U.S. seeking to bolster its fishing rights

20

TOKYO (UPI)-U.S. Sen. E. L. (Bob) Bartlett declared today the United States is "determined to reverse the trend" that has seen it slip in five years from a major to a second-class fishing power. The Democrat from Alaska said the United States proposes to do this by enforcing whatever meas-ures are necessary to protect fishery resources along the U.S. coast and by building up a modern fishing fleet which will rival Japan's, the world's largest.

Bartlett said President Kennedy, the U.S. government and the Con-gress stand behind this goal.

"In short," he asserted, "the United States, after a long period of inaction, proposes to assert it-self and get in the race again. It proposes to do so through fair and neighborly competition." Bartlett spoke on the dilemma
