NAACP issues threat against congressmen

By United Press International
CHICAGO (UPI)—The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) has threatened to work actively for the defeat of congressmen in 1964 who fail to support strong civil rights legislation.

Executive secretary Roy Wilkins, in a keynote address at the NAACP's 54th annual convention Monday night, specifically named Sens. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., and Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., among those who have opposed President Kennedy's civil rights program.

Wilkins spoke of the "conspiracy" to use Washington, D.C., "to continue human slavery under another name."

Crowd Jams Church

Wilkins told a sweltering, overflow crowd that jammed the 4,400 seats and the aisles, halls and vestibule of a South Side church auditorium that Goldwater:

"...wants what Sen. Russell wants, what Gov. Barnett of Mississippi and Gov. Wallace of Alabama want—a 'hands off' policy by the federal government with the Negro citizen left to the tender care of the Bull Connors (former Birmingham, Ala., police commissioner) of this world, to the supervision of state governments that bar him from voting and encourage a public climate in which he can be murdered if he tries to vote."

"As we did successfully a generation ago in the case of those senators who voted to confirm the nomination to the U.S. Supreme Court of a judge who had an anti-Negro record we intend to work actively for the defeat in the next election of those lawmakers who fail to support and vote for strong civil rights legislation."

Hits Russell Stand

Wilkins said that Russell had declared the civil rights package is "unpalatable" to him and his. "We submit," Wilkins said, "that the senator does not know the full meaning of the word. He and his will never know what 'unpalatable' really is until they, like the Negro, have the rotten mess of racial discrimination as a daily diet."

COOLER AIR AHEAD

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The old air conditioning system in the west wing of the White House—dating back to President Herbert Hoover—is being retired. A new air conditioner, costing $487,000, will replace the original, which was installed in 1929.

Story of courage reported behind new espionage case

WASHINGTON (UPI)—About 9 p.m. on April 28, a Russian-born U.S. employe in a security-sensitive job returned to his apartment in suburban Washington. As he started to enter, he heard behind him a voice from the past. It was his brother whom he had last seen 23 years ago in Russia.

Thus began a story of personal terror and stolid courage which led Monday to expulsion from this country of a Soviet secret police agent masquerading as a cultural attache at the Soviet Embassy.

The State Department demanded the "immediate departure" of attache Gemadiy G. Sevastyanov, 33, accusing him of attempting to recruit for espionage a U.S. employe by threatening harm to his family in the Soviet Union.

U.S. officials identified the federal employe only as "John." His agency was not disclosed, but was understood to be part of the intelligence complex headed up by the Central Intelligence Agency.

Brother Appears

The voice behind him as he paused to enter his apartment was that of his brother, Volodya, who had been brought to the United States in a bizarre attempt to persuade him to spy for Russia.

Volodya suggested they talk in a car he had parked in the street, but John preferred the apartment and they entered. Volodya was evasive in explaining his presence, saying it had been "arranged."

Shortly, a man entered whom Volodya introduced as "Ivan Ivanovich," his driver. The driver was in fact Sevastyanov, an agent of the Committee for State Security, or KGB, Russia's secret police, and a member of the Soviet Embassy staff since March, 1959.

Arrange Further Talk

John's visitors departed after arranging a further talk. When they had gone, he quickly reported the encounter to the FBI, which advised him to continue the meetings. The next two meetings were secretly photographed by FBI agents.

On May 4 Volodya left for the Soviet Union. He could have been apprehended on either espionage or illegal entry charges, but U.S.

officials let him go. They considered he was only a helpless tool of the KGB, probably coerced himself by threats to his family. John, whose age and other details were kept secret to hide his identity, is about to receive U.S. citizenship.

Miss Oregon buys wardrobe

PORTLAND (UPI)—D'Ann Fullerton, the new Miss Oregon, shopped for her wardrobe here Monday and mentioned a boy friend.

The 19-year-old Roseburg girl, selected at Seaside Saturday night to represent the state in the Miss America contest, said golf was her favorite sport and added she "learned in self-defense" because a boy friend, Ron Getchell of Myrtle Point, is medalist on the golf team at Southern Oregon College.

Electronic vote tabulating system to be tested at Fair

By Zan Stark

UPI Staff Writer

SALEM (UPI)—An electronic vote tabulating system that could revolutionize Oregon's election procedures will be given a test run at the State Fair here this summer, Secretary of State Howell Appling Jr. said today.

He said if the test is successful, it could lead to an overhaul of balloting methods within the next two or three years.

The 1963 legislature, at Appling's request, approved a measure which authorizes such tests.

Plans for the test were drafted Monday at a meeting with Dr. Joseph P. Harris, professor emeritus of political science at the University of California.

Appling said the system, developed by Harris, will be tested at six polling booths to be set up at the fairgrounds. He said each booth would represent a different precinct, and he hoped to get from 10,000 to 20,000 ballots.

The system utilizes a small device into which a data processing machine card is inserted. Voters, instead of marking an "X" on a ballot, use a stylus to punch holes in the data card.

The cards then are fed through a processing machine which tabulates the results.

The system was demonstrated to lawmakers during the recent legislative session.

Appling describes the system as "the most significant development in the election field in more than 100 years."

Fraud Safeguards

He said the system would save money, be more accurate, speed counting, and provide safeguards against election fraud.

If the State Fair tests are successful, Appling hopes to make a one-county test of the method at a regular election within the next two years.

He said it cost the state $467,000 to manually count ballots in the 1960 primary and general elections. He estimates this cost could be cut in half.

Appling estimated official results from a statewide election would be available by midnight election night.

He said use of punchcards and electronic tabulating machines would virtually eliminate the possibility of fraud because pre-prepared test cards could be used without notice to double-check tabulation results.

Appling has been searching for a method of streamlining balloting procedures since 1961.
