Nikita admits Soviet farm situation bad

MOSCOW (UPI) — Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, admitting that bad weather has put Soviet agricultural production in a "rather difficult position," today continued his trouble-shooting tour of the state-run farms.

No figures have been released on the size of this year's wheat harvest, but the Soviet purchase of 7 million tons of wheat from Canada indicates it will be at least that much short of the 147 million tons harvested last year.

(Congressional sources in Washington said the Soviets are interested in buying an additional 3 million tons of American wheat.)

Urged Utmost Efforts
Khrushchev, who has given a great deal of advice and countless directives to the farmers and officials on the collective and state farms, urged them again Monday to make the "utmost efforts" to make up for the poor harvest.

The main way to do this, he said, was for Russia to manufacture for use as much chemical fertilizer as the United States does. Soviet production must reach 25 million tons a year by 1965, he said, about the same as U. S. production now, and 100 million tons by 1970.

Khrushchev, whose remarks to peasants in the Ukrainian town of Novaya Kakhovka were published in Monday's Izvestia, said irrigation also had high priority. He called for more irrigation systems and the training of specialists in the field.

In Bad Position
"This year weather conditions were unfavorable and we found ourselves in a rather difficult position, and must draw the necessary conclusions," Khrushchev said.

He called for measures "to safeguard us against any eventualities." As one of these measures, he urged an increase of grain production in the Hungarian Steppes, where there are large-scale irrigation projects.

By raising more grain in this area of Kazakhstan and Uzbekistan, he said, the nation would have a kind of insurance, a "guaranteed fund" in grain.

Military pay boost approved, goes to JFK
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress today sent President Kennedy the largest military pay raise in the nation's history. The legislation would provide a $1.2 billion increase for the armed forces, effective today.

The House acted after less than an hour of debate. The Senate voted last week to approve the compromise which calls for a pay hike for all those in the military service except 742,000 low-ranking draftees and enlistees still serving their two-year military obligation.

For other enlisted men, the pay boost would range from $12 a month for privates to $70 a month for senior master sergeants. For officers, the increases would range from $49 to $110 a month. Overall, they average a little more than 14 per cent. The last pay raise was passed by Congress in 1958.

Suffers wound
Special to The Bulletin
MADRAS — Suffering from an accidental gunshot wound in the left arm, Mrs. Roy Miller, 43, was taken to the Redmond District Hospital last night in the Madras ambulance.

The accident occurred at the Miller home, at the Madras refuse disposal area west of town, about 7 o'clock. Information obtained by investigating Oregon State Police indicates Mrs. Miller was handling a gun with which she was not acquainted when the weapon discharged.

DINNER PLANNED
BEAVERTON (UPI)—Washington County Democrats will hold their annual Senator Wayne Morse birthday dinner Oct. 17.

Lie detector test given suspect at Birmingham

Two men still being held on open charges

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — One of two suspects being held in connection with recent racial bombings in this steel city was given a lie detector test today.

Police said the test, given to R.E. Chambliss, was a resumption of one started Monday and called off after Chambliss, 59, fell asleep.

The other suspect, Charles Cagle, 22, remained in jail while interrogation of Chambliss resumed.

The two, both with Ku Klux Klan backgrounds, underwent questioning by state investigators Monday at the city jail where they can be held 72 hours on an open charge. They were arrested Sunday night.

Col. Al Lingo, head of the state police, has kept details of the arrests and results of the questioning secret.

"Those are the men being held in connection with the bombings," Lingo said.

But, he added, "we are not through yet" with the investigation of bombings here, the worst of which, on Sept. 15, killed four Negro girls in the 16th Street Baptist Church. The city has had 23 bombings since 1956 and none has been solved despite around $80,000 in reward money.

Lie Detector Test
Lingo said Chambliss was given a lie detector test late Monday but it was not known whether Cagle took a similar test. The results were not disclosed. The office of Gov. George Wallace in Montgomery was expected to release a statement on the arrests Monday, but no such statement was made.

Chambliss, with a record of several arrests but no convictions in connection with various Klan activities, was dismissed as a city employee in 1949 for smashing a newsman's camera at a Klan rally. He signed a petition in the 1950s to incorporate the Alabama Ku Klux Klan, Inc.

Cagle, son of a Free Will Baptist minister, was arrested near Tuscaloosa in June, several days before the integration of the University of Alabama, on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. No date for his trial has been set. Cagle was in a group of men, some of them Klansmen, picked up en route to a Klan rally.

Cagle's father, the Rev. A. M. Cagle, said Monday that his son "broke away from the Klan about two months ago." He said Chambliss, a laborer for an engineering firm, was arrested after his return from church Sunday night. "We've got to look to the Lord," he said.

Had Some Knowledge
The arrests came as a surprise to local authorities, but Police Chief Jamie Moore said "we have been aware of some of the suspects questioned by state investigators and had knowledge of their activities."

"However," Moore said, "at the time of their arrests, we felt we did not have enough evidence on any of them for a conviction."

Negro leader Martin Luther King Jr. said Monday that possible progress in the investigation of the bombings eliminated the necessity for immediate racial demonstrations. He left for his home in Atlanta but said he would return next weekend to evaluate talks between city officials, Negro leaders and a two-man team appointed by President Kennedy to work for racial peace here.

"(If such negotiations are unproductive, we have no alternative but to demonstrate," King said. He declined to set a deadline.

King had said last week that he would recommend a resumption of Negro protest marches unless certain desegregation demands were met by the city.

El Hadj defiant New threat issued by Algerian rebel

ALGIERS (UPI) — Col. Mohand Ou El Hadj today called on troops of his 7th Military Region to join his rebel movement against President Ahmed Ben Bella and in an order of the day boasted he would crush any attempt to subdue him.

From his headquarters at Michelet, one of three opposition strongholds in the Grand Kabylia Berber region, the grizzled 65-year-old veteran of the war for independence issued the appeal at noon.

His latest act of defiance indicated President Ben Bella may have to use force to quell the insurgents headed by El Hadj and his political ally Hocine Ait Ahmed, chairman of the clandestine Socialist Forces Front (FFS).

The mounting tension between the loyalist and dissident camps caused worry among French authorities for the safety of the 100,000 French residents still living in Algeria.

French Ambassador Georges Gorse flew to Paris for consultations. But French authorities said there was no question of halting the gradual repatriation of the remaining French forces due to be completely evacuated by the end of next year.

In his order of the day, Col. El Hadj said to his Berber tribesmen followers:

"The time has come to launch a decisive struggle against the dictatorship regime. Let us close our ranks against which the Ben Bellas and the Bourmediennes (Defense Minister Col. Houari Bourmedienne) and other creatures of the fascist regime shall come and shatter themselves. Rejoin me in my combat. Together, we shall finish the police regime and set up democracy which will give the right of speech to all revolutionaries."

Ait Ahmed told his followers Monday at Michelet: "Resistance to the government will only end with the overthrow of the dictatorship and installation of the democratic regime for which our people fought for seven years."

There has been no bloodshed thus far, although government troops Monday forced rebel units to abandon two towns, only to surrender them to the rebels once more later in the day.

Today the insurgents controlled the city of Tizi-Ouzou and the neighboring towns of Michelet and Fort National.

Moonshot effort in jeopardy if measure beaten

Oregon's department of geology and mineral industries board members holding their quarterly meeting in Bend today gave a hard look at problems they will face if the legislature's tax measure is defeated on October 15.

Defeat of the measure would result in a loss of from 10 to 25 per cent of the revenues now received by the department and the curtailment of many functions and possibly the elimination of some top positions held by men now seeking full exploitation of the state's mineral wealth and continued studies of gas and oil.

One of the first services that would go by the board is that presently extended firms interested in moonshot research work in Central Oregon, especially at Derrick Cave.

The lunar study in the mid-Oregon lava country came in for special consideration when the board members late this morning reviewed the status of various department projects.

There was also a summary of offshore oil and gas exploration activity.

Presiding at the conference, held in the Bend City Commission Room, was Frank C. McColloch, Portland, chairman. Other commissioners present were Harold Banta, Baker, and Fayette I. Bristol, Grants Pass.

Hollis M. Dole, director of the state's department of geology and mineral industries, was also present, as was Norman Peterson, field geologist who has been assisting with the Central Oregon moonshot studies.

This was the first time in history that a state geology board ever met in Bend.

Ouster action urged by Morse
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., has urged the United States to take all action short of intervention to oust the "fascist" oriented military junta in the Dominican Republic.

Morse said Monday that he could not support intervention in the Dominican Republic because it would brand the United States as an aggressor nation.

However, he urged the strongest possible censure against the military junta that ousted President Juan Bosch, including an emergency meeting of the Organization of American States.

If the military junta was allowed to keep control, Morse said it would "encourage similar actions in other countries."

Valachi claims Genovese still has Vegas gambling interests

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Underworld informer Joseph Valachi said today that jailed Cosa Nostra leader Vito Genovese still has gambling interests in Las Vegas, Nev., in association with gambler Meyer Lansky.

Valachi also told of gangland murders in a struggle for control of New York mobs as he resumed his testimony before the Senate investigations subcommittee.

The subcommittee unveiled a master chart naming the leaders of New York's notorious "five families" which allegedly dominate the rackets in the nation's largest city.

It said Genovese, Carlo Gambino, Giuseppe (Joe) Magliocco, Joseph Bonanno and Gaetano Lucchese now control the underworld with the aid of seven underbosses.

Sen. Jacob Javits, R - N. Y. recalled that Valachi testified Friday that Genovese, now serving a 15 - year term for narcotics violations at the federal prison in Leavenworth, had interests in Las Vegas. He asked what outfit was under Genovese's control.

Do Everything Together
"Anywhere that Meyer Lansky is, there's Genovese," Valachi replied. "They do everything together." He said the ties persisted to the present as far as he knew.

Lansky has long been listed as a top-level racketeer by law enforcement authorities. In 1951 the special Senate Crime Committee, headed by the late Sen. Estes Kefauver, D - Tenn., grouped Lansky with Frank Costello and Joe Adonis as "the eastern axis of a combination of racketeers working throughout the nation."

In that period Lansky's position as outlined by the Kefauver committee, was clearly above Genovese's in the hierarchy of what the 1951 committee called the "Mafia."

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy said meantime that the government plans to use Valachi later as a witness in federal criminal trials against certain leaders of organized crime.

Cases Not Specified
The attorney general, who opened the hearings last week with warning that Cosa Nostra is a powerful "invisible government" with a multi-million dollar income, declined to specify the cases in which Valachi would be used.

But he made clear in an interview with UPI that he hoped the testimony of the confessed killer and convicted narcotics peddler would help send some of his former cohorts to prison.

As Valachi resumed his testimony, the ornate caucus room again was crowded as on Friday. Police said U.S. marshals were spotted among the spectator area as a part of security precautions to protect Valachi, who is said to have a $100,000 price on his head.

Valachi dealt in considerable detail with his New York City criminal activities before he joined Cosa Nostra. He said he first learned of murder-for-hire while serving a 44-month sentence in Sing Sing in the mid-1920's.
