

Andrews victory may force JFK to take new look at wheat plan

By Bernard Brenner
UPI Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The victory of Republican Mark Andrews in a special Congressional election in North Dakota this week may force the Kennedy administration closer to open support of a new voluntary wheat program.

Last May farmers voted in a nationwide referendum to reject the administration's mandatory wheat control program for their 1964 crop.

North Dakota farmers supported the program more strongly than growers in most other areas. About 65 per cent of the state's wheat producers voted in favor of the plan.

This week, however, voters in North Dakota's 1st Congressional District elected Andrews, who criticized the administration plan and advocated a voluntary control program.

Administration advisers have been reporting recently that wheat farmers generally still oppose mandatory controls and that they are likely to vote against such a plan again if another referendum is held.

Agriculture Secretary Orville L. Freeman has not endorsed any move as yet for a new voluntary wheat program. He has been dropping broad hints, however, that he would back such a program if wheat farmers generally can agree on some new plan.

Republican Rep. Don Short of North Dakota said today that it was hard to interpret the special election in terms of what it foreshadows for agricultural policy in the 1964 general elections.

Auction of yule trees scheduled

Special to The Bulletin
PRINEVILLE — The Christmas season moved closer on the horizon of coming events this week with the announcement by the Ochoco National Forest office that oral auction bids on 1,000 Christmas trees will be received by the Prineville district ranger, November 4.

C. L. Clark, forest supervisor, announces that the trees to be sold are located on Arrowwood Point, at the east end of Maury mountain. The young trees are standing on an area of some 1340 acres.

Minimum acceptable bids, it is stated are, for 600 Douglas fir trees, 60¢ each, for 400 white fir trees, $1.00 each. Maximum height of trees to be cut is 14 feet. Prospective bidders who would like more information about the Christmas tree sale should contact the Prineville district ranger at the ranger station on Lamonta Road, Clark stated.

BE MORE CAREFUL
OPORTO, Portugal (UPI) — Antonio Martins, 41, complained to police Wednesday that he lost 105 escudos ($4) in a card-game. Police refused to help and told him to play more carefully the next time.

Short said, however, that the election "certainly didn't indicate any endorsement of the Kennedy-Freeman policy."

Sen. Quentin N. Burdick, D-N.D., said he did not think farm policy was much of an issue in the special election. Sen. Milton R. Young, R-N.D., said he did not believe the election provided a clear-cut test on farm policy.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., offered another interpretation. He said the Democratic candidate in the special election, John Hove, was a political unknown running against a widely-known Republican. The fact that the Democrat did as well as he did showed substantial support for the Democratic program, McGovern said.

An Agriculture Department economist said today Russia could become a permanent and major grain import market if Soviet leaders keep trying to improve the quality of the Russian diet.

The forecast comes from Lester R. Brown, an economist in the department's Economic Research Service. It is part of a report prepared months before the Soviet Union's current farm troubles sent that country into the market for wheat imports.

Brown's prediction was not based on this year's poor Soviet wheat crop, but on long-term trends.

The economist pointed out that at present, the Russian diet is heavy with grain foods, 65 per cent grains, and foods like potatoes, compared with less than 25 per cent in North America. But Soviet consumers want more of the kind of diet that Americans enjoy, more of the meats and other livestock products.

Brown said this means the Soviets will have to feed more of their grains to livestock instead of directly to people. And it takes much more grain to feed consumers through livestock.

Brown reasoned that if the Soviet drive for a better diet continues, grain needs in the Soviet Union will rise sharply. He says the Soviet Union, once a grain exporting country, could develop a continuing and sizable grain deficit.

He never made it to Mississippi, but his heart is there with students from Yale

By Al Kuetner
UPI Staff Writer

The Rev William Sloane Coffin, Jr., never made it to Mississippi, but he says his heart is there these days with a group of students from Yale University.

Coffin, who is chaplain at Yale, sent the students off to the Southland with his blessings to help out in the integration campaign. So far, two have been arrested in Indianola, a town of 4,900 population near Greenville.

Coffin set out for Jackson, Miss., in 1961 with the "freedom riders", a group which decided to emphasize the segregated practices at bus station waiting rooms in Dixie. The move led to some of the worst violence to emerge from the integration struggle.

Coffin got as far as Montgomery, Ala., where he sat down in the bus station eating place with Negroes who also were on the trip. The white chaplain refused to move and was arrested on charges of breach of the peace.

Now he has turned his attention once more to Mississippi, but from a distance. He says this is sometimes "frustrating" to him.

Centers About Campaign

The current Yale "Mississippi Project" involves voter registration and centers around the campaign of a Negro, Aaron Henry, a Clarksdale druggist and "candidate" for governor.

In Mississippi, there is no provision for a write-in candidate except in cases where a bona fide candidate dies before election day. Henry is not on the ballot but he is asking his supporters to write in his name anyway.

A Yale Law School graduate, Allen K. Lowenstein of New York, who has spent a month in Mississippi, suggested that some of old Eli's undergraduates take time off and come South to help out on the Henry election campaign.

Coffin told United Press International that response to the appeal has been "excellent" and that about 40 Yale students, white and Negro, are on

REMAINS ON DUTY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department said Wednesday that Otto F. Otepka would remain on active duty as its chief security-risk evaluator pending final department review of charges against him.

Otepka was charged by the department Sept. 23 with violating State Department procedures in giving information on loyalty matters to the Senate Internal security subcommittee. He has denied the charges.

"standby" for trips to Mississippi. He said they pay their own expenses or "we pass the hat" to finance the trips from New Haven, Conn., home of the university.

"The first group is down there now getting things organized," Coffin said. "Others are on standby waiting to leave. They will have to go in shifts because none can afford to be away from classes for more than four or five days."

Encourage Good Students

Coffin said that only students with good grades are encouraged to indulge in the activity because "we would be criticized if anyone in academic difficulty got involved."

He said the nucleus of the Yale volunteers came from staff members of the Yale

Daily News—"instead of just reporting history being made, they are becoming part of history being made."

"It is clear to me that this invitation (to go to Mississippi) can't be ignored," Coffin said. "We were asked to help and it is our responsibility to help. I think it is a wonderful thing to get involved in this great crisis."

Coffin, now in his sixth year on the Yale staff, was asked if he encountered rebukes or criticism from university officials for his active part in the Southern demonstrations.

"Of course not," he replied. "This is an area of academic freedom. It is recognized (at Yale) that it is no less than the freedom granted by the nation."
