U.S. fears 'egg war' may develop

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI)—U.S. officials here watched closely today for signs that an "egg war" may replace the recent "chicken war" with the European Common Market.

The 15-month-old dispute over American poultry exports seemed headed for a possible peaceful solution through arbitration by a neutral panel of experts from the General Agreement for Trade and Trade (GATT). But the U.S. mission to the European communities was said to have reported to Washington on increased levies on imports of eggs into the six-nation Common Market area.

This increase could affect American egg exports to the Common Market, although this would be on a far smaller scale than the tariff increases on chickens.

American egg exports to the community, mainly West Germany, total about $3.5 million a year. U.S. poultry exports amounted to about $60 million a year before Common Market tariff increases became effective in July last year.

According to Common Market sources, eggs from the United States, Yugoslavia and Denmark were being offered in Germany, Italy, France, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg at prices below the locally produced eggs.

One of the consequences was that Dutch egg producers had to reduce their prices by about 20 per cent to remain competitive with American egg exporters on the German market.

Rise is noted in delinquency

PRINEVILLE — The steady rise in juvenile delinquency within the Prineville city limits is causing Police Chief Mike Thompson to keep a close watch on the situation and adopt a course of action.

Most recently, the city's police chief has held a number of discussions with police chiefs of other cities of comparable size to compare policies and methods used to cope with the situation.

Six years ago, when Chief Thompson assumed his present position in city law enforcement, two or three juvenile cases per month was a record considered normal. Of these, infractions were often of a nature as minor as lack of bicycle light, records show.

In September, 17 juveniles were listed on police records. The greatest increase, Thompson notes, has been in the past few months. The nature of the problems has also changed, records show, with malicious mischief and a type of vandalism unknown a few years ago showing up strongly.

During the past summer, it was noted, Prineville experienced a wave of fires set by juveniles. A gradual but steady rise is also noted in petty larceny and burglary.

Skit presented at meeting of college women

The program at the Thursday night meeting of the Bend branch, American Association of University Women, was presented as an original skit read from a four-by-three-foot book made by Miss Myrtle Lilja.

The theme, "American Family in the Changing World," was developed by an imaginative look into the future, with observations on life in the year 2019. Referred to in the script were water rationing, family rocket cars, disintegrating dishes and Bend suburbs at Fort Rock.

A part of the skit, dealing with family relations, depicted children discussing their problems concerning divorced parents.

The "white" group, with Mrs. Thomas Adams as chairman, was in charge of program arrangements, in a revolving responsibility setup innovated this year. Taking part were Mrs. William Coyner, Mrs. Forbes Rogers, Mrs. Web Ruble, Mrs. Jack Jeffers, Mrs. Adams and Miss Lilja.

Miss Kimiko Chiba, Central Oregon College student from Japan, was a special guest. Wearing a green silk kimono, she described changes in family life in her native country.

Mrs. Larry Carter's red group used the Halloween theme for decorations and refreshments. Members of Mrs. Carl E. Erickson's blue group were hostesses. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Oakley, 440 Congress Street.

Senators map plans for limit bills at session

SALEM (UPI)—Plans to limit introduction of bills at the special legislative session to measures dealing with the fiscal crisis were made at a closed-door meeting here Friday attended by 11 of the Senate's 30 members.

After the 105-minute meeting ended, Senate President Ben Musa, D-The Dalles, announced: "Only the Ways and Means and Rules Committees would be activated, and the Senate Tax Committee would be on a standby basis in case the House sent over a tax bill."

The Rules Committee would screen all bills, and none would be printed and sent to the floor until approved by Rules.

The Senate would operate with a skeleton crew of less than 15 employees.

Interim committee employees would be used wherever possible to assist during the special session, and: "Senators who wanted secretaries would have to pay for them out of their own pockets."

Musa said the consensus of the senators at the meeting was that the session would not last more than seven days.

Sen. Alfred Corbett, D-Portland, and Daniel Thiel, D-Astoria, said they were aiming for a three-day session.

Musa said none of the agreements made at Thursday's meeting would be binding until voted upon by the full Senate.

He said he expected to call a Senate organizational caucus Nov. 10, the night before the special session opens.

NO DECISIONS MADE—Musa said no decision had been reached on whether Ways and Means would review budgets. He said that would depend on the views of Rep. Ross Morgan, D-Gresham, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

"We did not discuss the merits of the governor's recommendations," Musa said.

Asked if he felt the Senate would re-pass the one-shot speedup of withholding tax collections, as Gov. Mark Hatfield recommended, Musa replied, "we didn't discuss that."

The fact that the Senate Tax Committee was not reactivated could indicate the Senate had no intention of approving the one-shot measure which would add $12 million to the state's income this biennium.

Attending the closed-door meeting were all the Senate Ways and Means Committee members, and most of the Senate Rules Committee members.

Other senators in attendance included E.D. Potts, D-Grants Pass, Thomas Mahoney, D-Portland, L.W. Newberry, R-Ashland, Ward Cook, D-Portland, Harry Boivin, D-Klamath Falls, Walter Leth, R-Salem, Dwight Hopkins, D-Imbler, and Boyd Overhulse, D-Madras.

Overhulse is not a member either of the Rules or Ways and Means Committees, but was Senate president during the 1957 special session.

Also sitting in on the meeting were legislative counsel Sam Haley and legislative fiscal officer Kenneth Bragg.

Three newsmen and a television photographer, who showed up at Musa's office when the meeting began, were asked to leave.

Court of Appeals to decide jurisdiction in racial crises

The U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals has agreed to decide whether federal or state courts have jurisdiction in racial crises.

Three members of the court, including Chief Judge Elbert Tuttle, heard arguments in Atlanta Friday in a case involving such jurisdiction.

Attorneys for Clinton, La., said a federal court stay of a state court injunction against racial demonstrations has "hamstrung" law enforcement in the city. The Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), which is conducting a voter registration drive in Clinton, had contended the state injunction violated the civil rights of Negroes.

The case is considered significant in that it could set a precedent on whether a federal court has the right to take over from a state court in actions against racial demonstrations.

Television in review

Danny Kaye most solid of new headliner variety programs

By Rick Du Brow
UPI Staff Writer
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Notes to watch television by:

The stars: How are the season's three big variety headliners, Danny Kaye, Judy Garland and Jerry Lewis, doing with their new weekly shows? ... Here's how they look to the television trade from a commercial viewpoint. ... Not one of them has scored what Madison Avenue considers a really impressive rating. ... But the Kaye entry, despite the usual leveling quality of weekly shows, is regarded as being on solid footing, while Lewis and Miss Garland are in series that can be described as being in a state of nervous flux. ... The breakdown:

Kaye: It is hard to find anyone who does not think his CBS-TV show will be a sure-fire audience getter. ... But most important, from the view of television people, is his ability to give the impression that everything is organized and in firm control, despite ups and downs.

Garland: Her CBS-TV show may make it — it is reported set for at least 32 weeks — but nothing apparently is coming easy. ... First the original producer was replaced ... and three writers left ... then the original first five shows were put off for a while, and new ones were hurriedly taped ... then comedy regular Jerry Van Dyke exited. ... Now it's reported there'll be another massive shakeup if the series goes beyond 13 weeks. ... There's even talk that the first producer may be sought to return.

Lewis: His two-hour ABC-TV show has improved somewhat since its premiere, mainly because it could not conceivably have gotten worse. ... Some ABC people seem optimistic about the future. ... Lewis' idea of tastefulness is probably his worst enemy, and there are those who will have no truck with his program no matter what he does. ... To those not so permanently alienated, it is of interest to note his status from the trade viewpoint. ... First, both he and ABC ac-knowledgeably frankly his opening was a good deal less than desired — they had no choice. ... Second, the top ABC brass was here in Hollywood in the last few days for a frank talk with Lewis, suggesting changes ... and apparently the attitude is that the network will know within the next few weeks whether the comedian will last — and return next season.

The nature of the Lewis operation is such that it is difficult to know anything for certain. ... For instance, it was said he would do two shows from Las Vegas next month. ... Then it was said he wouldn't because of network pressure on expenses. ... Now it is said the trip is on again. ... Tomorrow it may be different. ... Thus, it is also said Mort Sahl is off as a regular — but it is impossible to know how things will shape up next week. ...
