

Portland gets back in CD's good graces

PORTLAND (UPI) — Portland apparently was back in the good graces of the federal government today after disclosing it plans to have some kind of disaster relief program.

The City Council voted 4-1 last month to junk its Civil Defense program.

The disclosure was made here Friday afternoon at a 90-minute meeting between city and Multnomah County officials and S. L. Pittman, assistant U.S. Secretary of Defense who is in charge of the nation's Civil Defense.

Pittman pledged support of the government in matching funds for a local city-county disaster relief program if the officials would include public shelters in their program.

They said they would. No amount of federal aid was specified by the assistant secretary. He was insistent on the need for a full-time Civil Defense coordinator for the Portland area. This brought no adverse comment.

Pittman also said that he was optimistic the state Civil Defense program could be worked out.

State C-D Cut
The recently adjourned Oregon Legislature cut the state's Civil Defense budget to provide for only a three-man agency. It had provided money for 18 men.

Pittman and the officials agreed there had been a misunderstanding about the abandonment of Civil Defense in Portland.

He said the government thought Portland was giving up and lying down on its responsibility to the national defense effort.

They replied they thought the government was accusing it of a "peace at any price" attitude and threatening to take punitive measures.

The meeting ended with verbal agreement that city, county and state representatives would meet with regional Civil Defense officials to work out details of a disaster relief program.

Pittman, who also appeared before the City Club and a non-host dinner here Friday, left Portland today by plane for Chicago.

INDUSTRIOUS TEACHERS PLAN CONSERVATION PROGRAM—Six Bend elementary school teachers are working on a committee to emphasize natural resource conservation for first through six graders. The program is geared toward resources of the Central Oregon area with supplemental information on a state and national level. The information will be compiled into a booklet to be used as a teachers guide. Seated in the front row (from left) are Valborg Fisher, Zona Kalmbach, and Ruby Scott. Standing are Irene Holt, Lee Ashby, and Henry Hall.

State death toll Friday set at six

By United Press International
Four persons died and two others were injured in a violent two-car collision on a rain-slicked highway north of Independence Friday night.

The fatalities sent the state's death toll for the day to six. Victims in the Independence crash were Mrs. Doris Colgan, 49, of Monmouth; Esther Sandoval, 17, and Rose Sandoval, 16, of Independence; and Sadie Peden, 16, of Independence.

Injured were Marie Eleanor Sandoval and Patricia Lee Elliott of Independence. Salem Memorial Hospital attendants said they suffered only abrasions and bruises.

Police said they did not know what caused the accident. Mrs. Colgan died in a Salem hospital. The bodies of the Sandoval girls were found in the wreckage and the Peden girl was discovered later after survivors told police there was another passenger in the car.

Two Dead
Two Lane County residents also died in separate accidents Friday.

Mrs. Willoughby Blowers, 55, Creswell, was killed in a one-car accident on State Highway 226 four miles north of Cottage Grove.

She was a passenger in a car driven by her son, Laverne, 23, which ran off the rain-slicked highway and hit a tree. He and another son, Stephen, 18, also a passenger, were not injured.

Mrs. Blowers was thrown from the car and crushed.

Mrs. William Cartwright, 19, Harrisburg, died in a Eugene hospital from injuries suffered in a one-car crash Tuesday.

Her vehicle left a road and slammed into a tree four miles north of Coburg.

More cabinet members may be involved

LONDON (UPI) — Rumors that more cabinet ministers may be involved in Britain's "scandal of the century" hinted today at the possibility of additional trouble for Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's beleaguered government.

Opposition sources said the Labor party may try to force Macmillan to broaden his investigation into the case involving former War Minister John Profumo, recalled Soviet naval attaché Eugene Ivanov and their mutual friend, red-haired Christine Keeler.

Friday Macmillan himself acknowledged the whispers sweeping London when he told the House of Commons that "terrible rumors" were circulating about ministers other than Profumo.

LIMIT CHURCH TIME
INGOLDMELLS, Eng. (UPI)—Officials at this seaside resort today put a 45-minute limit on seashore church mission services because ice cream salesmen complained the missionaries were robbing them of prime selling time.

Conservation Education program being mapped by teacher group

Six Bend teachers are working as a committee this summer to plan a Conservation Education program of study for the 1500 students who attend Bend elementary schools.

The chairman of the committee is Henry H. Hall, 1224 E. 10th Street. Other teachers serving on the committee are Zona Kalmbach, Irene Holt, Ruby Scott, Valborg Fisher, and Lee Ashby.

Although conservation is now being taught in the schools, the purpose of the committee work is to reorganize the curriculum to emphasize conservation in particular reference to natural resources and to call attention to the greater demands being placed on conservation programs.

Although the program is primarily geared to natural resource conservation in the Central Oregon area, it will also include conservation programs on the state and national level.

The program will be oriented for grades one through six, with each teacher on the committee working with one grade. After the work of the committee has been completed, the information will be compiled into booklets which will be used as teacher's guides while studying conservation.

The information will be used primarily in the science class, although it will also pertain to other classes such as social studies.

In connection with the conservation program, a field trip has been planned to various areas throughout Central Oregon. This will give students an on-the-spot study of mineral resources, soil and water resources, and fish and wildlife in their natural setting and environment.

Whittaker due home Monday

SEATTLE (UPI)—James Whittaker, first American to conquer Mt. Everest, world's highest mountain, comes home Monday to a waiting family and an admiring city and state.

Whittaker, from Redmond, Wash., is scheduled to arrive at the Seattle-Tacoma International Airport at 2 p.m. via Pan-American Airlines from London. He will be accompanied by Luther Jerstad, Eugene, Ore., and probably Barry Prather, Ellensburg, Wash., two other members of the American Mt. Everest expedition.

When he arrives his proud wife, Mrs. Blanche Whittaker and two sons, Carl 8, and Scott 6, will be waiting to get their first look at Whittaker since February 2, when he kissed them goodbye to go mountain climbing.

Mrs. Whittaker said they have no special plans, but just "lots of rest" for her husband.

"We'll probably go up to our place in the San Juans where there aren't any telephones," she added.

But before Whittaker heads for the San Juans, scenic islands north of here, he will get an airport welcome, a band concert, a ticker-tape parade and the keys to the city of Seattle.

The keys will be presented to Whittaker by Seattle Mayor Gordon Clinton.

Research group names Kreider

Special to The Bulletin
NEW ORLEANS, La. — Charles M. Kreider, assistant general manager of Brooks-Scanlon, Inc., Bend, Ore., has been named vice-president of the Forest Products Research Society.

He is attending the 17th annual meeting of the group, now underway here. Attending are some 700 wood industry representatives. More than 90 technical research papers have been presented.

The Forest Products Research Society, with headquarters in Madison, Wis., was established in 1947 to improve the communications between research and the member of the wood industry. The society membership is in excess of 4,500.

Three nations fail to reach fisheries accord

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States, Canada and Japan have ended a two week fisheries conference without resolving the key issue of whether Japan should be allowed to fish in areas currently reserved for North American fishermen.

The three delegations suggested another meeting on the North Pacific Fisheries in the fall. Japan said it hoped the meeting would be scheduled in September in Tokyo.

Stumbling block at the conference was the "abstention principle" in the 10-year-old International North Pacific Fisheries Convention, under which Japan cannot fish for certain species in areas of the eastern North Pacific ocean so long as U.S. and Canadian fishermen are fully utilizing the stocks.

Japan called the abstention principle irrational and said it could not continue with the present treaty. However informed sources said Japan did not serve notice that it wanted to withdraw from the agreement. Any nation can terminate the pact on one year's notice.

Canada and the United States refused to scrap the abstention principle and criticized as too general a substitute pact proposed by Japan. They said problems could be solved within the present treaty.

In the final communique, the three delegations said they "concluded that the conference had been very useful in promoting mutual understanding of the views of each of the three parties."

No settlement in sight in Hawaii strike

HONOLULU (UPI)—The strike of seven labor unions against Hawaii's only statewide daily newspaper went into its second day today with no sign of an early settlement.

Some 500 employees called the first strike ever against the Honolulu Star-Bulletin and Honolulu Advertiser and set up picket lines Friday morning after an all-night mediation session broke down.

Gov. John A. Burns has expressed his concern over the strike but said he plans no immediate action. Honolulu Mayor Neil Blaisdell made a similar statement.

The strike leaves Honolulu with only two other daily newspapers. Both are bi-lingual Japanese-English and each carries only about three pages of English language news a day. The only other daily newspaper in the area is in Hilo on the island of Hawaii, some 200 miles away.

Pastor begins his vacation

Special to The Bulletin
PRINEVILLE — The Rev. Stanton Irvine, pastor of the First Baptist Church, began his vacation during the past week. His regular place in the pulpit will be filled Sunday by Bruce Clatterback, who is serving as youth director of the church this summer.

The Rev. Irvine will return at the pulpit on July 7. Morning and evening services on June 30 will be conducted by Dallas Mitchell.

Pilot survives 15,000-foot plunge into ocean Friday

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — "This business of your whole life flashing before you is baloney, at least in my case. I was too busy for that."

Thus did Marine 1st Lt. Cliff J. Judkins III describe his reaction to plunging 15,000 feet and landing—feet first—in the ocean when his parachute failed to open after he bailed out of his disabled jet fighter.

The 26-year-old Atlanta, Ga., pilot Friday said that he almost didn't get out of his F8 Crusader jet because his ejection apparatus would not work after he discovered something went wrong with the plane.

Speaking from the hospital ship Haven, Judkins said at first he was afraid to go over the side for fear of hitting the tail.

"I was thinking to myself, what a helluva way to die, watching it come up to you, when Bill (1st Lt. Bill Waters, wingman in the formation) hollered to get out any way I could."

Judkins said he narrowly missed the tail, but fell free—only to find his main chute would not open.

"The rest of the way down I was shaking hell out of the chute trying to get it to open."

The flying Leatherneck said he saw an oil slick where his plane hit the water. He hit the water—feet first—100 feet away.

"It didn't hurt then, although I figured my back was broken. I could tell my ankles were broken from the way my feet flapped around."

Judkins spent 2½ hours in the water before he was rescued by a Navy ship. He subsequently was transferred to a hospital ship and brought here.

Attendants said Judkins received a compressed back fracture, a hairline fracture of his pelvis and two broken ankles in the accident last Wednesday over the Pacific Ocean about 600 miles from shore.

Judkins' condition originally was listed as critical, but he now was reported much improved.

His was one of the few cases on record in which a man has fallen from such a height and landed in the ocean—and survived. Navy medical records indicated.

After-hours charges faced

City police early this morning spotted two Bend youths crouching behind the building at the Bend Garage used car lot on E. Greenwood.

When the boys, ages 13 and 14, saw the patrol car they ran, but were apprehended. Neither gave reason why he was there.

The boys were held in custody on an after hours charge and later released to their parents to await juvenile court action.

Also taken into custody for being out after hours was a 17-year-old Bend boy. He could give no suitable explanation for driving about the E. Third and Greenwood area.
