

GEORGE A. WARRINGTON

Warrington gets promotion

George A. Warrington, a native Oregonian who grew up in Bend and attended grade and high school here, has been named assistant general manager of Pacific Trailways, a firm with which he has been affiliated for the past 17 years. Warrington presently is Pacific Trailways comptroller and will continue that position.

Appointment of Warrington was jointly announced by Myrl P. Hoover, Trailways president, and William Niskanen, vice-president and general manager.

A graduate from Bend High School with the class of 1941, Warrington served overseas with the Army Engineers in World War II, with the rating of master sergeant. His first work with Pacific Trailways was in the Bend office. He has served as comptroller for the past 13 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Warrington are the parents of four sons, two of whom are in the service. Danny is with the Army in Asia and Dennis is with the Marines. Douglas is attending college and Brian is at home.

Warrington is an active member of the Bend Lions Club and served as president of the local group this past year.

Housing sought by students

Several Central Oregon College students who wish to live in Bend during their college tenure are seeking housing.

The demand for students' lodgings has increased considerably, along with larger enrollments, according to COC officials. Some students wish board and room while others prefer a small apartment or room with cooking privileges.

A number of students are seeking either part or full-time employment to help support themselves and their families.

Anyone having lodgings or employment available should phone Roy Sailer, COC faculty member, at 382-1752 or the State Employment Service, 382-3611.

2,000 angry Negroes converge at home of leader after bomb blast Tuesday night at Birmingham

By United Press International
 A bomb blasted the front of a Negro integration leader's home in Birmingham, Ala., Tuesday night digging a two-foot hole in the ground and bringing 2,000 angry rock-hurling Negroes to the scene.

Shots were fired but no serious casualties were reported. Police fired over the heads of the milling Negroes and several shots were fired from a darkened area by unidentified persons.

The blast, heard 10 miles away, shattered windows, loosened bricks, blew in a garage door, damaged two cars and slightly damaged one room inside the house of attorney Arthur Shores, a long-time court battler in Alabama integration cases.

One policeman was struck in the head with a rock and taken to a hospital during a tense period when Negroes congregated near the site of the bombing.

In other developments in the nation's turbulent racial scene, Negro demonstrators promised more protest marches today in racially-tense Plaquemine, La., a small town on the Mississippi River.

In Mobile, Ala., a federal court judge was scheduled to rule on a plan to desegregate the city's grade schools.

Other racial developments:
Farmville, Va.: School registration began for about 1,600 Negro children who have been without classes since 1959 in Prince Edward County. The school system is free, integrated and sponsored independently of public moieties.

Albany, Ga.: A federal court hearing was set for Thursday on Negro objections to a grade-a-year desegregation plan slated to go into effect in September, 1964.

New York: Civil rights groups planned to demonstrate today at City Hall to protest alleged bias in the construction industry.

Columbia, S.C.: The University of South Carolina asked a federal appeals court to overturn a ruling that Negro Henri Monteith be admitted to the all-white school.

Jackson, Tenn.: In compliance with federal court orders, racially integrated school districts were announced in Jackson. Total integration is to be accomplished by 1967, city officials said.

Shreveport, La.: A federal judge dismissed a Justice Department suit seeking desegregation of public schools in nearby Bossier Parish (county).

Boston: Negro leaders called the chairman of the Boston School Committee a "muddling, inept woman."

Boston: The Massachusetts Board of Education condemned de facto segregation and said it would do its utmost to equalize opportunities for the underprivileged.

Kennedy cites Utah situation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy backed up his argument for a test ban treaty Tuesday by citing a report that Utah infants have been exposed to a possibly dangerous level of radioactive iodine.

At his news conference, Kennedy said the report was a "matter for concern" but added that findings in the report were not unanimous.

However, he said "it does tell us that it is desirable to get a test ban."

PLEA HEARING SET

PROSSER, Wash. (UPI)—Judge Albert N. Bradford, Walla Walla, is expected to hear the plea of former Benton County Treasurer John Grigg, 58, Thursday on charges of misappropriating county funds, according to Benton County Prosecutor Herb Davis.

Grigg is charged with misappropriating $548 and is free under $1,500 bond.
