London's 'girls' taking vacation until heat off

LONDON (UPI)—Many of London's prostitutes, from high-priced callgirls to bargain basement street-walkers, were "on vacation" today until the sizzling vice trial of Dr. Stephen Ward is over.

The trial of the suave, 50-year-old osteopath-artist, charged with procuring and living off the earnings of prostitutes, went into recess for the weekend Friday. It will resume at Old Bailey Court on Monday when the defense presents its last two witnesses.

"The heat is on," one expensive prostitute complained. "The Ward trial has been very bad publicity for us and many of our clients are afraid they might be implicated in some way."

The callgirl, Dorothy M., a sleek, 22-year old brunette, said many of her "play for pay" friends had gone either to the Riviera or to the United States for a vacation until the Ward case "cools off."

Janet G., who works as a "hostess" in a London nightclub, said many of her best customers—members of high society—were staying away because of the publicity the Ward case has received.

"Everyone's afraid that his name might be brought up in the Ward case," she said. "So they're behaving themselves until the trial is over."

Walt In Bars

Although soliciting is prohibited by Britain's "street offenses act," prostitutes have managed to carry on a thriving business in London by sitting in coffee bars and waiting for men to pick them up.

But even in the notorious Soho section, which is packed with strip clubs, prostitutes and some of the city's best restaurants, the street-walkers were noticeably missing Friday night. Many of them have retreated to their one-room flats in old buildings, and restrict their advertising to signs on their doorbells.

It was one such streetwalker, Vicky Barrett, who testified Ward picked her up one night and introduced her to "clients"—most of them elderly men with whom she either had sexual relations or was beat with canes and horsewhips.

Says Others Lying

"If Vicky Barrett is telling the truth then I am guilty," Ward shouted angrily at his trial Friday. He pounded his fist on the edge of the witness box as he insisted that the prosecution witnesses all were lying.

The defense called a surprise witness, auburn-haired Sylvia Parker, in an attempt to discredit Miss Barrett's testimony. The Barrett girl, who claimed she had been to Ward's apartment about 30 times, said Ward never gave her any money but told her he was saving it for her. But Miss Parker told the court she was a guest of Ward in his apartment and called Miss Barrett's testimony "a complete load of rubbish."

Obscenity war is declared

MADRAS — Men of the First Baptist Church of Madras have declared war on obscenity, the Rev. J. Doyle Collins, pastor, said this week in reporting a recent meeting of the church's Brotherhood.

The pastor said the Brotherhood adopted a resolution opposing "obscene and pornographic literature currently on display in many local newsstands in and around Madras." He said also that "these men stand in opposition to certain lewd and immoral types of movies shown at our local theaters."

The Rev. Collins stated: "It is the hope of this group of men, who come from all sections of the community, that local merchants and theatre personnel will take measures to remedy this moral breach of good social living."

President of the Brotherhood is Clyde Lee and John Martin is the secretary.

Aerialist back on high wire in show business tradition

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—"They talk about the fact that the show must go on. I always believed that too. But now I really know why. The show must go on because of Katie. We owe it to her."

Arthur Duchek, 33, is a circus aerialist. He rides a motorcycle balanced on a cable high above the arena. Below the cable two acrobats perform feats of daring—spinning on a ladder hooked beneath the cycle as it shoots back and forth above the floor at 60-miles-per-hour.

Duchek climbed aboard the motorcycle Friday and performed his act, 70 feet above the floor of the Las Vegas Convention Center. One of the acrobats suspended below in the ladder, Miss Lydia, was new to the team. She was replacing Duchek's wife Katie, who plunged to her death July 17 in Salem, Ore., when she struck a guy wire in the armory at the Oregon State Fairgrounds.

Friday's performance was the first since her death. The funeral was held last Tuesday in Los Angeles—shortly before rehearsals began for the Las Vegas opening.

"The music was playing, the spotlight was shining on us and we began our ascent up an inclined wire towards the rafters of the armory," Duchek recalled. "Katie was balanced on a ladder on the motorcycle I was driving. Her nephew Ronnie was below her. She was in top shape and in good spirits."

"Suddenly she struck a guy wire left from an earlier act and tumbled to the concrete floor below. She died a few minutes later from a broken neck. I didn't believe the doctor when he said it was all over."

Katie Duchek was 32-years-old. She and Arthur had been married 15 years and had performed together for 12 years as "The Cosmos."

"When the accident happened I didn't feel like doing anything. But now I have to go on. Katie is not going to be forgotten and the only way to have her remembered in this world is to keep the act."

Action against actress taken

VAN VUYS, Calif. (UPI)—Marie (The Beauty) McDonald, 40, faces sentencing Aug. 23 for forging two prescriptions to obtain the pain-killing drug percodan.

The blonde actress was released on $525 bail Friday by Municipal Judge Francis Cochran after she pleaded guilty to the charges, which carry a maximum penalty of one to six years in state prison.

Miss McDonald, who has had a stormy career, was booked and fingerprinted at city prison on a complaint filed by B. H. Blanchard, a state narcotics agent.

Blanchard charged that Miss McDonald obtained percodan on two occasions, June 27 at an Encino pharmacy and July 2 at a Sherman Oaks drugstore.

Miss McDonald sought an immediate preliminary hearing, promptly waived it and pleaded guilty.

Blanchard said Miss McDonald was traced through her automobile license plate number after Sherman Oaks pharmacist Darrell M. Levine became suspicious of her.

END OF WHALING

EDINBURGH, Scotland (UPI)—Britain's centuries-old whaling industry ended Friday with the sale of the last whaling factory ship, owned by Christian Salvesen and Co., Ltd., to a Japanese firm for more than $2.8 million.

A spokesman for the company said the sale had been under negotiation for several weeks. The next to last British flag whaler, rendering ship, the Southern Venture, was sold to the Japanese firm about a year ago.

Living cost hits all-time high

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The nation's living costs jumped to a new all-time high in June and sliced four cents off the buying power of a $10 bill, the Labor Department reported Friday.

The department said its consumer price index increased by four-tenths of 1 per cent last month—the biggest one month increase in nine months.

Higher prices for sugar, cigarettes and increased real estate and sales taxes pushed up the index to 106.6 of average 1957-59 prices.

This means it took $10.66 to buy the same goods and services that cost $10 about five years ago.

Arnold Chase, price expert for the Labor Department, said chances are that living costs will climb again in July to achieve another record peak.

But he said the increases reflect "past inflationary pressures rather than present or future inflationary dangers."

The June increase means about 105,000 workers will receive cost of living pay boosts ranging from 1 to 3 cents an hour.

Sugar prices soared in June and were 32 per cent higher over the month. The average American housewife paid 84 cents for five pounds of sugar last month—42 per cent more than she did a year ago.

KEEPS WORLD INFORMED

NEW DELHI (UPI)—An Indian Foreign Office spokesman said Friday night India is keeping "all friendly governments" informed about a menacing Red Chinese military buildup on the northern border.

Gen. Joyanto Nath Chaudhuri, chief of the army general staff, was called back from the United States to assess the new buildup. He canceled a planned visit to Canada.

Vigilance urged against threat by Red Chinese

TOKYO (UPI)—South Korean Foreign Minister Kim Yong Shik called today for increased free-world vigilance against the continuing threat of aggression by the Communists in China.

Interviewed by UPI on the 10th anniversary of the Korean armistice, Kim said the current split between Russia and Red China should not be regarded as a sign that the free world can relax.

"Red China and Soviet Russia used to be in the same boat," he said. Now they are in separate boats, shouting at each other. But they are rowing in the same direction . . .

"The Chinese Communists . . . have shown in the past that they do not hesitate to create international tension to divert popular attention from their domestic troubles."

"It has been some time now since Peking started trouble along the Indian frontier. We may expect tension somewhere else soon."

Kim said the Communists in Korea "are more aggressive than ever—and they have very close relations with Peking."

DENIES KHRUSHCHEV VISIT

BUDAPEST (UPI)—The Hungarian Foreign Ministry today denied newspaper reports that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev would visit Hungary next month.

A foreign ministry spokesman termed Western press reports "untrue" in their claims Khrushchev would make a short stop here prior to his scheduled August trip to Yugoslavia.

Frenzied Fidel Castro charges United States with cheating him of $10 million in ransom goods

HAVANA (UPI)—Premier Fidel Castro, in a frenzied three-hour speech Friday night, charged the United States cheated him out of $10 million in promised ransom goods and said he is not going to revoke his "confiscation" of the American Embassy here.

The Cuban leader insulted President Kennedy and said he was pursuing "a stupid policy toward Cuba."

The bearded Communist leader also called on his followers in Latin America to revolt against their governments and unveiled a Cuban-written song, "The March of Latin America," to inspire them. He pledged the support of the Soviet Union and the entire Communist bloc.

In his address in the Plaza of the Revolution here, Castro marked the 10th anniversary of his unsuccessful attack on the Moncada army barracks in Santiago, Cuba, with one of the most violent attacks on the U.S. since he came into power in 1959.

But his charge that Washington had "swindled" him out of $10 million worth of ransom goods pledged for the release of the 1,113 Cuban Bay of Pigs prisoners came as a surprise.

"The United States was obliged to pay $3 million but they paid only $4 million and they are absolute swindlers," he told a roaring crowd estimated by the government at several hundred thousand.

New York Attorney James B. Donovan, who handled the negotiations for the prisoners' release, "was prevented from fulfilling the agreements with us 100 per cent," Castro said.

"The American Red Cross owes us $10 million and the U.S. government is trying to swindle the Cuban people in a shameful way," he charged.

In Washington, a Red Cross spokesman said "as far as we knew, everything was delivered." The last of nine shipments of ransom goods arrived in Havana earlier this month, he said.

"The Cuban Red Cross considered this to be the last shipment and were effusive in their thanks," he added. Donovan also confirmed that delivery in full had been made and that "it was over except for tying up a few loose ends."

"We know nothing about this charge," the Red Cross spokesman said.

Castro said the United States will have to deal with his regime eventually. "What other choice do they have?" he asked. "They will have to co-exist with us because we are here and we shall continue to be here."

He said even if the United States continues to ignore his government "we shall wait until there is a socialist (Communist) government in the U.S. and discuss it with them."

Castro called Kennedy a "ruffian" who is planning a new invasion of Cuba.

The Cuban government is willing to discuss relations with all countries including the United States," he said.

He was adamant — to the Swiss government as well as Washington—about his "seizure"—unprecedented diplomatically—of the modernistic U.S. Embassy building in Havana.

U.S. puts up new satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—The United States Friday launched a Syncom 2 communications satellite toward an apparently successful elliptical orbit and planned to boost the spacecraft into a "hanging" orbit 22,300 miles above earth about five hours later.

The Syncom 2's Delta booster sent the satellite streaking skyward atop a bright red pillar of flame at 7:33 a.m. PDT.

About nine minutes after blast-off the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) announced the satellite, capable of two-way telephone and telegraph transmission, had separated from its booster.

Sixteen minutes after liftoff, the federal space agency said that the launching appeared to be normal. The gleaming white rocket climbed steeply into the clear sky and after two and half minutes its second stage ignited on time.

Today's launching was the fourth attempt after three postponements due to technical difficulties.

handles U.S. affairs in Cuba, occupies the building and has announced it will not voluntarily surrender it. The U.S. has also lodged a protest against the move which was taken in retaliation for the freezing of some $32 million in Cuban bank accounts in the United States.

Perry attends welfare meet

SALEM (UPI)—Ralph W. Perry Sr., whose appointment by acting Gov. Ben Mussa this week stirred up a storm of controversy, attended his first meeting of the State Public Welfare Commission Friday.

Perry, a Hood River orchardist, was welcomed by other members of the commission and sat quietly as the group went through its agenda.

Assistant Welfare Administrator Geraldine Derby reported the two welfare fraud investigators authorized by the recent legislature will begin their duties in two weeks.

She said an "excellent list" of candidates had applied for the jobs. One of those selected is a former Scotland Yard investigator.

Mrs. Derby also reported a new unit which will make a continuing spot check of eligibility in welfare cases would begin work this fall.

The commission said it is continuing to hold final results of an Aid to Dependent Children eligibility study made last spring confidential.

Results of the Oregon study won't be made public until a U.S. Senate committee is given a report it ordered on a nationwide eligibility survey. The Oregon study is part of the national report.

Welfare Administrator Andrew Juras told an Oregon legislative committee that preliminary reports showed errors in eligibility and payments had been found in about 5 per cent of the Oregon ADC cases.
