

BPA announces initial proposal for cost boost

PORTLAND (UPI) — Bonneville Power Administration today announced a preliminary proposal for an average increase in wholesale firm power costs of 8 1/2 per cent.

Charles F. Luce, BPA administrator, said this would up BPA's revenues from firm power by about $6.5 million in the first year applied. A revised rate would become effective Dec. 20, 1964.

If approved by the Federal Power Commission it would be the first rate change in BPA's 25-year history, he said.

"We emphasize that these are preliminary figures," Luce said. "They could be pushed either up or down by developments in the Northwest power picture."

He said the proposed changes were not a simple increase in rates but represented a completely new rate structure.

Luce said the preliminary figures were presented to give customers a chance to analyze the impact of the rates on individual operations. Customers of BPA include public and private utilities, municipal utilities, electroprocess industries and other federal agencies.

Could Absorb Increase

Luce said most of the utilities would be able to absorb an increase without raising residential or commercial rates. This, he said, is because the cost of wholesale power is only about 30 per cent of their total cost of doing business.

"As matters now stand, the increase would not be large," Luce said. "BPA will still sell electric power for less than it can be produced at the new federal and nonfederal projects—such as Wells, Lower Monumental and Mossyrock Dams."

He also said the rate overhaul should not adversely affect Northwest industrial development. The present BPA basic wholesale rate is the lowest in the nation, he said.

Luce said BPA planned to file a new rate with the FPC in January.

Church School crusade due

The Church School of the First Methodist Church will launch its attendance crusade Sunday, November 3. Each class from first grade through high school will participate in the crusade. Instead of having a single winner, each class enrolling 10 new members will be eligible for an award.

Mrs. Marvin Westfall, chairman of the Commission on Education, and Mrs. Clayton Smith, Church School superintendent, are in charge of the crusade, assisted by the members of the Education Commission.

Any new pupil in attendance four consecutive Sundays will be counted as a new member. The contest will be concluded on January 19, when an award will be made of a framed picture of Christ for each class which becomes eligible.

Poe story read by candlelight

Candlelight illuminating a darkened room created an appropriate setting for the reading of Edgar Allan Poe's "The Tell Tale Heart," at the last meeting of Tahaus Toastmistress Club. Following the presentation by Mrs. R. B. Zimmerman, points governing the oral reading of any written work were discussed.

Factors mentioned included appropriateness of the reading for the occasion, props and gestures to enhance the oral projection, vocal expression and clarity of speech.

Mrs. Carl Bernsten, toastmistress, acquainted the members with the origin and various customs of Halloween. Mrs. W. M. Loy Jr., lexicologist, presented four words frequently associated with the festive day.

Mrs. Keith Carpenter, topicmistress, started a "ghost" story which was continued by the individual members. Others participating in the program were Ellen Forswall, inspiration; Mrs. Orde Pinckney, timekeeper, and Mrs. Ronald Lundy, evaluator.

Mrs. Keith Carpenter was appointed to the position of librarian. Members needing program material or other information regarding Toastmistress were advised that they will be able to find it at Mrs. Carpenter's home.

Miss Betty Adams and Mrs. Phil Shoemaker were guests for the evening.

Warning given on automation

PORTLAND (UPI) — Automation is eliminating 40,000 jobs a week and the resulting unemployment problem will not solve itself, a labor-management symposium was warned Thursday.

The warning was contained in a speech prepared for delivery by John I. Snyder Jr., president and board chairman of U.S. Industries, Inc. The talk was delivered by vice president E. F. Shelley when Snyder was unable to attend the conference.

Snyder suggested Americans will have to break "anachronistic moral concepts" such as "an honest dollar for an honest day's work."

"In an automated society, it is beginning to appear that an honest day's work bears little relationship to the honest day's work of the factory hand of 30, 20 or even 10 years ago," Snyder said.

He quoted writer Max Lerner as saying, "The dogma that idleness is somehow a sin was part of an age that is passing." He said it is the moral obligation of both management and labor to devote more of their time and resources to the solution of purely human problems.

Pranksters keep firemen busy

Bend firemen were called out eight times in less than 24 hours over Halloween.

Five of the calls summoned crews to turn off hydrants activated by pranksters. About 12:30 p.m. crews were called to retrieve a small boat turned loose in Mirror Pond, to prevent the possible drowning of youngsters who were trying to retrieve it.

A portion of a fence was burned behind the 948 Roosevelt residence of Ralph Bailey, ignited when workmen of a cleaning firm set a hot oil stove against it. Some grass and brush also burned, firemen said.

At 1:27 this morning a rig was dispatched to property off Butler Market Road to extinguish a trash fire. No damage occurred.

ICC has lifted 19-day embargo on shipments

PORTLAND (UPI) — The Interstate Commerce Commission Thursday lifted a 19-day embargo on railroad shipments of grain in to the Pacific Northwest.

The ICC said most of the congestion around Northwest ports that led to the embargo Oct. 13 has been cleared away.

An unusually heavy shipment of grain had resulted in an estimated 8,000 cars accumulating on Oregon and Washington sidings. The normal buildup is about 3,500 cars, and the ICC reported 3,236 remained Wednesday. The others have been unloaded into ships and elevators.

Paul Grider, supervisor of the ICC's section car service, said removal of the ban will allow traders to consign shipments to Columbia river and Puget Sound ports and will permit free loading.

When the embargo was announced, there was speculation that the buildup had been stimulated by the pending wheat sale to Russia. This proved untrue, but the Soviet deal apparently contributed indirectly by hiking wheat prices.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has reported that prices of most classes of wheat are above loan rates and that wheat in storage was down to 1,947 bushels as of Oct. 1. That is the smallest holding since 1957, the USDA said.

Church to hear guest speaker

Dr. William D. Bray, Methodist missionary to Japan, will be guest speaker at the First Methodist Church morning worship hour Sunday at 11 o'clock. Dr. Bray was instrumental in arranging for the residency here of Miss Kimiko Chiba, the Japanese exchange student being hosted by the church.

Dr. Bray will meet with the combined Junior and Senior MYF groups at 6 p.m. Sunday. At 7 p.m. there will be an all-family program in the Fireside Room of the church. At that time Dr. Bray will speak informally about his experiences in Japan and will invite questions. A coffee hour will follow the family program. Those interested in Japan are invited to attend.

Dr. Bray has been a professor at Gakum University in Nishinomiya, Japan, since 1952. He is an Oregonian with his original home in Medford. He served the Oregon Conference and also as a chaplain in the Army during World War II. His message will relate to the mission program in Japan, with emphasis on information concerning Miss Chiba.

Need is cited for increased park, recreation facilities

SALEM (UPI) — In today's tense push-button era, there is need for the urban resident to get away from it all, Gov. Mark Hatfield said today.

In an address to the Oregon County Park Association, Hatfield said "we are moving toward a reduced work week, both in Oregon and nationally."

"With more leisure time, more park and recreation facilities will be needed. We must recognize the technological changes that are being made, and begin planning now," he said.

"If we are careful in planning our park and recreation programs, we need not fear industrial growth."

At the conclusion of his address, Hatfield presented a merit award to Highway Commission Chairman Glenn L. Jackson of Medford, "for his outstanding contribution to outdoor development and recreation."

Hatfield pointed out that during the first nine months of this year $19 million in new and expanded industrial projects, providing an additional 500 jobs, were launched. He said additional expansion which will create 1,100 new jobs have already been announced.

Hatfield directed the bulk of his remarks to the needs of Oregon people, although he noted that tourism this summer compared favorably with last year when thousands went through Oregon on their way to the Seattle World's Fair. He noted the average tourist stay in Oregon this year was longer than last year.

The governor also expressed praise to county park groups for their "leadership and work."
