Western Republicans see good chance for '64 gains

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) —Republicans can gain four Senate seats, nine Congressional seats and one or two governorships in the West next year, a poll at the Western Republican Conference forecast Friday.

The poll of delegates from the 13 Western states was released by Wyoming Republican State Chairman John Wold.

The survey also showed delegates feel President Kennedy can be beaten on such issues as fiscal policies, Cuba, civil rights, foreign policy, unemployment, agriculture, failure on campaign promises, and the "Kennedy power grab."

Delivery of the poll was accompanied by a state-by-state forecast of GOP gains in 1964.

GOP Seats Safe

The poll predicted Republicans can take four of the five Democratic Senate seats up in the West next year, while keeping three GOP seats.

The delegates termed Democratic Senators Frank Moss of Utah and Gail McGee of Wyoming "particularly vulnerable." They conceded, however, that unseating Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana "looks difficult at the present time."

The poll forecast the Republicans can unseat Democratic Gov. Albert Rosellini of Washington, and "possibly" Gov. Jack Campbell of New Mexico.

In Congress, the poll forecast Republicans can pick up nine seats in the West for a total of 38. Democratic seats would drop from 40 to 31.

Leading Republicans made these comments on the situation in their home states:

Alaska — With a slight Republican voter edge, Alaska should fall in the GOP presidential column again. Democratic Congressman Ralph Rivers could be unseated.

Arizona—With GOP Sen. Barry Goldwater a potential native son, Arizona looks strongly Republican.

California—If there is a major philosophical split within the Republican Party, Republicans will lose the state. On specific races, Democratic Sen. Clair Engle appears too ill to run again, and the GOP may capture the seat.

Two Seats Assured

Colorado—The state should go for a Republican president. GOP victories are sure in the second and third Congressional districts, and possible in the first or fourth.

Hawaii — Republicans face a hard pull, with nowhere to go but up.

Idaho—A good bet for the GOP presidential column. Locally, Republicans will concentrate on taking over the legislature.

Montana—Should vote for a Republican president, keep the governorship Republican, and pick up such offices as attorney general.

Nevada—A strong possibility to vote for a Republican president and U. S. Senator. The GOP faces an uphill fight on the Congressional level. Republicans hope to gain strength in the Senate and take control of the assembly.

Voter Alignment

New Mexico—Republicans have a chance of unseating new Democratic Gov. Jack Campbell. Voter alignment is against the GOP.

Oregon — Republicans will concentrate on gaining control of the State House of Representatives and moving nearer control of the Senate. Republicans will try to recapture Congressional seats in the second and fourth districts. The state should fall into the GOP presidential column.

Utah—The GOP should keep the governorship and two Congressional seats, and replace Democratic Sen. Frank Moss with a Republican.

Washington—It will take a dedicated, efficient organization for the GOP to carry Washington. Republicans must fight Gov. Albert Rosellini's "entrenched machine."

Wyoming—With the present Republican organization, the party will carry Wyoming for the presidency and replace Democratic Sen. Gail McGee with a Republican.

MEXICO

Here We Come!

The American Society of Travel Agents 33rd World Congress & Convention will be held Oct. 20 thru Oct. 26 in Mexico City.

Since we have never been over the border, we feel it is an excellent opportunity to see the "City with 1001 things to do".

I have been trying Mexican foods (at home) and gradually hope to get our stomachs in condition for what is to come.

They say that given 48 hours in Mexico City, you can have wool knit dresses and suits custom made to your own design. My tastes being 'simple' and 'basic' should make them have one ready in no time at all.

Men all ask when a person can see a bullfight—TOROS (Navillada Season) or temporado chica, featuring young bulls and novice toreros, continues at Mexico City's two bullrings: Plaza Mexico on Insurgentes South and Plaza-El Toreo at Cuatro Caminos just outside the city. Sundays at 4:30 p.m. In the provinces and border towns, the same class of apprentice matadors tests the the bravery of youthful 400-kilo bulls.

We are staying at the Maria Isabel Hotel. We registered in July is the reason we were able to stay at the Registration Hotel of the convention.

Hope to see delegates and friends from all over the world and many appear in their native dress. (I can't very well wear a Juniper or Pine Tree - ha! ha!)

Miss Barbara Barr of Bend and Central Oregon College is working for us and is very capable of taking all of your immediate and advance reservations and issue your tickets because selling trips is how we are able to see these places and attend the ASTA Conventions.

Traveling is an education in itself and year by year, we eventually hope to cover the world.

Everyone wants to know where Linda is going. She is "jetting" Portland - Los Angeles where her grandmother (Will's mother) and his brother Clyde's wife, Kay, will meet her and take her to Indio (near Palm Springs) where they will stay while we do Mexico.

Arriving 4:25 p.m. Mexico City!

What an adventure is coming up.

P. S.

Clyde and Kay just returned from Europe and they loved everything about it that we did.

ELDER AND MRS. L. L. GRANDPRE

Elder GrandPre, wife honored at farewell party

Elder and Mrs. L. L. GrandPre left this week for Roseburg, where he will be employed by Pacific Granite Co. They lived in Bend seven years, and made their home at 501 Riverfront Street.

Elder GrandPre is a retired Seventh - Day Adventist clergyman, and served as assistant pastor of churches in the local district during his residence here. He was in the ministry 48 years, 11 years of that as a missionary to Mexico.

Both he and his wife worked in Central Oregon in the migrant ministry programs for Mexican crop workers, and were active in Los Amigos, Spanish conversation club. He has spoken before numerous church, civic and fraternal groups.

When GrandPre entered the ministry, he left a position as a state highway civil engineer in the Midwest. He will continue to be on call for speaking assignments from the Oregon conference of Seventh-Day Adventists.

A farewell party for the couple was held last Saturday night at Westminster Hall in Redmond. Some 175 persons, mostly representing the congregations in Prineville, Madras, Redmond and Bend, were present. A gift of money was presented by the group.

Sign-up set for spud pickers

All persons interested in potato picking this fall have been asked to sign up at the Bend office of the Oregon State Employment Service, 952 Bond Street, or at the Redmond office, at 504 West Cascade.

Clark A. Price, Bend local office manager, said that due to a shortage of available housing, many local pickers will be needed.

Price urges that all interested register at their nearest office as soon as possible.

The potato harvest is now getting under way in Central Oregon.

ONE-SIDED CRASH

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The left side of Mrs. Clara Bertier's station wagon was badly damaged in a two-vehicle accident Friday.

There was no visible damage, however, to the other vehicle—a 26-ton, M-41 tank that plowed into her car.

Bend pair take vows in Mexico

Miss Socorro (Coco) Trevino and Homer Naud, both formerly of Bend, were married recently in Durango, Durango State, Mexico. They will make their home in the city of Durango, which has a population of 100,000. The bride's brother is a dentist there.

Both the bride and groom were members of the Golden Age Club, when they lived in Bend. Mrs. Naud's home was originally in Mexico.

'63 irrigation season winds up near-average

Central Oregon water users are winding up a near-average irrigation season in spite of the remarkably snowless winter of 1962-63 which foreboded gloomy water conditions as late as March 29. This is noted in a water supply outlook issued by state and federal agencies.

Heavy rains in the spring months and a cool summer were factors in the fine crop season, and also in the conservation of water in reservoirs for 1964 use.

Total water in 24 of Oregon's major reservoirs averages about one-third better than last year's carryover on October 1 and 10 per cent below the 1943-57 average, W. T. Frost, snow survey supervisor, said.

The 1963 irrigation water supplies in Crook, Jefferson and Deschutes Counties were adequate for most lands. Streamflow held up much better than expected, saving much needed reservoir water for later use.

The Ochoco and Prineville Reservoirs have good carry over supplies, with the Ochoco holding 120 per cent of the 15 year average. A short record gives the Prineville Reservoir 86 per cent of average.

Wickiup Reservoir holds 78 per cent of the 15 year average, Crane Prairie, 71 per cent, and Crescent Lake, 99 per cent.

Frost said "next year's water supplies are greatly dependent on good fall precipitation and winter snow accumulation."

Firemen answer general alarm

Bend firemen were summoned by general alarm this morning to the 1466 Cumberland residence of Mrs. M. J. Houghs, when a fire broke out in a daveno.

Mrs. Houghs had lugged the daveno outside before crews arrived. They used a smoke ejector and deodorant to clear the atmosphere.

The fire, probably caused by children's matches, scorched the floor and a curtain, firemen said. Owner of the residence is Carroll Painter, 46 E. DeKalb.

Jurisdictional issue on Snake dam is raised

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Three judges on the U.S. Court of Appeals raised a jurisdictional question Friday in a case involving a proposed multimillion dollar dam on the Snake River.

At issue in the matter is whether Washington Public Power Supply System should build the Nez Perce project on the Snake below its Salmon tributary or whether Pacific Northwest Power Co., a private combine, should build hte High Mountain Sheep Dam 50 miles south of Lewiston.

The case was put before the court following a declaratory judgment of U.S. District Judge John F. Kilkenny of Portland, Ore. Kilkenny ruled Washington Public Power had no authority to build a dam outside the state in Idaho and Oregon.

A Federal Power Commission trial examiner has issued an opinion, also contrary to Washington Public Power. His views, however, await confirmation by the FPC.

"We are puzzled how this got into the federal court in the first place," Judge Charles M. Merrill said at opening of oral arguments before the three-judge panel.

"The case seems to us to anticipate a dispute which properly falls in the jurisdiction of the Federal Power Commission."

The panel instructed attorneys to prepare supplemental briefs on the jurisdictional question and Judge William T. Orr said the case would be submitted upon receipt of the briefs.

Jack R. Cluck, speaking for Washington Public Power, said federal courts have jurisdiction under the Declaratory Relief Act. Hugh Smith, an attorney for Pacific Northwest, said it would be a "most unfortunate decision" if the court here held that it had no jurisdiction.

Smith said Washington Public Power had no authorization to construct facilities outside the state because Washington State law did not specifically give it that power.

Cluck argued the public utility should not be barred by the simple failure of the legislature to specifically have given it this authority. He said no "common sense" would support Smith's point of view.

Information on colleges offered

Information of interest to students planning to attend college will be given at meetings Tuesday and Wednesday, October 15 and 16, in the Bend High School auditorium. All interested high school juniors and seniors are invited to attend. Both programs will be at 8 p.m.

Subjects to be discussed include college admission procedures, requirements, scholarships and costs. A question and answer period will follow each program.

Miss Arlene Swanson, senior college counselor, and Larry Dale, guidance director, both of the high school staff, will conduct the meeting.

Oscar Levant provides needed lift to Friday night television

By Doc Quigg
UPI Staff Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — I don't know about Oscar Levant. He seems highly corrigible lately. Doesn't even snarl. And funny? Very.

The last half of the Jack Paar show on NBC Friday night could very well have been called "The Oscar Levant Show."

Before Levant came on, pickle-pussed, grimacing, and blinking so hard I thought he might telescope his eyelids, Paar said: "I would not bring somebody out on the stage who is not completely well . . . he's not nearly as ill as you might believe when you see him."

Levant began to tell his old, old story about George Gershwin's definition of genius and talent, and he stopped himself right in the middle and interpolated: "I oughtta have Abe Burrows on with me; we'd have four eyes blinking."

Paar: "What you been doing?"

Levant: "Been doing intensive research in inertia."

Paar: "Seriously, though."

Press Agent

Levant: I've been handling press relations for Mme. Nhu . . . She's as wistful as an iron foundry . . . She's the Sandra Dee of South Viet Nam . . . If I were cast on a desert island with Mme. Nhu, I'd quickly make friends with the natives.

"There have been three great ladies — Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, Eva Peron, and now the lady I've spoken so nicely about."

They got on the subject of Levant taking what he calls "dope," and Paar said: "Oscar says he takes a pill that has nothing but side effects."

Then he told Levant a lot of his illness might be in his mind.

"What a place for it to be," said Oscar.

Other Levant talk:

"I said to my wife a couple of weeks ago, 'You know, I think I'm seriously ill' and she said, 'That oughtta make you very happy.' I have the same thing as Governor Wallace; I'm not as tolerant, though."

On Christine Keeler: "I love her. I'd like to marry her. I don't know if I could hold her."

His "Favorite" Show

On Jerry Lewis: "My favorite show on the air. Such stupidity must be spontaneous. It can't be rehearsed."

"An old lady, 83, said to me, 'You look so wonderful, how old are you?' I said, 'I won't tell.' She said 'You must be 39.' I said I was way over that. She said, 'How do you do it?' I said, 'Dope.'"

"In 1952, I was so manic that I put 10 cents in a parking meter and laid down on the street."

On Senator Goldwater: "Has the answer to everything and the solution to nothing: there's not enough of him to have a split personality."

On Richard Burton: "Someone said he's been trying to prove he's a man, and I said, 'What a wonderful way to prove it.'"

On Leonard Bernstein: "I like him. He's been exposing musical secrets that have been known for 400 years."

Reminded that he hasn't played the piano at all since he was on the Paar show last year, Levant walked over and said: "I'll play with my customary arthritic abandon." When he got through, he actually smiled. And bowed.

There was other stuff on Friday night, but it was just television.

Meeting set by Democrats

Dr. Orde S. Pinckney will address the Deschutes County Democratic Central Committee at its regular monthly meeting to be held at 8 p.m. this Sunday at the Superior Cafe.

His topic will deal with Ballot Measure No. 1 that will be voted on next Tuesday.

Dr. Pinckney will outline some of the things that can be expected to happen in the event that the tax bill enacted by the 1963 legislature is voted down.

Sunday night's meeting is open to the public.
