Newport logging superintendent; Paul Jantz, stump logging contractor; C. H. Overbay, Deschutes National Forest timber management officer; Marvin Russell, local stump logging contractor, and Bill Rollan of LaPine, at the wheel of the "cat."

Lumber unions reject council's offer on wages

By United Press International
Northwest lumber unions followed their rejection of a Timber Operators Council wage offer in Portland Thursday with a strike at all Pope and Talbot, Inc., operations in Oregon and Washington today.

The action by the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) and the Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union (LSW) idled another 970 workers, pushing the number out of work in the industry contract dispute to about 25,000.

Negotiations between the unions and the Timber Operators Council (TOC), of which Pope and Talbot is a member, were broken off Thursday after a wage increase offer of 25 cents an hour was rejected.

A TOC spokesman said the unions demanded 53 1/2 cents over a three-year period. That was the increase in an agreement with Simpson Timber Co. last Friday.

The TOC quoted union officials as saying they would close all 196 members of the employer organization, one by one, if necessary.

"The unions' decision to spread the strike would be regrettable," commented Karl F. Glos, executive vice president of the TOC. "Additional closures of mills in an effort to pressure settlement on the basis of unrealistic demands would only bring more hardship to workers and families and to many communities."

Pope and Talbot was the second TOC member to be struck in as many days. Edward Hines Lumber Co. plants at Westfir and Dee, near Hood River, closed Thursday.

Federal mediator LeRoy Smith said today only one more meeting has been scheduled in the industry dispute which broke out over terms of contracts to replace those which expired June 1. That is between the IWA and Scott Paper Co. in Portland Monday.

The strike today against Pope and Talbot idled 425 men in logging crews, a sawmill, particle board plant and veneer plant at Oakridge; 129 men at St. Helens sawmill; 285 at a Kalamazoo, Wash., plywood plant, and 140 at a sawmill at Port Gamble, Wash., the company said.

Dick Gillman, public relations official for Region 3 of the IWA said a decision on which firms will be next would be made at a meeting of his union's regional advisory board in Portland Sunday.

The sit-ins were whacked off to city jail after ignoring warnings that they would be arrested if they did not get up off the floor of the city council chambers, on the 11th floor, and leave.

When the arrest came, a few of the sit-ins got up and walked off with officers, but most of them went limp and had to be dragged to an elevator for the trip down and eventually to the jail.

The nine persons over 18 were booked into the jail on charges of loitering and resisting arrest. They were later released on their personal recognizance.

Juveniles Released
Those under 18 were charged with being delinquent juveniles and released to their parents. Any disciplinary action would come after King County juvenile authorities considered the case.

Negroes here want to see the number of their race on the commission increased and they also want a Negro to be chairman of the agency. At present two of the 12 commission members are Negroes.

Jack Tanner, regional director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, heard of the disturbance while listening to his car radio and went to the city jail.

He protested that no police matrons were at the scene when the sit-ins were arrested.

Councilman Tripped
Earlier in the day, one of the sit-ins, a Negro girl, apparently tripped Councilman Charles O. Carroll as he was leaving the council chambers and Carroll fell.

Title of tax referendum challenged by Lane group

SALEM (UPI)—A Lane County group Thursday filed a petition with the Oregon Supreme Court challenging the ballot title Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Thornton prepared for the controversial tax referendum.

The petition was filed at 4:15 p.m., 45 minutes before the deadline. State Sen. Edward Fadeley, D-Eugene, submitted the petition as attorney for the "Committee for Sensible Taxation."

Signers were Richard Miller, a member of the Eugene School Board; Tom Powers, superintendent of Bethel school district; Lyle Swetland, an executive of the Lane County Central Labor Council, and Omer Vrooman, former Springfield city councilman.

The petition challenges the ballot title on seven different counts.

Court Action Uncertain

It was not known when the court would act on the petition.

Rash of range, grass fires noted in area

MADRAS — A rash of range and grass fires in Jefferson county during the month, the largest a 1200 acre blaze on the Warm Springs Indian Reservation, brought warnings of fire danger and pleas for care in burning and with fire from fire officials in the county this week.

Warm Springs forestry and fire crews battled a blaze there last weekend that covered 1200 acres and took 14 hours and the efforts of about 150 men to contain.

Since July 1, Madras volunteer firemen have been called out 17 times to range and grass fires, most of a minor nature but some of proportions that threatened buildings or crop land.

Tuesday evening, a range fire in the Mud Springs area, north and east of Madras covered an estimated 350 to 400 acres, and this one is the largest yet reported by Madras firemen. It followed a 40 acre fire a week ago on the hills west of Madras within sight of the downtown business district.

The move to refer the tax measure passed by the 1963 legislature is headed by Albany newspaper publisher J. Francyl Howard. He cannot start circulating petitions until the ballot title is certain.

The petition filed Thursday challenges Thornton's ballot title on these points:

1. The main purpose of the bill is to provide money to balance the state budget, a purpose which does not appear in the title.

2. The title contains "incomplete and insufficient cataloging of some of the alterations made" in the present bill.

3. It does not refer to the extent of reform of the present bill.

4. The statement of the increase in corporation taxes is unfair and misleading.

5. The statement that personal tax rates are lower is unfair and misleading unless qualified.

6. Some provisions for relief to some taxpayers are not mentioned.

7. It fails to disclose why a property tax levy was avoided by balancing the budget through the new bill.

New Title Suggested
Fadeley's petition suggested this title:

"Purpose: To balance budget by increasing personal income and corporate excise tax revenue. Contains contingent provisions to avoid deficit distribution surplus as property tax relief."

Thornton's title reads: "Purpose: To increase state revenues. Abolishes Federal tax deduction. Lowers personal tax rates. Provides minimum tax. Increases corporation rates. Effective on or after Jan. 1, 1963."

Firemen answer four alarms

A home fire that ignited a small portion of wall behind a stove was most serious of four fire alarms called to Bend firemen Thursday.

The fire caused moderate damage to the home of Pat Ward, 1224 E. Third. It broke out about 10:45 last night.

At 8:30 p.m. crews were called to W. 13th and Kingston to pull down a heavy cord that somehow fell across a power line.

Other alarms brought firemen to Third and Franklin, early Thursday evening, when electrical wiring burned in a car registered to Carl Stewart, 110 Newport. Only wiring damage resulted, firemen said.

At 2:22 p.m. firemen answered a forest service call reporting a fire just off Butler Market Road, about three miles outside city limits. No fire was found.

Study proposed

New interest noted in cover for pool

By Web Ruble
Bulletin Staff Writer

No action has been seen yet, but renewed fervor is developing among interested citizens to put a cover on the Bend municipal swim pool at Juniper Park.

John Harpole, physical therapist at St. Charles Memorial Hospital and an ex-coach of Bend summer swim teams, offered comments this week before the Bend Kiwanis Club concerning the eventuality of such a structure.

Harpole pointed out to Kiwanians that a federal survey could be conducted at no cost to the city. The government has a new program to do studies in line with Kennedy's physical fitness and recreation program. The study would include everything from the feasibility of erecting this cover, to deciding the required size, ventilation, and temperature control.

Harpole said the government has money set aside for these studies. He added that there are no "strings" attached as a result of the government study. In other words, the government survey is not binding. A study must be completed, Harpole pointed out, before any cost determination can be made.

Some Money Available
As for bearing the cost of building the structure itself, Harpole offered that several service clubs have money which might be used for this purpose.

At the time of pool's inception, a decision was facing pool partisans: would it be better to build a larger pool without a cover or a smaller one with a roof? Thus it was decided to build the former in 1949 for $175,000.

There has been some work done on the facility in the meantime. Four years ago, according to Harpole, the pool began leaking. This necessitated the city's repairing the breaches with gunnite (a sort of liquid concrete). This cost about $14,000.

Other than that, the Bend pool has merely cost what it takes to maintain it, Harpole said in an interview this week, hastened to add some advantages. The pool with a cover would afford year-around usage. With no cover, the swim facility can only be used during the warm summer months... the rest of the year it goes unused.

Harpole said that every year since its construction, the pool has been operated in the red. He offered that $6,000 in proceeds is gained annually from pool use, but it costs $12,000 a year to run it. He pointed out that through year-around usage, the pool could be operated in the black.

Schools Participate
In Beaverton, Roseburg, Sweet Home and other towns, Harpole said, the school district contributes a certain amount for the pool's erection and uses it during school hours during school days. As soon as the school is through with the facility, the pool reverts to city management and use. Actually, the school district would lease the pool for $10,000 and give it back to the city for the summer. City Recreation Director Vince Gentry explained.

Speaking from the viewpoint harbored by swim competitors and coaches, Harpole said he noticed communities that had covered pools had the better swim teams and produced more and better swimmers. Harpole started as swim mentor in 1963.

In spite of its lesser facilities, Bend has had some good swim teams. Bend has produced one All-American collegiate swimmer. He was Larry Lerno, now swimming instructor at Springfield's magnificent new swim facility in Willamalane Park. It has the largest "lamella" roof in the world, and cost the city of Springfield $250,000 for the cover alone.

Harpole is not proposing anything of that magnitude for Bend. Speaking for interested citizens, Harpole said there is hope for the type of setup found at those communities wherein the school district assumes a sort of "partnership."

Currently, no formal organization has been formed for getting the program underway. Harpole is one of several citizens who think it is time for Bend residents to get organized on the project.

Seattle racial action brings arrests for 23

SEATTLE (UPI) — Nine of 23 demonstrators arrested Thursday in the climax to a four-day sit-in at the Seattle City Hall were to appear in Corporation Court today.

The sit-in, including 17 Negroes and six white persons, were protesting what the Negro community here feels is the inadequacy of Negro representation on a Human Rights Commission recently set up to deal with racial problems.

The sit-ins were whacked off to city jail after ignoring warnings that they would be arrested if they did not get up off the floor of the city council chambers, on the 11th floor, and leave.

When the arrest came, a few of the sit-ins got up and walked off with officers, but most of them went limp and had to be dragged to an elevator for the trip down and eventually to the jail.

The nine persons over 18 were booked into the jail on charges of loitering and resisting arrest. They were later released on their personal recognizance.

Juveniles Released

Jack Tanner, regional director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, heard of the disturbance while listening to his car radio and went to the city jail.

He protested that no police matrons were at the scene when the sit-ins were arrested.

Councilman Tripped
Earlier in the day, one of the sit-ins, a Negro girl, apparently tripped Councilman Charles O. Carroll as he was leaving the council chambers and Carroll fell.
