Film program receives study

The Deschutes County Rural School Board held a short meeting last night, with David R. Potter, county school superintendent, present after an absence. He underwent surgery several weeks ago in a Portland hospital.

There was some discussion of a bill passed at the recent session of the state legislature, providing for changes in the office of the county school superintendent. No action was taken.

Potter reported that an evaluation of the county school film program, inaugurated under a federally-subsidized program, is under way. Evaluation by teachers in participating schools will continue this fall, he said.

Also mentioned was the recent annexation of the H. J. Curl property in the Tumalo area, to the Bend administrative district. Potter said that this annexation is now in order, under provisions of the new validation act.

Board members present were Hamlin Perkins, Tumalo, chairman; Emil Howell, Terrebonne; Vernon Giles, Redmond, and Dr. Willard Bleything, Bend.

The next regular meeting will be July 15.
