Miss Keeler claims Astor paid rent

LONDON (UPI) — Christine Keeler testified in court today that Lord Astor had paid the rent on the apartment she shared with playgirl Marilyn (Mandy) Rice-Davies.

Christine, whose affair with War Minister John Profumo nearly toppled the British government, resumed her tale of sex and sin that ranged from high society to the underworld when she appeared as the first witness in the trial of Dr. Stephen Ward, playboy osteopath and artist. Ward pleaded innocent to a variety of vice charges that included the accusation he lived off the earnings of Christine and Mandy.

Lord Astor's name came into the trial as Christine was being questioned by prosecutor Mervyn Griffith-Jones.

Asked About Rent

After she said she had moved into a flat with Mandy, the prosecutor asked:

"Who paid the rent of the flat? Did you pay any of the rent yourself?"

"Yes, I and Miss Davies paid some of it," Christine's voice was nearly a whisper, and the judge interrupted:

"Who paid the rent Miss Keeler?"

"Lord Astor," she replied.

It was the first time Christine had testified directly that the apartment rent was paid by Lord Astor, although she had said at Ward's pre-trial hearing that the osteopath had told her the rent once was paid with a check from the wealthy head of one of Britain's most influential families.

At the pre-trial hearing Mandy testified she had been intimate with Astor, who later denied it.

Met At Astor's Estate

It was at the famed Cliveden estate of Lord Astor that Christine met Profumo in the start of an affair that led to the war minister's resignation and an outcry that brought the Conservative government of Prime Minister Harold Macmillan close to collapse.

Security questions were raised because of the disclosure that Christine had been sharing her favors at the same time with Profumo and Soviet naval attaché, Capt. Eugene Ivanov.

The Russian's name came into the trial today when the prosecutor asked Christine:

"Did you have intercourse with Ivanov?"

"On one occasion, yes."

First Witness

Appearing as the first witness after the prosecution opened its case against Ward, Christine testified that in addition to sharing an apartment with Mandy she also shared her lover, the mysterious Peter Rachman, a slum property owner and accused racketeer whose activities have created still another crisis for the British government.

3 items listed for planners

Three items of business are scheduled for discussion during tonight's planning commission session at 7:30 in city hall.

The planners will first conduct a public hearing on a proposed two-block area zone change, from R-3 (two-family residential) to R-4 (multiple-family residential) zone. The area lies between Alden and Burnside and E. Fourth and Sixth, adjacent to the senior high school grounds.

Also scheduled for discussion is a proposal to include multiple-family dwellings in a list of additional uses accommodated in a zoning ordinance.

The possible annexation of the Central Oregon College area and West Awhrey Butte also will be mulled.

British sheriff, Oregon mayors to 'shoot it out'

NOTTINGHAM, England (UPI) — The sheriff of Nottingham, Alderman Percy Holland, said Sunday he will "shoot it out" in an archery contest against two American mayors.

The challenge came from the mayors of Portland and Sherwood, Ore., to the Lord Mayor of Nottingham, who has made the sheriff his champion.

The match — six arrows at 10 yards — will take place at Nottingham Aug. 24, when the sheriff will shoot his round at the opening of the Golden Arrow Tournament, which according to legend was first staged as a trap for the outlaw Robin Hood.

The contestants will stay in their own cities and their scores will be cabled across the Atlantic.

By end of week?

Hopes for partial test ban appear bright

MOSCOW (UPI)—U.S., British and Russian negotiators opened the second week of nuclear talks today amid indications they would complete an accord on a partial nuclear test ban by the end of the week.

The meeting — seventh in the three-power negotiations that began a week ago — opened at 3 p.m. in Moscow's Spiridonovka Palace.

Diplomats, encouraged by Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's statement that "an agreement is in sight," predicted that an East-West treaty banning underwater, atmospheric and outer space nuclear tests would be initiated in a few days.

The U.S., British, and Soviet negotiators were reported so far along on the test ban issue that their talks have turned to other cold war problems, including measures to guard against surprise attack.

Khrushchev discussed this Sunday in a meeting with Under Secretary of State W. Averell Harriman, the American nuclear delegate. They talked in a private room behind Khrushchev's Lenin Stadium box, where Harriman watched the U.S.-Soviet track meet Sunday.

Discuss Inspector Exchange

It was understood they discussed Khrushchev's offer for an exchange of inspectors as a means of safeguarding against sudden troop movements or build-ups. The inspectors would be stationed at key points on the territory of opposing nations.

Harriman and British negotiator Lord Hailsham were expected to discuss the subject with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko today.

Khrushchev, who frequently has denounced Western on-site inspection proposals as attempts at espionage, brought up his inspection plan in a speech Friday. On Saturday, he said at a reception following that day's negotiations:

"The talks are going well. No obstacles have been encountered so far. If they continue as they have so far, agreement is in sight."

Diplomats Are Optimistic

These indications of Soviet willingness to come to a settlement, when viewed alongside Moscow's repudiation of the Peking hard line in foreign policy, added to the optimism already felt by diplomats here.

They said there appeared to be no barriers to a test ban of nuclear explosions in the atmosphere, outer space, and under water.

Diplomats stressed, however, that the agreement, even if approved, still means only limited progress on the testing issue.

The ban does nothing about underground nuclear tests, which the West insists cannot be controlled without on-site inspection. The Soviets thus far are unwilling to grant the seven annual inspections considered the minimum safeguard by the Allies.

Rescue units work through Sunday night

HOOD RIVER (UPI)—Three injured mountain climbers were brought down off the slopes of 11,245-foot Mt. Hood this morning after a 1,500-foot fall Sunday.

Two of the men, Dr. Eberhard H. Gloeckler and Dr. Mark Hanschka, both of Portland, were reported in satisfactory condition at Hood River Memorial Hospital. Attendants said they apparently escaped with some fractures and many cuts and bruises.

The third climber, Portland attorney Robert Shoemaker, was least seriously injured.

Mountain rescue units worked throughout the night to carry the two doctors down from the 10,000-foot level on the mountain. The rescue teams reached them about 9 p.m. Sunday night, but it took nearly eight hours to get them to a hospital. Shoemaker reached here at 7 a.m. 10 hours later.

Fell On Glacier

The men were climbing with a large group of Mazamas, a Portland alpine organization, when they fell on the icy face of Cooper Spur to Elliott Glacier on the mountain's north side.

The three were roped together and were descending from the top of the mountain to Cloud Cap Inn about noon. Dr. Hanschka slipped first, followed by Shoemaker. Dr. Gloeckler, the anchor man, was unable to hold them. They tumbled head over heels down the icy chute and landed on the glacier.

The accident occurred at almost the same spot where Colin Chisholm, Lala Grove, and his son, Douglas, rode out an avalanche in a 2,000-foot plunge in 1961. Richard Knutson, Portland, fell more than 1,000 feet in the same area last fall.

About 35 persons, headed by Crag Rats and Alpinists of Hood River, took part in the rescue operations. Word of the accident was brought out by other members of the climbing party.

Fort Rock cave marker removed

Special to The Bulletin

FORT ROCK — Pried loose and stolen, the apparent work of vandals, disappearance of the historic marker placed at the entrance of Fort Rock Cave only a month ago was revealed here Saturday by R. A. Long.

At the June 23 ceremonies Long, on whose land the cave is situated, agreed "to preserve the historic quality of the site." Registered as a National Historic Landmark, the cave provided a dwelling place for ancient man who some 9000 years ago wove sagbrush into sandals which were recovered in 1938 and carbon tested to determine their age.

On July 16 a party from Pendleton visited the site and in conversation with Long it was revealed that they saw no marker at the cave's entrance. Oregon State Police officer Dave Fredrickson and Mr. Evans, from Crater Lake National Park, have viewed the absence of the historic plaque. A plan to cement it to the cave wall where irregularity would not permit a snug fit had been under consideration.

Plane crash claims three

LEWISTON, Idaho (UPI) — Tricky air currents apparently caused the crash of a light plane that claimed three lives Saturday night near a remote mountain landing strip, the only survivor of the accident said today.

Jack Strom, 27, Lewiston, said the plane piloted by C. Victor Everheart, 40, Lewiston hit a downdraft about two-thirds of the way across Fish Lake.

Everheart had to choose between hitting trees along the shore or going into the lake, Strom said.

The plane plunged into the lake, killing Everheart, W. T. "Pete" Laswell, 39, and Earl C. Hall, 34, also of Lewiston. The bodies of all three men were flown here Sunday.

Strom was in good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital here with abrasions, a chest injury and possible rib fractures.

Governors block vote on civil rights

This is the week

Pageant crew busy with final plans

By Ila Grant Hopper
Bulletin Staff Writer

Behind-the-scenes activity in anticipation of Bend's annual Water Pageant this weekend stepped up today, as the final week of preparations began.

Testing of the 2500 lights in the big arch will start tonight, and launching of the floats, in the Mirror Pond forebay below the Drake Park footbridge, will take place tomorrow.

Mid-week highlight of the Pageant festivities will be the queen selection ceremony Wednesday evening at the Elks Temple. The coronation ball will follow. Court members are accelerating their ticket-selling efforts, and reservations from out-of-town continue to arrive at the Chamber of Commerce office.

The parade of floats, down the Deschutes into Mirror Pond, will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings, with pre-Pageant

Pageantarians hope forecast proves wrong

Temperatures will be below normal for the rest of this week, and there is a possibility of showers by the weekend.

This was the rather gloomy Pageant week forecast for the area received this morning from Portland — and Pageantarians are hoping that the weatherman is wrong.

But, it was generally agreed, it was unseasonably cool this morning throughout Central Oregon.

The five-day forecast calls for temperatures averaging below normal with highs in the 75-85 range and lows around 48 to 58.

The forecast calls for showers, "occurring probably Wednesday and again Friday or Saturday."

Grass blazes flare in area

Grass fires, expected to present a grave danger until fall rains come, flared in Central Oregon over the weekend and sent up great clouds of smoke.

Two dangerously flared in Central Oregon over the weekend, and in Eastern Oregon, near Baker, a grass fire spread into the Umatilla-Whitman National Forest, resulting in a call for the "Hot Shots" from the Redmond Air Center.

A C-46 plane from California early this morning picked up members of the Star Crew from Medford and the Redmond emergency crew, for work on the Eastern Oregon fire lines, on Balm Creek 15 miles northeast of Baker.

On Saturday, a wind-whipped fire near the Warm Springs Indian Reservation flared up a steep hillside and scattered embers over the Deschutes River. Some 2,000 acres of grassland was blackened by that fire.

On Crooked River near Prineville Sunday, a fire in the rim area covered about 300 acres.

Foresters said that throughout Central Oregon the fire danger will become acute as grasslands further dry, turning to fuel the dense vegetation of earlier months.

The fire danger in Central Oregon has high over the weekend because of erratic winds.

Air exercises due for India

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — The Indian government announced today that U. S. and British planes will fly air defense exercises over India.

An official spokesman said he could not specify the date of the exercises. But he said they would be held as soon as American mobile radar equipment arrives for the necessary ground control.

The government announcement stressed that agreement to hold the exercises did not commit the Western Allies to defend India in case of an air attack. Nor, it added, did it commit India to request such help.

President requests Congress to refer rail dispute to ICC for hearing, disposition

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House said today President Kennedy would ask Congress to refer the railroad rules dispute to the Interstate Commerce Commission for "prompt hearing and disposition."

Legislation to be submitted to Congress at noon PDT would bar any nationwide rail strike while the ICC considered the four-year-old work rules dispute.

The White House announcement said that provisions for job security would be contained in any ICC order in the case.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., said the legislation would be a "single shot proposal" to give the ICC broadly expanded authority to settle the current dispute.

"It is not compulsory arbitration" and is by no means "seizure" of the railroads, Mansfield told newsmen at the Capitol following a conference between Kennedy and congressional leaders of both parties.

Outlines Proposed Plan

The White House announcement of the President's legislative proposal said:

"The President at 3 p.m. this afternoon will send to the Congress legislation which will refer those railroad work rules issues which are still in dispute to the Interstate Commerce Commission for prompt hearing and disposition there would have to be a moratorium, possibly two years, on the work rules dispute while the ICC conducted hearings.

The railroads would file with the commission applications on each proposed rules change, he explained, then the regulatory agency would conduct hearings and make a final determination. It could still go back to collective bargaining after that, he said.

Mansfield told reporters the ICC was selected by the President as the basis for the legislation because it would be "completely within its jurisdiction" to deal with railroad matters. But the law would be aimed at "a specific potential crisis," he emphasized.

The Senate leader said the commerce committee would have to decide whether to sidetrack its current hearings on the public accommodations section of President Kennedy's civil rights program to consider the rail legislation.

Two Year Study Possible

Sen. John O. Pastore, R-R.I., told reporters he got the impression that the law would be aimed at "a specific potential crisis," he emphasized.

Demos hand Rocky, GOP chiefs setback

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and other Republicans pushing for a vote on the civil rights issue were dealt a setback today by the National Governors' Conference which abolished its resolution committee.

The Democratic-led move had the effect of avoiding on-the-record voting on the politically-intense issue.

The showdown vote was 33-16 in favor of an amendment offered by Democratic Gov. Grant Sawyer of Nevada. The result was reached on an almost party line basis.

But Gov. Mark Hatfield, Oregon Republican, who had offered an alternative to force voting on civil rights with limited debate permissible, warned that the governors still could get into controversy in voting on committee reports.

Forecasts Fight

Hatfield forecast a fight over a committee report on public welfare, in which he and Gov. George Romney of Michigan plan to file minority views.

Rockefeller and other Republicans fought to keep the door open for a vote on the issue but Sawyer came up with the plan to abolish the resolutions committee and thus head off another fiasco such as that last year when Southern governors staged a filibuster on the conference.

Rockefeller and Hatfield wanted a rule to permit adoption of resolutions on civil rights and other issues with a proposal containing an anti-filibuster provision.

Sawyer proposed that the entire resolutions process be abolished to avoid another Southern Democratic filibuster.

Both proposals were offered as a substitute for an executive committee proposal to abandon the present two-thirds rule for resolutions and to return to the rule in force before 1956 to require a unanimous vote.

Rule Explained

The unanimity rule would permit a single governor to veto any resolution.

The showdown came this morning at the 55th annual conference's first business session. In any event, debate on civil rights was virtually assured. Even with removal of the resolutions process, plans were made for a civil rights panel discussion Tuesday.

The civil rights issue was embroiled in presidential politics, with the names of Rockefeller and Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, potential GOP rivals, dominating talk at the conference.

Rockefeller, demanding that governors show their responsibility by going on record on issues, said in an opening statement that the real threat to the governors' conference "lies in reducing these meetings to impotence and unimportance."

Secretaries pick Portland woman

DENVER (UPI)—Mrs. Hazel A. Kellar of Portland, Ore., Saturday was elected international president of the National Secretaries Association.

She will head the 23,000-member NSA, the largest organization of business women in one profession in the world.

Mrs. Kellar is secretary to R. W. Stout, regional manager of the Coca-Cola Co., Portland.

Title Captured

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Contestants in the Miss Universe contest headed for home today, and one of them still wondered if it was all a dream.

"Somebody pinch me," suggested 18-year-old Ieda Maria Vargas of Brazil. "I want to see if I'm dreaming."
