Holmer back, still mum about his activities

SALEM (UPI)—Finance and Administration Director Freeman Holmer was back on the job today, still mum about his activities while on a three-week leave of absence.

Last month Gov. Mark Hatfield announced Holmer had been granted a six-months leave of absence to do some private consulting work.

Last week it was announced Holmer was returning to his state job, having in a preliminary study determined the research project was not warranted at this time.

Leander Quiring, who was acting director in Holmer's absence has resumed his job as administrator of the department's services division.

Holmer said "when I took the leave of absence, I announced I was going to make private market surveys, and that's what I did."

He insisted the job was non-political.

"We ought to just leave it where it was," he commented.

During the three weeks, Holmer was with Hatfield in Tucson, Los Angeles and San Francisco, and last week he attended the meeting of the Council of State Governments in Albuquerque.

"There have been lots of rumors about what I was doing, but it was a private job, that's all there was to it," Holmer said.

Central Oregon weather mild, dry in October

October weather in the Deschutes country was mild and dry, with only 0.10 of an inch of moisture measured in the 31 days that yielded a mean temperature of 49.9 degrees. Those compare with a 50-year mean of 47.9.

The low moisture continued the pattern of aridity for the Bend area that started in July. Since July 1, only 1.15 inches of moisture was measured in Bend up to October 1. The normal moisture for October is 0.90 of an inch.

Temperature at the Bend station in October ranged from a high of 84 degrees early in the month to a chilly 14 degrees on the night of October 27. That chill ended one of the area's longest growing seasons in recent years.

Lemnitzer says threat great despite test ban

PARIS (UPI)—Allied Supreme commander Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer said today the Communist threat to the West remains as great as before the Moscow nuclear test ban agreement.

But he added that the Communists cannot have failed to note the implication of stepped-up Western military capabilities resulting from the airlifting of a complete U.S. armored division through Exercise Big Lift last month.

Lemnitzer addressed the opening session of the annual conference of parliament members from 15 North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) nations.

"It is extremely important," he said, "to recognize that it (the test ban agreement) in no way reduced the existing magnitude or capability of the forces which make up the military threat to NATO. In other words, the military threat to NATO remained at least at the very substantial level prevailing before the treaty went into effect."

"I think it is also clear that the continued existence of unabated Communist military strength means that NATO's military effectiveness has lost none of its vital importance," he added. "Beyond this, the continued military effectiveness of NATO is essential for the achievement of possible further progress toward agreement between the Communist and free world."

Lemnitzer described Big Lift as a "most impressive demonstration of the capability, under conditions, to provide rapid air and ground reinforcements, on a very substantial scale, to NATO forces already in Europe."

On Sunday firemen were called to the 1344 Baltimore residence of Alvin Wright and extinguished a small fire. No damage resulted.

Officer says Diem would have lost war with Reds

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI)—Ma. Gen. Ton that Dinh, the youthful officer who planned and instigated the overthrow of President Ngo Dinh Diem, said today he did so because "we would have lost the war under Diem."

Dinh, 38, told United Press International in an exclusive interview that "the morale of the army had fallen" after the Buddhist crisis of the past few months to the point where he feared mass desertions.

Dinh is a member of the three-man triumvirate which forms the nucleus of the 23-man military junta which will run South Viet Nam until a civilian government takes over.

A slight, intense man who is fond of wearing dark glasses and smoking cigars with a long black holder, Dinh is rarely seen wearing anything but a tightly tailored camouflage field uniform which is the regular

Promoted After Coup

Before the swift and violent coup of last Friday and Saturday, Dinh was a brigadier general. He was promoted on Saturday.

"I asked Diem for nothing, neither rank nor money," he said. "I only asked him to change his policies."

"But Diem didn't trust me. He thought I was ambitious. He had me followed and spied on by the secret police."

Dinh said he instigated the coup "not for personal ambition but for the population, the people, and to get rid of Nhu."

He was speaking of Diem's powerful younger brother and chief adviser, Ngo Dinh Nhu, whom he described as having "complete control" over the military and as "creating suspicion and discord in the army" to keep himself and Diem in power.

Planners urge C-4 zone changes for family units

Bend city planners this morning made four recommendations designed to ease area restrictions on multiple-family dwellings in C-4 (commercial) zones.

The planners urged that the present 1,500 square feet per dwelling unit requirement be reduced to 1,250 square feet, for one-story structures. For two-story structures, 1,000 feet was urged, and 750 feet for three-story structures. Also suggested was a 10-foot minimum side-yard requirement.

The recommendations were primarily based on ordinances adopted by other Oregon cities.

City commissioners will consider the recommendations at their next meeting.

WE LOVE MEXICO CITY

What a fabulous city Mexico City is! The people here are so friendly and gracious and hospitable that they treat us all as if we are dignitaries. The weather has been ideal and we have hardly used the air conditioning in our hotel rooms. Ours is a beautiful suite, No. 711, at the Maria Isabel Hotel overlooking the Reforma Blvd. and the statue of Independence.

The speakers at our sessions, as a whole, have been very interesting. There are two, we feel, who could have stayed at home rather than speaking through everyone, travel agents, as well as officers of the carriers, have mingled and exchanged ideas better than any ASTA convention. To me, it is an honor to shake hands with a President and Vice President of large companies and ride in the elevators with them to the sessions and discuss travel. We feel we have learned much and gained more knowledge to help us become better travel advisors and agents for our people.

Right now, I am writing this as we are sitting during the 10 a.m. - 1 p.m. Friday, Oct. 25 session titled "Meet With The Allied Presidents" at the Salon de Fiestas, Hotel Maria Isabel. Warren S. Titus, President of P & O Orient Lines, Inc., is speaking now. He joined Orient & Pacific Lines on June 1, 1959, as general manager for North America and shortly thereafter was named president of the successor company, Orient & Pacific Lines Agency, Inc. as of June, 1960. He is a very good speaker and is drawing applause for some of his remarks and comments.

Since we are receiving more requests than ever for cruises, freighters and travel into the South Pacific and Australia area, we feel you would be interested in the background of the speaker just mentioned. Maitia Navigation Company, serving the same area, is well accepted also. Robert C. Townsend, President of Avis, Inc. since March, 1962, was also an excellent speaker and received tremendous applause from all the travel agents when he told of their plan to give all of us commission on all their car rentals and even presented us with cards to present to our clients and customers. We mailed our initial supply to those we know use cars through our travel agency and 200 cards will be sent directly to our office in Bend.

Mr. Earl B. Padsick, Chairman of the Rail Travel Promotion Agency, is a very charming person and also a very well received speaker. We saw him in the elevator to tell him that even though we are on a trunk line, we have one of the most accommodating and cooperative agents, namely Ken Johnston, at our train depot that any travel agent could want. He smiled and said, "Thank you. I'm so glad to hear that." He told travel agents the railroads plan to stay in the passenger business by providing better cars and service than ever.

Next stop — Taxco.
