Group of bases in France to be closed by U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States is streamlining its military supply lines in Europe, closing down a group of bases in France and shipping home the 5,400 U.S. Army troops who man them.

A Pentagon spokesman said the action, announced last week, was being taken purely in the interests of economy. He denied that friction with the government of French President Charles de Gaulle had anything to do with the shutdown.

The 6,200 French civilians working at the military supply depots will be fired, the Defense Department said. This move will eliminate nearly one-third of the U.S. Army's civilian French employees, who totaled 19,000 as of last July 1.

Airlift Division

Earlier last week, the Pentagon announced that an entire armored division—16,000 troops—would be airlifted to West Germany in 240 huge transport planes for a week of maneuvers in "Operation Big Lift." The operation will be the largest overseas airlift ever undertaken.

There was speculation at that time that the massive airlift could point the way to eventual withdrawal of some of the U.S. combat troops now stationed in Europe, thus aiding in reduction of the nation's balance of payments deficit.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara said "Operation Big Lift" would "provide a dramatic illustration of the United States capability for rapid reinforcement of NATO forces."
