

MONKEY BUSINESS — Bend Scout Troop 25 members are shown constructing a 'monkey bridge,' used for crossing streams or deep gulleys. The bridge was built and displayed at the 1963 Scout Exposition at the fairgrounds in Redmond.

Local Boy Scouts note another year of progress

By Jane Brown
Bulletin Staff Writer

United Fund support has helped the Boy Scouts of America program experience another year of growth in both membership and training advantages.

Central Oregon membership showed an increase of 10 per cent according to Boyd Karer, district scout executive, reaching 1303 in number. There has also been an increase in the number of volunteer leaders, now totaling 460.

United Fund money makes a through training of the volunteer leaders possible. Visual and training aids used in the program are purchased with the money. Karer's training and salary are also paid through United Fund support.

Boys from eight to ten years of age can begin in the program as Cub Scouts. Boy Scouts range from 11 to 17 years of age and Explorer Scouts are from 14 to 17.

The highest rank which a Scout can attain is that of an Eagle Scout, which takes about three years. There are two Eagle Scouts in Bend Troop 69 this year, Greg Hunt and Ron Jackson.

To be an Eagle Scout, a boy must go through Scout craft training, then earn 21 merit badges, and go before the Eagle Board of Review.

Boys and leaders have worked together this year to organize a summer program for continued interest in the Cub Scout program. This summer about 90 per cent of the boys have remained active through various outdoor activities. There is usually one pack activity per month.

Sixty-five boys and leaders have taken advantage of the facilities at Camp Maktulla on Crescent Lake. They have been given compass, rifle, canoeing, and other aquatic training not available during the school year. This summer, six Explorer Scouts hiked 50 miles along the Skyline Trail.

Eight Explorer Scouts from Bend joined six other Central Oregon Scouts for a 4200 mile trek, via bus, to the Scout Ranch near Cimmaroon, N. M. The 37,000 acre ranch was given to the Boy Scouts and is used nationally for training of boys and leaders.

Locally, the Scouts participate in hiking, conservation, and "good-turn" projects. Troop 69 painted the pedestrian section of the Franklin underpass. The rifle range on Century Drive was cleaned up by Troop 90. As a conservation project, Troop 21 cut the trunks of trees with wire.

The original idea for the Boy Scout program was brought to the United States from England and chartered by Congress in 1916. There are 12 geographical regions in the country under the Boy Scout program. Portland is the regional center. There are 29 councils within this region. Central Oregon started its council in 1937.

Interest in the program is growing each year, both from adults and youngsters. In a continuous circle, more institutions are working with the Boy Scouts of America in backing the program. This provides more facilities for more boys in year round activity.

Wool contest entry blanks now available

Entry blanks for the 17th annual "Make it with Wool" contest are available at the Extension Office at the courthouse in Bend, or from Mrs. Clyde Carlson, chairman, Route 1, Box 276, Bend. They are also available at fabric counters in department stores.

Judging will be at a public style show Saturday, September 14, in Redmond.

Steamstresses in the 13-through-21 age bracket are eligible to enter garments made of 100 per cent wool loomed in America.

"Girls in the 4-H clothing projects are the 'early birds' of the contest," Mrs. Carlson said, "but all school girls, young marrieds and career girls are urged to enter the sewing contest."

Garments made for 4-H, even those winning awards at the Oregon State Fair, will be eligible for competition as long as the qualifications are met.

Contest divisions are "Sub Deb," restricted to the county level for beginning seamstresses ages 13-15; "Junior Division," for girls 14 through 17, and "Senior Division," for girls 18 through 21.

Junior and senior winners from each of Oregon's 16 districts will take part in the Oregon finals in Portland November 3 and 4. State winners will receive expense-paid trips to Albuquerque, N.M., to model in the national finals Jan. 20, 1964.

County competition is the first step in the contest that offers such prizes as a 14-day tour of the Caribbean via Pan-American jet plane, college scholarships, savings bonds and cash prizes.

Prizes are given at all levels, with county winners receiving wool yardage or other gifts.

SALEM (UPI) — Members of the State Fish and Game Commissions have been asked to discuss a proposed initiative to outlaw commercial salmon fishing on the Columbia River at a natural resources committee meeting Sept. 4.

Dan Allen, executive secretary of the resources group, said Gov. Mark Hatfield had invited representatives of both commissions to attend the meeting.

The Save our Salmon and Steelhead, Inc., group has filed notice of its plans to circulate petitions so the issue can be placed on the ballot next year.

Agreement set with Potlatch

PORTLAND (UPI) — Negotiators for the Timber Operators Council (TOC) and the two lumber unions met here today to try to ring down the final curtain on the wage dispute that resulted in the Northwest lumber strike.

At the same time, another settlement on the 30 1/2-cent hourly formula over three years was announced. Potlatch Forests, Inc., and the International Woodworkers of America (IWA), reached agreement in Lewiston, Idaho, on a three-year contract covering 3,000 union members. Potlatch had not been struck.

The 196-member TOC last met with the unions July 23 and offered a 25-cent hourly increase over three years. This was rejected. Since then several TOC members, the giant Georgia-Pacific firm and the Big Six, have settled on the 30 1/2-cent formula.

The TOC meeting with the IWA and the Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union (LSW) was scheduled at 1 p.m. with federal mediators present.

Mercury drops to 36 in Bend

The temperature in Bend dropped to 36 degrees in the pre-dawn hours today, to make the area one of the coolest spots in the United States. Redmond reported a mild 41 degrees for the night.

Fair weather is to continue, forecasts indicate, but there will be some clouds in the eastern part of the state and low clouds in western Oregon and along the coast in the morning hours. High clouds covered Central Oregon skies this morning.

ACCIDENT NOTED

Two out of state cars were involved in a traffic accident at the U.S. 97 - U.S. 20 overcrossing north of Bend at 8:20 a.m. today. Damage to the cars was slight. No one was injured. Arthur J. Kinsela, Twin Falls, Idaho, was operator of one car, and George G. Ogle, Oroville, Wash., the other.
