Report from London fails to mention 'No. 1 topic'

By Rick Du Row
UPI Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — NBC-TV's "Report From—" series deals with current topics of conversation in various major cities, so you can imagine with what eagerness I tuned in Tuesday night's show from London.

So far as I know, there has been only one topic of conversation in London this summer — and you know what that is. So I grabbed a bottle of beer, told the lady I had some serious work to do, locked the door to the study and settled down for a half-hour of healthy dissipation, wondering what new tack NBC would take for the saga of Christine, Mandy, et al.

Well, first off, there was a report on the new "pop art" craze which apparently is sweeping London, and it struck me that this was an ingenious way to approach so delicate a subject, though the category seemed to be questionable and a matter of opinion at best.

Several artists discussed their work, and there were a number of pretty girls on camera, though no one would recognize. We were told that there is no Bohemia under Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's affluent society — and for a moment it seemed we might be circling in our subject. But that was about as close as we got. It was most informative to hear of the "pop art," but somehow there was a vague feeling that a certain major topic of conversation was missing.

Well, next up, there was a report on London's changing architecture, and while it is always interesting to know what is going on, it seemed remarkable to learn that this subject was of more current interest to the residents of that city than other topics.

Anyway, there were some more shots of pretty girls, one in slacks, and there was a look at London's cozy mews cottages — and once again, it almost appeared that we were in for an ingenious method of tackling the real subject at hand. But then we were informed by a British editor that if there is one thing that sums up London's problems (presumably in the architectural area), it is Piccadilly Circus — and once again we were light miles from the main topic of conversation on the Thames.

Finally, we had a pleasant visit to the nightclub of satire, "The Establishment." And there was an excellent, viciously humorous one-man skit by David Frost, young host of the acclaimed British television satire show, "This Was The Week That Was." This was razor-sharp as an upper-class British gentleman defending fox-hunting by saying: "Fox hunting is the only effective way of killing fox." Anyway, the show ended shortly thereafter, and Frost and reporter Joseph C. Harsch were so amiable and adept that one almost forgot that the major topic of conversation in London this summer was missing.

The Channel Swim: Writer Ben Hecht and actress Janet Leigh visit NBC-TV's "Today" show next Tuesday. Same day, CBS-TV's "Talent Scouts" offers Anthony Newly, Paul Anka, Hermine Gindgold, Liberace and Hugh Downs as the introducers of new professional entertainers.

All three video networks are planning heavy live coverage of the scheduled Aug. 28 "March on Washington" which is aimed at gaining support for President Kennedy's civil rights bill. A number of same-day spot news specials on the march are in prospect, too.

Actor John Gavin will star in a planned one-hour ABC-TV series, "Destiny," based on the famous oldtime movie "Destiny Rides Again," a Western with Jimmy Stewart and Marlene Dietrich. Tentative scheduling has the series on the 1964-65 slate, if it makes it.

NBC-TV this season will air two one-hour specials dealing with uniquely American themes. The first, "American Spectacle," about natural wonders of the land and narrated by Van Heflin, is listed for March 20. The other, "The Red, White and Blue," will be about patriotism — its past and what has happened to it; this program is set for June or July.

Ebony said Mays' and former heavyweight champion Joe Louis' "influence has rarely extended beyond the diamond or ring." Ebony said it also excluded "those celebrities who have let it be known their professional careers and the fight for civil rights 'don't mix.'"

The list included: Philadelphia Municipal Judge Raymond P. Alexander, singer Marian Anderson, author James Baldwin, entertainer Harry Belafonte, United Nations Undersecretary Ralph Bunche, Manhattan Borough President Edward R. Dudley.

U.S. Circuit Judge William H. Hastie; Associate White House Press Secretary Andrew Hatcher, Malcolm X and Elijah Muhammad of the Black Muslims, Rep. Adam C. Powell (D-N.Y.) and Carl T. Rowan, ambassador to Finland.

In addition there were a number of prominent persons from the business world, the arts, education, business and public life.

Navy silent on Red ships

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy maintained silence today on reports that 30 Russian fishing trawlers had been sighted three or four miles off Cape Cod, Mass.

When told of the report, a Navy spokesman would say only: "The seas are free." He pointed out that no objection can be raised to the presence of the vessels unless there is grounds for complaint.

One Navy officer, commenting on past activities of the Soviet trawlers, said it is known that some of them carry more elaborate electronic gear than could conceivably be used for fishing purposes.

The gear might be used for monitoring communications, or the flight of missiles off Cape Canaveral, he said.

BONE CAUSES DEATH

SWINDON, England (UPI) — Mrs. Olive Baldwin, 64, died 10 days after a chicken bone became lodged in her throat because X-rays failed to discover it, the coroner said Tuesday.
