Special to The Bulletin
PRINEVILLE — Final details for the "Crook-O-Do" days planned around the 1963 Crooked River Roundup, August 9-11, were written into the crowded rodeo week schedule at a meeting of various chairmen here Tuesday evening.

The celebration days will move into full swing August 6, with an outdoor talent show at 8 p.m. on Belknap Street, between Third and Fourth Streets. The show is sponsored by the Scepticist Club, with Mrs. Otis Van Blaricom and Dick Berger as co-chairmen.

On that same evening, public games will be held at the Veterans' club, and a teenage street dance, sponsored by the Eagles will be held immediately following the talent show in front of the Eagles Hall. A second street dance will be held simultaneously, 9-11 p.m., at the talent show location.

Events will move towards the water on Wednesday, August 7, with a giant barbecue planned at the Prineville Reservoir state park by the LDS church for the public. The barbecue is to start at 5 p.m., with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rogers as chairmen.

A water show, organized by the Central Oregon Boat Club, will follow, from 7-9 p.m. This is to include formation skiing, boat drills and a grand entry, according to Ray Richardson, chairman. In the late evening, a fireworks display at the lake is being sponsored by the Jaycees, with Gene Brooks chairman.

On Thursday, just before the rodeo, events will include Indian dancing by the Warm Springs Boy Scouts, a kids' event program at Davidson field, another evening of games at the Veterans' club and once again, street dancing.

The full-packed week traditionally begins on Sunday with the Crook County Pioneers' Association picnic and crowning of the queen, and the reunion of former classmates at the old Prineville school Saturday evening.

The week will climax, according to Gary Romine, information chairman, with the three-day show of the Crooked River Roundup. Ticket office for the rodeo is now open, he said, in the Bowman building, for early ticket purchasers.

Vibbert named area farmer

Special to The Bulletin
MADRAS — Ronald Vibbert, Gateway area farmer, is Jefferson County's 1963 Conservation Farmer of the Year. It was announced this week by the county selection committee.

Vibbert's selection as conservation farmer brought the second honor in two weeks to the family farm in recognition of farming practices carried on. His son Bryce was previously named Future Farmers of America District Star Farmer for his work in the operation of the farm.

Vibbert, a former Texas school teacher, was persuaded by his father in 1948 to take over management of the family land. His children now are the fourth generation of the Vibbert homestead that has grown from the original 160 acres to the present 1613 acres of tilled cropland (740 owned and 873 rented), 807 acres of unimproved native range and 490 acres seeded to crested and Siberian wheat grass.

A 450 acre dryland wheat allotment is included on the farm and at present the Gateway rancher runs about 80 cows and calves but likes to have cattle reach at least a 50-50 balance with the grain.

The 1963 Conservation farmer of the year for the county attended Gateway school and Madras high school and went to college in Texas. He taught math and science in a west Texas high school and was in chemical warfare for the Army for 34 months during World War II. The Vibberts have three children, sons Hugh 19, a student at Oregon State University; Bryce 17, a senior at Madras Union High School and Karen 16, a junior at Madras Union High School.

The molds are of a type used frequently 30 years ago in Southern Oregon and Northern California, but now are rare items, Holmes said.

In most cases customers can have their Kodacolor film processed within six hours of the time it reaches the studio. Other types of color film are rushed to Portland, processed, and returned within 24 hours, Loy said.

Coos County asks for more spending on SW Oregon roads

SALEM (UPI)— More spending to improve Highway 42 was sought by a Coos County delegation at Thursday's meeting of the Oregon State Highway Commission.

Coos County Commissioner J. J. Geany led the Coos delegation which asked more work on the highway between Coquille and Myrtle Point and improvement of the Powers secondary highway from Rhoda Creek to Powers.

Commission members said the request would be studied but pointed to the lack of funds for new highway work.

Members of the Highway 99 Alternate Road Association requested making Oregon Highway 74 a major road between Forest Grove and Longview, Wash. They also sought improvements on the road between Forest Grove and Yamhill.

The commission earlier added the widening of Cox Creek Bridge on the Waverly Lake section of old Highway 99 north of Albany to this year's list of state projects.

Work on six county roads was authorized as part of the construction work on county-federal aid secondary highways for the 1964 fiscal year.

The projects in Clatsop, Lake Lane, Lincoln, Malheur and Wallowa counties will cost $22,000.

The Lincoln County job involves paving 1.1 miles of the road which will serve the new Oregon State University oceanograph facilities on Yaquina Bay.

Clatsop County's project will involve grading and culvert installation of the Camp Creek section of the Lewis and Clark River Road. The Lake County project calls for surfacing and oiling 4.3 miles on the Dry Creek-California state line section of Dry Creek county road.

In Lane County a reinforced concrete structure is planned on the Mohawk River Road over Shotgun Creek. The Cash Creek Bridge will be replaced with a concrete box culvert.
