

Stop-gap cuts in education funds are made

SALEM (UPI) — Fearful of what might happen at next month's special legislative session, the State Board of Education Tuesday decided to make stop-gap cuts and postponed making final policy decisions on budget reductions until after the legislature adjourns.

The action came after deputy Supt. James Turnbull reminded board members, "don't forget the legislature may change it all at the special session."

As a result of last week's defeat of the tax measure, Gov. Mark Hatfield ordered the Education Department's general fund allotment cut nearly $1.5 million to $11.4 million.

In addition, the governor scrapped the $1.3 million community college construction program, and said he would ask the legislators to cut basic school aid $10.5 million to $124.2 million.

But education board members and department officials were obviously fearful that more severe cuts might be made by the special session.

Turnbull said he would recommend cuts in services and supplies, but only limited reductions in personnel.

"We will be in trouble if we destroy our staff," he said. He also announced no cuts had yet been planned in educational television.

"We won't know what to do until we hear what is being planned by higher education and local school districts," Turnbull said.

Public Instruction Supt. Leon P. Minear said "We had a poor budget to begin with. These cuts don't leave us enough money to do the jobs assigned to us. We needed all the people we requested, or we wouldn't have asked for them in the first place."

"We are in a tough situation, we have to establish priorities," Minear said.

But board members decided to avoid listing priorities until after the special legislative session.

It was pointed out that community college enrollments already were up 27 per cent this year — seven per cent above expectations — and may increase more next year.

"The major impact of the tax election defeat will not be felt until the 1964-65 school year," Minear warned.

Dairy herds hold up well

REDMOND — Despite the fact that September usually is a poor pasture month in Central Oregon, the area's dairy herds held up well in milk production, reports Wayne Grimes, supervisor of the Central Oregon Dairy Herd Improvement Association.

Top production was chalked up by the 26 Holsteins owned by Roy Burk of Redmond, with an average production of 1407 pounds of milk and 51.3 pounds of butterfat each during the month. Oswald Hanson of Bend is owner of the second highest producing herd. These, too, are Holsteins.

Other herds averaging more than 1000 pounds of milk per cow are those of Kenneth Moisan, Bend; Bertel Nelson, Bend; Walt Smead, Bend; Eugene Hindman, Redmond; and Fred Elliott, Redmond.

Other dairies who placed high were those of Wallace Crawford, Bend; James Griffith and Jim Keller, Redmond.

Nineteen cows from 11 herds testing under the standard plan made state "honor roll" requirements for their 305-day lactation periods. They are owned by Roy Burk, Redmond; Ken Moisan, Bend; Carl Robertson, Bend; Eugene Brink, Bend; Wes Cushman, Bend; Sunny Butte Ranch, Bend; Kenneth Huddle, Redmond; Hamlin Perkins, Bend; Lawrence Allen, Bend; and Bertel Nelson, Redmond.

Tax credit plan offered by Maurine

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Maurine B. Neuberger, D-Ore., urged Tuesday that taxpayers be given a 7 per cent federal income tax credit for income tax payments to states.

Mrs. Neuberger introduced legislation to amend federal tax laws to allow taxpayers to reduce their payments to the federal government by 7 per cent. The deduction could not exceed the amount actually paid in state income taxes.

The Oregon Democrat said voters in her state had turned down a state income tax increase by a "stunning" majority in a referendum vote. This, she said, suggested that state taxes already were as high as the citizens "were willing to pay." The result, she added, would be a sharp cutback in welfare and school funds.

"The plight of Oregon reflects a national crisis which threatens the integrity of our federal-state system," she said. The federal government, Mrs. Neuberger said, would be forced to finance essential services if the states were unable to meet the financial burden.

For that reason, she said, the federal government should help the states by allowing the credit against federal income taxes for payments to the states. In Oregon, Mrs. Neuberger said, the 7 per cent tax credit would save $26.8 million for the state's taxpayers.

Hatfield office orders welfare cuts restored

SALEM (UPI) — The Governor's office has ordered $1.7 million of the public welfare department's $2.9 million budget cut restored, the department revealed today.

Department officials said the funds were restored to protect federal matching funds. Each dollar cut from state funds results in the loss of up to several dollars in various federal matching grants.

The revised $1.2 million department cutback will result in the loss of $4.5 million in matching money, it was explained.

The department announced that despite the austerity program resulting from last week's tax measure defeat, there will be no change in welfare department food standards, and no percentage reductions in grants to aged, blind or disabled.

Few, if any, layoffs are planned in welfare department personnel. Existing staff vacancies probably will not be filled for some time, however.

The department is planning to achieve economies through administrative changes, and hopes it will not be necessary to cut programs for welfare recipients. Details of the cutbacks will be worked out at Friday's meeting here of the Public Welfare Commission.
