang also recently has been bothered by a torn rib cartilage.

Yang set a new decathlon record of 9,121 points this year. His absence makes Paul Heiman, former Westmont College standout, the meet favorite.

Floyd in Nevada readying for shot at Liston

NEW YORK (UPI) — Floyd Patterson flies to Las Vegas, Nev., today to finish training for his return heavyweight title fight there on July 22 with champion Sonny Liston.

Liston, who took the crown from Patterson on a first-round knockout at Chicago last Sept. 25, plans to shift from Las Vegas, Colo., training quarters to Las Vegas over the weekend.

Representatives of Championship Sports, Inc., the promoters, and of Sports Vision, Inc., the closed-circuit television outfit, announced Thursday they expected a gate of between $350,000 and $400,000 at the Las Vegas Convention Center and a gross of $2 million from TV locations.

Carty shines at Mt. Hood slalom

Vaughn Carty, 18, Bend, was one of the men that let himself be known at Mount Hood last Sunday in the Golden Rose Race.

Carty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard H. Carty, 2053 W. Seventh Street, racing under the flag of the Bend Skyliners, captured first place in the downhill slalom in the C men's division.

Rod Hebron, U.S. Olympic skier, toured the same course in 1:36 minutes. Carty was right on his tail, according to the timers, who clocked him at 1:54 minutes.

On the basis of time comparisons, Carty would have taken seventh in the A men's division and would have been good enough to snare third in the B men's bracket.

Skiers from all over the United States were there to try the Magic Mile, 45-50 gate slalom. Carty is a 1962 graduate of Bend High School and last winter and this spring attended Central Oregon College.
