Blustery storm brews over Central Plains

By United Press International
A blustery fall storm brewed over the Central Plains today and heavy snow fell in Colorado and Wyoming.

The temperature dipped to 13 degrees at Ely, Nev. Both Tallahassee and Ocala, Fla., recorded 32-degree readings.

Seven inches of snow fell during the night at Leadville, Colo., more than 2 inches were reported at Lander, Wyo. Up to 3 inches of snow fell in eastern Maine.

The weather bureau said the storm which brought rain and thundershowers to the plains "gave indications of spoiling the All Hallows day for many sections of the country."

The new moisture did little to ease the serious drought situation from inland New England to Texas.

A forest fire raged out of control at Arkansas' Ouachita National Forest today. More than 300 men fought the wind-whipped flames during the night and 200 more were to join the battle today. By morning, the fire had destroyed 7,000 acres of timber.

PLANES AND SEAGULLS
MOFFETT FIELD, Calif. (UPI) — The Navy has won its two-week battle with a flock of seagulls for runway space at its Moffett Field base near San Francisco.

The gulls descended on the air strip Oct. 19 and engaged in competition with pilots and planes for landing room. Huge helicopters swept over the runway at regular intervals Tuesday, and the birds gathered in search of less hectic surroundings.
