Lumber unions close down more plants

By United Press International

Northwest lumber unions closed down more Edward Hines Lumber Co. operations this morning before sitting down to discuss further spread of the strike that has idled nearly 28,000 workers in four states.

However, Scott Paper Co. and the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) were expected to announce agreement today in Portland on a new contract covering 440 loggers and boom men who supply logs to the company's mills at Everett and Anacortes, Wash.

Pickets appeared at the Hines sawmill and glue-up factory at the town of Hines, near Burns, at 6 a.m. today. Others closed logging operations near Hines and at Seneca. About 800 men were idled, according to Herman Gerhardt, general manager of the operations.

Gerhardt said negotiations with the Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union (LSW) broke down Friday after the company refused to consider a one-year contract.

The only Hines Co. workers still on the job today were at Bates, in Grant County. Gerhardt said 144 men were working in woods crews and at a sawmill there. The LSW and the IWA struck Hines plants at Westfir and Dee, near Hood River, Thursday.

Meanwhile, officials of the two unions were scheduled to meet in Portland this afternoon to map out further strikes.

The meeting was set after the 30-member advisory committee of both unions Sunday authorized extension of the striketo any companies that fail to agree soon on new contracts to replace those which expired June 1.

Harvey Nelson, president of Region 3 of the IWA, demanded all firms meet terms of an agreement reached with Simpson Timber Co. July 19. It called for wage increases of 33½ cents spread over three years.

"We realize the impact the closing of the lumber industry could have on the West Coast but we know our demands are reasonable and the employers can meet them without economic hardship," Nelson said.

Decision made in Tillamook milk dispute

TILLAMOOK (UPI) — Clatsop County Circuit Judge Avery Combs has handed down a lengthy decision in the three-way Tillamook milk marketing dispute.

The dispute involved the Tillamook County Creamery Association and Tillamook Fluid Milk Shippers Association as defendants and the Tillamook Cheese and Dairy Association (TCDA) as plaintiff.

At issue was ownership of distribution and processing facilities, control of shipments of about 100,000 pounds of milk daily and responsibility for paying costs of the operation.

Combs ruled the TCDA is autonomous and can conduct its grade A fluid milk business without interference from the other two associations.

The court also found that the creamery association is not a holding company and may not dictate the policies and management of TCDA except where it is clearly spelled out in contracts; that the creamery association is entitled to sell the Grade A milk produced by members of the TCDA under a marketing agreement of 1950, but that it must make an accounting of the proceeds from milk sales and that the marketing agreement does not give the creamery association the right to loan funds belonging to TCDA, although it has the right to negotiate such loans with customers subject to approval of the TCDA directors.

Combs ruled the creamery association owns the equipment and granted an injunction to prevent TCDA from breaching terms of the 1950 agreement.

In the matter of formation of the Tillamook Fluid Milk Shippers Association, the court found that provisions of the bylaws of the creamery association were not followed when the TFMSA was accepted as a member, and its acceptance into the creamery association is null and void.

HEADS DELEGATION

Boost in true cash value of Oregon utilities noted

SALEM (UPI)—True cash value of utility properties in Oregon is $85 million more than a year ago, the State Tax Commission said today.

The commission values all utility property in the state for property tax purposes, although collection is made on the county level.

The total true cash value of utilities was put at $1.378 billion, compared to the 1962 value of $1.313 billion.

Electric companies continue to lead other utilities in both dollar growth and dollar valuation. The $644 million in electric company valuation is 5.5 per cent above last year and makes up 46.7 per cent of the total utility value.

Biggest percentage growth was in the pipeline category which recorded a 156.7 per cent gain. The reason was the new Southern Pacific Pipeline Co. project which runs from Portland to Eugene with large tank farms near Albany and Eugene.

The pipeline value jumped from $3.5 million to $9.2 million.

Biggest county increase in the percentage of utility valuation came in Jefferson County where the value was up 37.4 per cent.

The addition of $14 million in value as a result of Portland General Electric's Round Butte Dam was the reason for this spurt.

Although true cash value was up, the assessed value of utilities was down in Crook, Gilliam, Morrow, Multnomah, Sherman and Wasco counties. This resulted from a decrease in tax ratios ordered by the State Tax Commission.

Chamber to host visitors here Tuesday evening

Oregon highway commissioners, accompanied by Bureau of Public Roads and U.S. Forest Service engineers, will be in Bend Tuesday night for a Bend Chamber of Commerce sponsored dinner and meeting at the Golf Club.

Some 40 local residents have made reservations to meet with the visiting officials at the 6:30 dinner.

All three members of the Highway commission will be here. Glenn L. Jackson, Medford, is chairman; K. N. Fridley, Wasco, and David B. Simpson, Portland, are members. Forest Cooper, state engineer, and members of his staff will be in the party of 36 that will arrive here from the south Tuesday afternoon.

Also in the group will be members of the legislative interim committee on highways — Rep. W. H. Holstrom, chairman; Sen. R. F. Chapman, Sen. John J. Inskeep, Rep. Norman R. Howard, Rep. Kenneth Maher and Rep. Fred Meek.

BPR Engineers B. M. French and A. W. Parsons will also be with the group, as will Vance Blackwell, engineer representing the U.S. Forest Service.

Warren Nunn, executive assistant to the governor, will fly in on Tuesday afternoon.

Members of the group will leave Medford Tuesday morning, drive to the California state line, then visit Klamath Falls and Crater Lake.

Game agency to be asked for aid in name selections

Special to The Bulletin

MEDFORD — The Oregon State Game Commission, now recognized as the No. 1 originator of geographic names in the state, is to be asked to cooperate with the Oregon Georgraphic Names Board.

This is the result of a suggestion made at the summer meeting of the Oregon Historical Society sponsored group in Medford this past weekend, with Phil F. Brogan, Bend, board chairman, presiding. Present were 22 members of the 25 man board.

Scores of names proposed for Oregon geographic features were considered. Most suggestions for name changes were tabled or turned over to Bob Scott, OHS coordinator for the board, for further study.

It was noted that the game commission in assigning names to geographic features, mostly lakes, takes such action merely to make record of places where fish have been planted. It is not the intention of the game commission people to make these names permanent — but, it was noted, many of these names are taking their places on the map of Oregon.

'Temporary Names'

Scores of lakes in the high Cascades have been given "temporary names" by game commission men. Some of these names date back nearly 20 years.

One of the names given a picture mountain lake was "Dennis," in the Deschutes National Forest. This is in a high crater on the northeast slope of Irish Mountain. It covers about 12 acres, and is of cerulean blue — a beauty spot, alpinists say, in the Oregon Cascades.

It was proposed at the Medford meeting this lake be officially known as "Cerulean Lake." The proposal was deferred for further study, primarily because the blue crater pool is known as Dennis Lakes.

"Who was Dennis?" members of the board asked, and the game commission will be asked to provide the answer.

Positive Action Taken

The board at its daylong meeting, with Eric W. Allen, Jr., of the Medford Mail Tribune as host, did take most positive action on one name change. Horace L. Arment, new board member from Ontario, said a geographic feature in the Jordan Valley country is now generally known as "Louse Creek." Originally, it was learned, the early day Basques of the area knew the creek as "La Rosa Creek." In some manner, "La Rosa" became known as "Louse." Arment suggested that the creek be named "Wild Rose Creek." The board favored "La Rosa Creek," and will recommend this to the National Board on Geographic Names.

The board will also suggest that the new span under construction near the mouth of the Columbia River be known as the "Astoria Bridge." This recommendation will be made to the Oregon and Washington Highway Commissions.

Name Tendency Noted

It was noted that there is a tendency to call the span the "Megler Bridge," for the village on the Washington side of the Columbia. Other names suggested were "Robert Gray," "Tonquin," and "Columbia."

The board officially approved the names "Simtustis" for the man-made lake behind the Pelton Dam, and "Billy Chinook" for the lake which will form behind the Round Butte dam in the coming year.

A proposal to name a landmark in the Broken Top country Battleship Oregon Rock was laid aside without action. The board felt that a battleship would be out of place in the high, volcanic Cascades.

Bunting flying at Prineville

Special to The Bulletin

PRINEVILLE — Brightly colored bunting was flying over Prineville's downtown streets today, heralding the beginning of rodeo days and the quickening of interest for the 1963 Crooked River Roundup, August 9-11.

Ticket sales at the downtown ticket office in the Bowman building were reported brisk in recent days by Roscoe Hopper, roundup board member in charge of advance reserved seat sales.

In downtown stores and businesses, many clerks, managers and other employees were setting the style pace today in costumes geared to western theme. Busiest of the local citizenry in prerodeo days appear to be the dozen or more chairmen for a variety of Crook-O-Dao events to be held throughout next week, starting August 6, and members of the roundup board who are swinging into their final days of preparation for the annual roundup.

Names of leading riders and ropers who will be in Prineville for the event were expected to be announced soon.

2 small grass fires reported

Two small grass fires on residential property summoned city firemen over the weekend but caused no damage.

A fire Saturday evening started from sparks from a burner at the home of Dr. Richard Robinson, 789 Vicksburg.

A Sunday evening fire was extinguished by crews on Butler Market Road, home of R. M. Vierley.

Keith Skelton candidacy seen

EUGENE (UPI)—Keith Skelton, who served in the 1957 and 1959 legislatures, is apparently going to seek an Oregon House seat in 1964.

Mrs. John Shepherd, Eugene, today announced a committee formed to promote Skelton's candidacy and said the former lawmaker "will announce his candidacy at the appropriate time."

Skelton was chairman of the powerful Ways and Means Committee of the legislature in 1959.
