Grand jury opens fall court term

The new Deschutes county grand jury yesterday opened the 1963 fall term of circuit court by returning a true bill on a criminal matter and making the customary inspection of jails, Sunset Home and the courthouse.

The grand jury decided there was sufficient evidence to hold Lowell Thomas Laitte, 18, of Bend, on a charge of breaking and entering a structure other than a dwelling. Earlier bound over in district court, he is to be arraigned this afternoon in circuit court. He has been at liberty on bail.

Laitte was arrested on a charge of entering a house used as a storage warehouse, in the Bear Creek area east of Bend, last July 26 in the company of two minors. A number of articles, principally photography equipment, were allegedly taken.

The grand jury recommended improvements on the Bend City Jail's lower floor, known as the "drunk tank." The upper floor was found to be in good order.

James O. Arntz, Bend, was jury foreman. Other members are Bobbie L. Loy and John J. DeRushia, both of Bend, and Doris B. Smith, Floyd J. Glass, Leo A. Mayenschein and Lewis Rice, all of Redmond.

No recommendations were made regarding the Deschutes County Jail, Sunset Home and the courthouse.

Sunset Home was found to be "in good order, very clean and (with) a good atmosphere." Arriving at mealtime, the grand jury reported that the food appeared to be a well-rounded meal. The kitchen and the laundry room were very clean and orderly, according to the report.

Gresham man loses appeal

A Gresham man, convicted in Redmond justice court on a traffic violation, Monday lost an appeal in circuit court.

A jury of six women and four men deliberated 40 minutes to find Charles Samuel Glover guilty of overtaking and passing a vehicle with insufficient clearance. He was fined $75 and his operator's license was revoked for 30 days. This was the same sentence he received in justice court.

Glover was represented by two Portland attorneys. Gary Hermann handled the case for the State, while District Attorney Louis Selken was busy with the grand jury. Charles B. Conway, a state police officer, testified for the State.

Howard C. Kaufman was jury foreman. Other jurors were William B. Sharp, Billy Martin, Lou C. Shive, Anna L. Oldaker, Donald E. Iverson, Ruby June Millard, Ernest Russell, Wyonna Zemke, Marjorie L. Ettinger, Jewell M. Whitehead and Anna Mae Richards.

In a civil suit Friday, Mrs. Marie Ferguson was unsuccessful in an attempt to collect damages for personal injury from Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Fassett, doing business as Owl Taxi Service.

Circuit Judge Robert H. Foley allowed the defendant's motion for involuntary nonsuit, on the grounds that there was not sufficient proof of negligence to take the case to the jury.

Plan eyed for water to Bachelor

Snow-blanketed, but waterless Bachelor Butte, location of one of the largest ski developments in the Pacific Northwest, may receive water from the Broken Top country.

Under consideration by the developers of the Bachelor Butte ski area is a plan to pipe water a distance of approximately 7,500 feet, from a mountain tributary that has its origin well up in the Broken Top crater, but in an area that does not feed into Crater Creek, from which water is diverted into Tumalo Creek for the Tumalo Irrigation District.

Water for the Bachelor Butte development would be diverted from the creek in the Todd Lake Meadows area, moved past Glacier Springs, then south over the old Century Drive roadbed across Dutchman Flat to Bachelor.

Preliminary plans indicate that water to provide adequate pressure for the ski facilities could be stored in a reservoir near the bottom of the T-Bar ski lift. Water would have to be pumped uphill a distance of 137 feet, due to the elevation.

The mountain creek that would provide water for the ski area is spring fed and icy cold. Until engineering studies are made, cost of the project will not be known. That study will also determine the size of the pipe required for the water-supply project.

Bachelor Butte developers in their early studies of the area for ski use recognized the need for water, to provide for full development. Although the old cone is heavily covered with snow each season, the melt disappears in the volcanic rocks.

Recently, an attempt was made to drill a deep well near the northwest edge of Dutchman Flat, close to the volcanic apron of Broken Top. The attempt failed to yield water.

Greater understanding of Indian and his problems urged in talks

An appeal for better understanding of the American Indian and his problems was made in a talk in Bend Monday by Erin Forrest, president of the California Inter-Tribal Council.

Forrest, author of an "Indian Creed" adopted by Indian tribes throughout the United States, spoke to the Bend Kiwanis Club at its weekly luncheon meeting.

In the evening, Forrest addressed students and faculty members of Central Oregon College at a general assembly.

In his talks, Forrest stressed the need for understanding Indians and their problems from the Indian point of view. He noted the dislocation of Indian society with the coming of settlers and pointed out some of the difficulties which Indians have encountered in adapting themselves to the white man's way of doing things.

Forrest also called attention to the many contributions which Indians have made to the American heritage. He listed among these the great achievements in the fields of farming and the use of drugs and cited the stable governments which Indians maintained prior to the coming of the white man.

Noting that many Indians viewed the "progress" which the white man offered with much skepticism, Forrest recalled the long list of broken treaties and promises which the Indian has been subjected to at the hands of the American government.

Indians, he said, are too often judged by non-Indian standards.

Among needs of the Indians, Forrest gave primary importance to education. He also said he feels the problems confronting the Indian population include many which cannot be solved without a greater understanding of the Indians' need for combining his old ways of doing things with the newer concepts of American civilization.

Forrest is first vice-president of the Alturas Kiwanis Club and serves also in Division 15-A activities of the service group.

R. G. McFarland introduced the speaker to the Kiwanis Club. Arrangements for Forrest's visit were made by William Hudson.
