WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department has calculated the personal income of the farm population from all sources in 1962 at $20.5 billion. This is $450 million over the personal income in 1961 and up about $1 billion from 1960.

The department said the rise since 1960 was due to an increase in the personal income from farm sources. The personal income from non-farm sources went down slightly from 1960 to 1962.

The department defines the personal income from farm sources as the total net income of farm operators, including government payments, less the net income of non-resident farm operators, plus wages and salaries and other labor income of farm resident workers, less contributions of the farm resident operators and the workers to social insurance.

The agency said personal income of the farm population from non-farm sources is income received from non-farm wages and salaries, business and professional income, interest and transfer payments, such as unemployment compensation, social security, and veterans' benefits. Also included under non-farm income is rental income from non-farm sources and an estimate of income from such as dividends and royalties.

Farm residents in recent years have received about 65 per cent of their total personal income from farm sources, the department said. This percentage varies, of course, for farms in different sales groups.

The personal income of farm persons in 1962 was $1,436 per capita — $940 from farm sources and $496 from non-farm sources, the department said. These figures were record high. Even so, the personal income of the farm population in 1962 was only 50 per cent of the $2,445 per capita personal income of the non-farm population.

The final national average support price for 1963-crop rice has been set at $4.71 per hundredweight. This is the same as the advance support rate announced in December, 1962. The support rate reflects 72.9 per cent of the parity price of $6.46 per hundredweight for rice as of Aug. 1.

The 1961 and 1962 rice crops were supported at $3.71 per hundredweight.

A department statistical report on farm employment from 1910 through 1959 shows that peak employment for both family and hired hands was reached in 1916. There were 13.6 million persons working on U. S. farms in 1916, just prior to U. S. entry into World War I.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — New York Yankee star Yogi Berra has made his dramatic television debut — playing a brain surgeon on a network soap opera.

Bewildered by the maze of lights, wires and cameras, Berra Friday collected $155 for his bit part on ABC television's "General Hospital," which stars former Cleveland Indians infielder John Berardino.

Berra and umpire Art Passarella also were onstage for Berra's debut, made at the request of Berardino.

"I was just doing it as a favor," Berra said afterward. "He told me I wouldn't have any lines, but they gave me three after I got here."

"The only time I was nervous was during rehearsals," Berra noted the episode appeared to be an all-Italian show. All three baseball figures are Italian and the series is sponsored by Chef Boy-Ar-Dee ravioli.

Berra sailed through his lines without a fluff.

Later he said, "television is big enough for both me and Yogi Berra. I was going to sue the Yogi Berra program for using my name, until somebody reminded me Yogi isn't my real name—it's Lawrence."

Asked by Berardino if he would like to be a regular member of the cast, Berra replied: "I haven't sunk that far yet."

Italian police move against world dope ring

ROME (UPI) — Italian police moved against an international ring today on leads developed from information supplied by an American girl under arrest on drug charges.

Authorities identified the girl as Barbara Joan Spark, 22, of Pacific Palisades, Calif., and said she had thousands of dollars worth of marijuana in her suitcase when picked up here last Thursday. The Italian press pictured her as an out-and-out amateur in the illicit drug trade.

"Please don't tell my parents," she was quoted as begging.

Police said that under questioning the California girl supplied them with information that led to the arrest of two men in Rome Friday.

French police, in a development so far not connected to the arrests in Italy, picked up two Canadians Friday preparing to leave Paris on separate flights from Orly Airport. Thirteen pounds of heroin were found in their luggage, police said.

Arrested here were Raymon Juan Rada, 24, a Venezuelan, and Umberto Magostini, 24, an unemployed Italian. Police said both men admitted peddling narcotics along Rome's "Broadway," the Via Veneto.

Police said information supplied by the American brunette led to the arrest of both men.

Miss Spark herself was put under surveillance on the basis of a tip given authorities in Florence by two of her Italian friends, police said. Her hotel room was searched because of the tip.

Italian police implicated a third man in the case but did not reveal his name. They said he was a foreigner who supplied Rada and Magostini with the drugs they sold.
