JFK lambastes critics of foreign aid program

Ships collide but all 62 men rescued

BUZZARDS BAY, Mass. (UPI)—A Norwegian freighter and an empty gasoline tanker collided in haze and burst into flames off Cape Cod today. All 62 crewmen aboard the two ships were rescued.

Five men were injured. The ships, locked together by the crash, were the freighter Fernview and the Sun Oil Co. coastal tanker Dynafuel. The Coast Guard evacuated the crews.

The fire aboard the Dynafuel burned furiously for nearly five hours before it was put out shortly before noon. The small fire on the Fernview was quenched earlier.

Attempt Made

Coast Guard boats were trying to pull the two ships apart. Shortly after the collision, crewmen of the 325-foot Dynafuel transferred to the 510-foot Fernview. Fire aboard the Dynafuel was reported burning furiously in the engine room. The smaller blaze on the Fernview was brought under control.

Coast Guard craft battled flames with foam and water. Both crews pitched in to fight the fires but were subsequently removed from the flaming vessels as a precautionary measure.

The Fernview's bow was imbedded 20 feet into the amidships port side of the Dynafuel. Witnesses said the Fernview almost rode up over the tanker in back of the pilot house.

One crewman, removed to U.S. Public Service Hospital at Brighton, Mass., was identified as John L. Hudson, 19, of 262 Valley St., Jackson, Miss. Officials said he suffered multiple lacerations and contusions but his condition was good.

The collision occurred in overcast weather 2½ miles south of Smith Neck in Buzzards Bay.

The Fernview built in 1961 was owned by A.S. Giltre and A.S. Marina of Oslo, Norway. The Dynafuel was built in 1946. The Coast Guard said indications were that the tanker carried a cargo of oil. A helicopter hovering over the two vessels said the tanker was settling in the water.

"The fire aboard the Dynafuel is of a more serious nature than the fire aboard the Fernview," the Coast Guard reported.

The Fernview was en route from Boston to New York. The Dynafuel's home port was Philadelphia.

Cause of the collision was not known.

The two ships would pull away from each other if one of them sank, the Coast Guard said.

Titan fired across Pacific

VANDENBERG AFB, Calif. (UPI)—A 10-story-high Titan-1 intercontinental ballistic missile rumbled from its silo today and streaked toward a target 5,000 miles across the Pacific.

Launch of the 300,000-pound thrust operational missile was effected by the 451st Strategic Missile Wing in a routine training launch, the Air Force announced.

In keeping with recent policy, the Air Force did not disclose further details for the launch of the 97-foot weapon.

The four-man launch crew is stationed at Lowry Air Force Base, Colo. Taking part in the operation were Lt. Col. Frank J. Malkiewich of Mackay, Idaho; Lt. Col. John R. Bell of Prescott, Ariz.; M. Sgt. Mayo Smith of Beckley, W. Va.; and T. Sgt. Richard N. Crowfoot, Long Beach, Calif.

At this same base Wednesday a Strategic Air Command combat team triggered a 90-foot Atlas-D ICBM toward a target in the same impact area in what the Air Force described as a "routine training mission."

FRANK LOGGAN NIGHT—Honored here last night in recognition of his long service to the Central Oregon community and his state activities was Frank H. Loggan, . Presiding at the testimonial dinner attended by some 120 persons was Freeman Schultz. By official proclamation, the evening was designated as Frank Loggan Night.

Long-time Bend resident Frank H. Loggan guest of honor at surprise dinner here

By Phil F. Brogan
Bulletin Staff Writer

A long-time Bend resident, Frank H. Loggan, local radio executive, was guest of honor here Wednesday night at a surprise dinner arranged in recognition of his state, area and local leadership for more than 30 years.

Present for the dinner at the Elks' club were some 120 persons, with Freeman Schultz presiding, and with friends of Loggan present from many parts of the state.

Scores of telegrams and letters were read, and there were recorded greetings from state and regional leaders. Represented in the greetings were Governor Mark O. Hatfield, ex-Governor Robert Holmes, many Pacific Northwest radio executives and former Bend residents.

Frank Hemingway, widely-known news commentator who got his start in the radio field with Loggan's station, KBND, 25 years ago, sent a recorded telephone greeting.

Also joining in felicitations were a number of newspaper executives, including Palmer Hoyt of the Denver Post, who was in Bend 25 years ago when KBND went on the air for the first time.

Proclamation Read

Mayor E. L. Nielsen brought official greetings from the city of Bend, after proclaiming the occasion Frank Loggan Night. A huge, embossed proclamation was presented to Loggan. An old-time school mate of Loggan's in Burns, Chet Irving, now of Klamath Falls, touched on Loggan's boyhood in the Harney city. Doug Gaines and John Stenkamp presented remarks from many unable to attend the banquet, held at the Elks' Club.

William Reynolds represented the Travel and Information Divisions of the Oregon State Highway Department, and brought greetings from the highway staff.

A. N. Weier, manager of the Oregon State Motor Association, was here from Portland, to touch on Loggan's work as a state director of the AAA group, a position he still holds. Bert Hagen reviewed Loggan's Skyliner activities of earlier years. Chuck Johnson sketched the Bend man's work with the Deschutes pageant, dating to 1934.

Cannon on Hand

Rep. Kessler Cannon came from Salem to join in the program, and Ray Johnson of KMED was here from Medford to represent the Oregon Broadcasters' Association.

Loggan, who for 25 years was a member of The Bulletin's advertising staff, has been a Bend resident for 37 years. He came here from Portland, where he worked for a short time after being graduated from the University of Oregon.

Maurice F. Roberts, Redmond, joined others in reviewing Loggan's activities in many fields — one of the founder's of the Central Oregon Chamber of Commerce, backer of the Deschutes County Advertising Committee, original member of the Bend Skyliners, member of the Oregon State Highway Department's advisory committee, member of the Bend Mirror Pond Pageant in earlier years, president of the Oregon Broadcasters' Association, former president of the Bend Lions Club and leader of many Central Oregon projects.

Plaque Presented

Loggan was presented with a plaque, in recognition of "his constructive leadership in the Oregon community over a period of many years." The presentation was made by B. A. Stover. Alva Goodrich represented the Lions in the club's part of the program.

The board indicated earlier it did not plan to act on cuts in its budget until after the legislature went home.

Bitter power fight thought to be in progress in Iraq

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)—A bitter power struggle appeared today to be in progress in Iraq.

Baghdad Radio said Foreign Minister Taleb Hussein Shabib, Interior Minister Hazem Jawad and six other prominent officials were deported to Lebanon as part of a plan by the national command of the Baath party to settle the current crisis.

Their deportation followed an attack Wednesday by at least one Iraqi air force jet on the presidential palace and reports of street fighting in Baghdad.

Shabib and Jawad were Amoghze leaders of a faction within the Baath party that have been engaged in a sharp series of disagreements with Deputy Premier Saleh El Saadi, long considered the real power in Iraq.

Saadi arrived secretly in Madrid Tuesday and said today from the Spanish capital that he hoped to return home "in the near future" because both the Baath party and the people back him.

Saadi, who carries a pistol wherever he goes, is considered the leader of the extremist wing of the Baath.

He favors a government that would exclude all other parties from participation in ruling Iraq.

Meeting held in secret at Marion Hotel

SALEM (UPI)—Seven legislators put a little pressure on six members of the Board of Higher Education and the chancellor this morning at a secret meeting at the Marion Hotel.

Then the educators went into executive session.

It was indicated a statement from the educators probably would be forthcoming later—giving the legislature more of the information some of its members have demanded on higher education's budget cutting plans.

Sen. Ward Cook, D-Portland, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, confirmed the breakfast meeting.

He denied that it was secret. It was, however, unannounced, and held in a private dining room away from the Capitol despite the emptiness of most meeting rooms at the Capitol.

The educators gathered in Salem after bills were presented for introduction in the Senate threatening to freeze college tuition levels and entrance requirements and threatening a full scale probe of higher education.

Educators Listed

Cook said the meeting was attended by these educators: Chancellor R. E. Lieuaalen and board members William E. Welsh, Chairman, Coos Bay; Charles R. Holloway, Portland; J. W. Forrester Jr., Pendleton; Mrs. Elizabeth H. Johnson, Redmond; John Merrifield, Portland; and Dr. Ralph Purvine, Salem.

The legislators represented the education subcommittee of Ways and Means, Daniel Thiel, D-Astoria; Rep. Ross Morgan, D-Gresham; Rep. Stafford Hansen, R-Hermiston; Rep. Beulah Hand, D-Milwaukie; and Rep. Sidney Leiken, D-Roseburg.

Cook said the conversation ranged over the fiscal problems confronting the legislature.

He declined to cite specific topics of discussion, but said it would be correct to say board members have been made aware that it would be advisable to give additional information to the legislature while it is in session.

Meeting Said Cordial

Cook said the meeting was held on a cordial note. "We are interested in getting their viewpoint," he said. "It is hard to second guess. We don't like to take a shot in the dark."

Cook said board members have not yet been asked to appear formally before Ways and Means, "but certainly if it is necessary we will ask them."

Vaccine clinic set by Jaycees

The Bend Junior Chamber of Commerce will hold a Sabin Oral Vaccine clinic Friday evening, November 15, in the basement of the Elks Temple from 7 to 9 p.m. Types II and III will be given. Cost of the vaccine will be 50 cents per person or $1.75 for a family of four or more.

Madame Nhu wan on her Rome arrival

ROME (UPI)—Madame Ngo Dinh Nhu, looking wan and close to tears, arrived in Rome today for a reunion with her three youngest children.

Madame Nhu, whose husband, Ngo Dinh Nhu, and brother-in-law, President Ngo Dinh Diem, were killed in the Vietnamese coup, flew here from Los Angeles where she had claimed that the "Judas dollars of American aid" had caused Diem's downfall.

She made no arrival statement, going directly from the plane to a limousine. Only an unidentified priest and the driver were waiting for her and her 18-year-old daughter, Le Thu, who accompanied her.

There was no sign at the airport of President Diem's brother, Archbishop Ngo Dinh Thuc, nor of the three children.

It was expected that Madame Nhu would go directly to the villa south of Rome where the archbishop and the children, who range in age from 4 to 15, are staying.

Phase II of COC building plans offered to board

MADRAS—Preliminary plans for Phase II of the Central Oregon College building program, now underway on Bend's Awwrey Heights, were presented to members of the COC education district board members at a meeting here Wednesday night.

It was the first of the board meetings to be held outside of Bend under the new rotational policy, which calls for alternating sessions in Redmond, Madras, Prineville and Bend. William C. Robinson, Madras, board chairman, presided. All members of the board other than Richard McRae, Prineville, attended.

Money for the advance planning of Phase II of the construction program was borrowed from the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency. Deadline for completion of detailed plans was set as January 23. The board instructed the architectural firm in charge to continue with the drawings.

However, there are no immediate plans to proceed with Phase II, since money for these buildings was to come from the appropriation of the 1963 Oregon Legislature, and was a part of the tax deferral program defeated on October 15.

Whether the college proceeds in the near future to enter this second phase of development will depend upon the action of the current special legislative session, Don P. Pence, COC president, said.

The board at its conference here last night heard a report from Robert Johnson, director of Continuing Education for COC. Pence reported that the Continuing Education program in the future will include upper divisions and graduate extension courses.

Strong words used in shaft at Congress

By Merriman Smith
UPI Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy, in a rare attack on Congress, today lambasted critics of his foreign aid program and reluctantly conceded that his civil rights and tax cut bills probably will not be passed this year.

In some of the strongest language he has ever used against the Democratic-controlled Congress, the President told a news conference that those lawmakers seeking to cut the aid program were "severely limiting" his ability to protect the national interest.

At the same time, he admitted publicly what has become obvious—that the controversies surrounding his civil rights and tax cut bills will delay action until next year at least.

But he refused to acknowledge any need for delay. He said both measures had been before the legislators long enough for final action to be taken. He expressed hope that the tax cut bill at least could be passed at this session.

As for the aid program, the President said some members of Congress did not realize its importance, perhaps because they are not charged with carrying out the nation's foreign policy.

In the foreign field, the President served notice on Russia that prompt release of Yale Prof. Frederick C. Barghoorn, held by the Soviets on spy charges, was essential to continuation of the U.S.-Soviet cultural exchange programs.

The President called the 52-year-old professor's arrest "unwarranted and unjust" and indicated it could affect various aspects of U.S. - Soviet relations, including trade. He also said he expected more difficulties with Russia in other fields.

The Chief Executive expressed his deepest emotion of the half-hour news session in appealing for passage of his foreign aid program, cut by the House earlier this year and now under fire in the Senate.

He declared that the program's Senate foes, who are led by Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., were "severely limiting my ability to protect the interests of the United States." He said they apparently did not realize that the program is "a very valuable arm in foreign policy."

Declaring that his program—slashed by $1 billion in the House and cut by over $800 million in the Senate so far—was not greatly different than others submitted in the past 10 years, the President said the need for such assistance to other nations had not diminished in that time.

Appeals For Action

The President, holding his first morning news conference since March 6, also delivered an appeal for his tax cut and civil rights bills—but was obviously resigned to far less action this year than he had hoped.

North Koreans open fire, U.S. soldier wounded

SEOUL, Korea (UPI)—North Korean Communist soldiers, firing more than 1,000 shots at an unarmed United Nations inspection team, wounded a U.S. soldier and possibly killed a South Korean officer Wednesday in the Demilitarized zone, it was announced today.

The Communists had been told that the eight-man group would be in the zone, which divides South Korea from the Communist North, and the members of the team wore yellow armbands as identification.

It was the first such incident since August, when five U.S. troops were wounded in a series of attacks in late July and early August.

The American enlisted man was wounded in the thigh and was not in serious condition. He was not identified pending notification of relatives. The South Korean officer, a captain, had to be left behind seriously wounded. U.N. spokesman Col. George R. Creel said he is presumed to be dead.

The other U.S. member of the team was Lt. Col. Alphas R. Clark of Leavenworth, Kan. He was not wounded, although his legs were scratched and bruised.

U. N. officials asked for a meeting of the Military Armistice Commission to protest "the unprovoked attack."

Chamber votes to be accepted to Friday noon

Bend Chamber of Commerce members can cast votes in their annual election of directors up until noon Friday, date of the Chamber's annual dinner, Marion Cady, Chamber manager, pointed out today. Late voters can bring their ballots to the dinner meeting, to be counted. The dinner will be held Friday noon at the Copper River, with Robert Gaudi, Corona, Calif., as the guest speaker. He is head architect and chief engineer for the G. T. Wolfe trailer firm, which operates a plant in Bend.

Gaudi is expected to touch on future plans for the Bend operation.

Cultural exchange program threatened

Kennedy demands quick release of Barghoorn

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy said today that prompt release of a Yale professor held on spy charges in Russia is "essential" to continuation of U.S.-Soviet cultural exchange programs.

Kennedy told a news conference the United States is "deeply concerned" over what he called Russia's "unwarranted and unjust arrest" of Prof. Frederick C. Barghoorn, 52, head of the Soviet studies department at Yale. He had been traveling in Russia as a tourist when he was picked up. As a result of Barghoorn's arrest and Russia's refusal even to allow American officials to see him, the United States today canceled negotiations with the Soviets on a new cultural exchange agreement.

Kennedy said Barghoorn "was not on an intelligence mission of any kind."

His arrest, the President said, could have a "most serious effect" on efforts to widen U.S.-

Soviet cultural, educational and scientific exchanges. Kennedy said he had "understood" Russia had wanted to expand these exchanges.

Kennedy described Barghoorn as a distinguished scholar and noted that the professor had been active in past U.S.-Soviet exchange programs.

The President said "early release" of the Yale scholar is "essential if these programs are to be continued."

exchange were to have begun in Moscow Tuesday to replace a two-year agreement which expires Dec. 31.

The President himself, it was disclosed, made the decision that it would be singularly inappropriate to proceed now with negotiations scheduled to begin Tuesday in Moscow, while the Soviets were still holding Professor Frederick Barghoorn. The United States has protested vigorously against Barghoorn's arrest, calling espionage charges against him "groundless."

The American ambassador in Moscow, Foy D. Kohler, was advised Wednesday of the White House decision and early today cabled Washington that he was in complete agreement with the action.

Kennedy's decision cancelled the departure, scheduled for today, of a 10-man American delegation headed by Frank G. Siscoe, director of the State Department's Division of Soviet and East European Exchanges. There was speculation the Russians were planning to seize more American hostages in retaliation for the recent ousting of Soviet U.N. officials caught spying in this country.

The State Department is warning American organizations not to become involved in any "commitments" with a group of 17 Soviet tourists which arrived in the United States Wednesday for a three-week tour.
