Gale warnings along coast

By United Press International

Gale warnings were flying along the Pacific Northwest coast and over Puget Sound and the Strait of Juan de Fuca today because of a huge storm off Southeastern Alaska, apparently spawned in the Western Pacific by Typhoon Lola which struck there last week. Southwest winds 35-45 knots with gusts to 60 were forecast from Tatoosh Island to Cape Blanco along the coast, while 30 to 40 knot winds with gusts to 50 were anticipated over the strait and inland waters of Western Washington. The winds were expected to decrease down to 25 to 35 knots late today and then increase up to 45 knots again tonight and Tuesday.

No decision yet on Snake River dam question

BOISE (UPI)—Federal Judge Chase A. Clark took under advisement today, pending further briefs, the question of whether a dambuilding dispute on the Snake river is a state or federal issue.

The matter involves an attempt by the Washington Public Power Supply System to remove to U.S. District Court an Idaho state court case challenging its request to build a hydroelectric dam on the river between Oregon and Idaho at the Mountain Sheep site.

G.N. Carter, Idaho's late reclamation engineer had brought suit in Idaho court on grounds state law requires WPPSS to apply for a permit to appropriate and store waters of the state for power purposes.

Both WPPSS and the Pacific Northwest Power Company want to develop hydroelectric power on the Snake. They have filed conflicting applications with the Federal Power Commission.

An FPC trial examiner rendered an opinion that WPPSS had no authority to build a dam outside the state of Washington. That opinion still awaits confirmation by the FPC.

In Portland, U.S. District Judge John F. Kilkenny ruled that WPPSS had no authority to build a dam outside of Washington state. An appeal of that ruling still is pending before the U.S. Circuit Court of appeals in San Francisco.

GYRENE GYRATIONS — Each of these shaven-headed Marines would rather suffer a fractured skull than give the slightest indication that he was aware of the rifle spinning in the air at the Marine Barracks in Washington, D.C. Corp. Gary F. Collins, right, known as "the rifle tosser," has just inspected the weapon and thrown it backward over his head to the man facing him, who must remain rigidly indifferent until the last second and then grab the rifle in a military manner. Fortunately for him, the bayonet has been removed.

when it's cold... will it keep me warm? YES, and Oil Heat costs less, too. Reminds us of the heating salesman telling his story to a sweet little old lady. "Our heating system is clean, efficient and modern. Our equipment is guaranteed for a lifetime. Now, are there any questions?" "Only one," replied the little old lady. "Will it keep me warm in the winter?" (Pretty important question, isn't it?) The cold FACTS are, many people who did not have Oil Heat last winter were cold. The FACT is—Oil Heat has no "pressure" or "load" problems, no matter how cold it gets. And the FACT is—safe, warm, dependable Oil Heat costs less than gas or electricity, no matter how cold it gets. ### Demonstration in Seattle aimed at open housing

SEATTLE (UPI) — A crowd, estimated by police at 2,500, waded onto a playfield covered with ankle-deep mud Sunday in a protest demonstration aimed at convincing the Seattle City Council to pass a proposed open housing ordinance.

Leaders of the Central Area Committee on Civil Rights, coordinating group for the protest, had expected at least 5,000 persons to file their support behind the ordinance. A rain that fell throughout the meeting was blamed for holding down the attendance.

The crowd, almost equally divided between Negroes and Caucasians, listened to an hour-long program which included singing and speeches by the civil rights leaders of Seattle.

About 100 Seattle policemen, including 40 uniformed officers standing at the edges of the field, had been assigned to the area. There were no incidents of any kind and the marchers neatly stacked their home-made signs of protest before they left the area.

Five to get certificates

Five local area residents who have completed apprenticeship programs will receive certificates at a banquet tonight at 7 o'clock at the Copper Room. The presentations will be in conjunction with the quarterly meeting of the Oregon State Apprenticeship Council, being held in Bend.

PROTEST MADE

PORTLAND (UPI) — Ralph C. Cormesser, commander of the Oregon Department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said Sunday he has protested the opening date of the special session of the state legislature because it comes on Veterans Day, Nov. 11.

Chiropractic First of a series of articles on this rapidly progressing science

CHIROPRACTIC (pronounced KI-ro-PRAK-tic) is a science and art of healing based on the premise that the nervous system regulates and controls all systems and physiological functions of the human body; that interference with the nerve control of these systems impairs their function and induces dysfunction and disease by rendering the body less resistant to infection or to other causes.

Its therapeutics is designed to restore normal function of the nervous system by specific adjustment of the structures of the human body, and the use of clinical nutrition, rehabilitation measures and related procedures, as indicated.

The practice of chiropractic is as broad as the nervous system, which controls all the organs, glands, and tissues of the body. Therefore, manipulative treatment and specific adjustment are applicable to a wide variety of diseases which affect the human body and mind.

CHIROPRACTIC, as an organized professional body, is 67 years old, and now ranks as the second largest healing profession.

Chiropractic is classified as one of the four major healing professions in the United States by the Office of the President, Bureau of the Budget, Washington, D.C.

THE CHIROPRACTOR is engaged in the treatment and prevention of disease and in the promotion of public health and welfare.

Chiropractors are thoroughly trained in all methods of diagnosis. In addition, the chiropractor has the advantage of being trained to understand the significance of structural maladjustments which are always present in disease. His trained hands equip him admirably for this most important and difficult part of the art of diagnosis.

Chiropractic recognizes the importance of hygiene and sanitation as well as the factors of infection, fatigue, trauma and occupational hazards in the cause of disease. Exercise, nutrition, pure food, air, water, rest and common sense play as large a part in chiropractic as in other forms of practice. The rapid acceptance of this science has been due in a large measure to the beneficial results obtained in difficult cases.

Oregon law now requires two years of liberal arts and two years of chiropractic college. Passing of the basic science and State Board examinations are also required.
