Alabama blasts being probed

By United Press International. Authorities today investigated two weekend explosions which shattered windows in a Negro neighborhood at Tuscaloosa, Ala., and jolted a University of Alabama dormitory where the school's only Negro student resides.

Nobody was injured in the blasts, which occurred about 18 hours apart. Gov. George C. Wallace advanced the theory that they may have been pranks of high-spirited students caught up in the enthusiasm of Saturday's Alabama-Georgia Tech football game.

The first blast occurred at 3:10 a.m. Saturday and ripped a hole in a campus street near Mary Burke Hall where Negro Vivian Malone resides. The second explosion occurred at 9:38 p.m. behind a grocery in a Negro section of the university town and shattered windows in the area.

2 missionaries on program

Two missionaries to different fields will speak Tuesday, November 19, at the Redmond Free Methodist Church. Services will be held at 10:30 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 7 p.m.

They are the Rev. John H. Schlosser, pioneer missionary to The Philippines, and the Rev. Ernest Huston, who works among the Japanese immigrants in Encarnacion, Paraguay.

Schlosser is a second-generation missionary, who was born in China and received his early education in that country. After graduating from the American School at Kikungshan, he worked in a mission hospital for one year, then came to the United States. He is a graduate of Greenville College, Ill., and the Biblical Seminary of New York.

He returned to China in 1946, and moved with his family to the Philippines, after the Communist take-over in China. He and his wife have four children, ages 11-19.

Arthur Cannon heart victim

Special to The Bulletin

PORTLAND — Arthur M. Cannon, 53, Portland insurance executive and brother of Rep. Kessler R. Cannon, Bend, died Saturday evening in Portland, victim of a heart attack suffered shortly after returning from a business trip east.

Aside from his brother in Bend, Mr. Cannon is survived by his widow, Mary Janet, and three daughters, Nancy of Washington, D.C.; Barbara, a student at the University of Oregon, and Patricia, a high school student in Portland.

Page added that although he could not document it, he felt that in this state "despite careful administration of federal funds available for state or local district use...there exists, to a degree, a lack of appreciation of these dollars and the use to which they are put."

In outlining his thoughts, Page said:

—1. If properly approached and secured, state self-support will tend to establish pride and improve the sense of responsibility "which is needed as never before in this nation."

—2. Illinois, as well as most of the other states, can support and finance its own system of public education.

—3. He would support limited equalization to the more deprived states if it is dispensed under well defined regulations.

For needy states, a proof of wise and fruitful use of public funds should be demanded and demonstrated. This proof, in a sense, will involve some federal control. "I do not care for federal control, yet, to me it is necessary to a degree if federal aid to education is provided."

Page said he felt people spent federal funds more freely than state funds "without compulsion for justification."

Panel speaker is opposed to federal education aid

PORTLAND (UPI) — Ray Page, state superintendent of public instruction for Illinois, said today he basically was opposed to the concept of federal support to education and its possible long term effects.

Page's remarks were prepared for a panel discussion on federal and state education at the annual meeting of the Council of Chief State School Officers here.

He said his views probably would not coincide with the majority of the superintendents attending.

Page added that although he could not document it, he felt that in this state "despite careful administration of federal funds available for state or local district use...there exists, to a degree, a lack of appreciation of these dollars and the use to which they are put."

New motions filed by Harvey

THE DALLES (UPI) — The Harvey Aluminum Co. has filed new motions with the Wasco County clerk in connection with the case it brought last year against School District 9 (Chenoweth) just west of here.

The pending case deals with the boundary line between District 9 and School District 12 (The Dalles).

The motions ask that if the boundary line is determined to be as contended by School District 12, then $89,132 of the firm's 1963-64 tax money should be allocated and disbursed to District 12 rather than District 9. Harvey last Friday paid $511,116 in property taxes to cover 1963-64.

District 12 is a defendant in the school district boundary case but has adopted the plaintiff's position. Harvey seeks a court order requiring the sheriff to show cause why he should not be restrained from otherwise disbursing the money during pendency of the suit and determination of the boundary line.

Reimbursement plan defeated

PORTLAND (UPI) — Members of the Oregon State Bar have voted against setting up a fund to reimburse clients who were victimized by unscrupulous attorneys.

The association reported Saturday that a secret vote showed 1,079 attorneys opposed to the fund and 658 in favor. Another 109 said they were undecided.

The security fund would have been used to pay clients who lost money to an attorney through embezzlement, conversion, or other misappropriation.

Cars damaged in collision

Two cars suffered heavy damage to their front ends Saturday when one of them, operated by Donald Alfred Clemence, 22, 609 S. Third, ran into the other as it was parked on Georgia Avenue.

Police blamed defective brakes and steering for the mishap, which gave Clemence a chin cut.

Owner of the parked vehicle is Charles R. Paxton, 827 Georgia. A second car belonging to Paxton, parked directly behind the first, received slight bumper damage, police said.

Graham to preach

BELMONT, N.C. (UPI) — Evangelist Billy Graham will deliver a sermon on the campus of Belmont Abbey College here tonight—the first time the Baptist minister has appeared on the campus of a Catholic college.

Graham will be a guest at 6 p.m. dinner at the school prior to his 8 p.m. sermon—the first of five scheduled at Catholic institutions around the country.

Ike favors bringing troops home

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower says Europe is now able to carry its own defense burden and five of the six U.S. divisions stationed there should be brought home.

A reinforced division of ground troops totaling 40,000 to 50,000 men would be sufficient to "keep our flag there and assure these people that we will be there at the right time," Eisenhower said Sunday.

President Kennedy said recently that while the United States will withdraw some logistic troops from Europe, it intends to keep its six combat divisions in Germany as long as they were needed.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said in Atlanta that he agreed with Eisenhower's withdrawal proposal. The United States, Russell said, would "go to war just as quickly to save one American division overseas as to save five."

Eisenhower, who previously had proposed a U.S. troop reduction in Europe, was asked how deep a cut he would make in the six-division 230,000-man ground force now there.

"I would say gradually we ought to draw down to, oh, let's say a good reinforced division or something of that kind," he replied.

Plane rocked by eruptions

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — At least two volcanoes erupted Sunday, and the shock wave from one reportedly almost blew a light plane, flying about 50 miles away, out of the air.

Eruptions were reported on uninhabited Augustine Island, about 180 miles southwest of here, and in the Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes, about 275 miles southwest of here on the Alaska Peninsula.

Bill Harvey, owner of Harvey's Flying Service on Kodiak Island, said he received a radio report from a light plane pilot flying about 50 miles from the Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes.

"The concussion flipped us over on our side and almost blew us out of the air," Harvey quoted the pilot as saying.

A Navy pilot on a routine patrol flight said he thought the eruption of the 3,970-foot volcano on Augustine island was a nuclear explosion.

He said a mushroom cloud rose 35,000 feet in the air and that he could see trees burning at the volcano's base.

Committee ready to release bill on Boardman space park

SALEM (UPI) — The emergency bill to cut through legal entanglements threatening development of a Space Age Industrial Park at Boardman appeared ready to come out of the Ways and Means Committee today.

It will go to the House for action. The project was termed "a press agent's dream, but a legislator's nightmare," by Sen. Alfred Corbett, D-Portland, before the Ways and Means Committee today.

Critical lawmakers, obviously not happy they have been called upon once again to pull the Boardman chestnuts out of the fire, wanted assurance the project was in the best interests of the state.

Secretary of State Howell Appling Jr. told the committee he had reservations about the project from the start, but that it was too late now for the state to back out.

Appling later told newsmen it was not until Oct. 1 that the present crisis came to light, and that the original plan was to sit on the problem and present it to the 1965 session of the legislature.

But when the Boeing Co. said it would not proceed until the legal questions had been cleared, Gov. Mark Hatfield last week asked the legislature to rush through emergency legislation.

At the Ways and Means Committee meeting, Wayne Nunn, Hatfield's executive assistant, said "even if the Boardman site is not used for an industrial park, it would be a good investment for the state."

The legislature originally appropriated $900,000 for the project, but the price tag is now up to $1.5 million.

Rep. Beulah Hand, D-Milwaukie, wanted to know why the attorney general's office had not been in on all phases of the project.

Atty. Gen. Robert Y. Thornton told the committee he had never seen a copy of the Boeing lease.

The lease allows Boeing to use the property for 77 years. Boeing can cancel at the end of seven years, and at 10-year intervals thereafter.

If Boeing did cancel, the state's general fund would have to make up payments that will be financed through lease receipts if the deal holds up.

Also troubling lawmakers is the fact that Boeing refuses to pay property taxes for the land. If these go too high, the state's general fund will have to pay them to Morrow County. Boeing has agreed to pay taxes only on improvements.

Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., charged last week that Reilly and Hill, in effect, had first denied and later conceded they were involved in an attempt to "bug" Otepa's telephone. The two men were placed on "administrative leave" by the State Department following Sen. Dodd's charges last week.

Department press officer Richard I. Phillips told newsmen today that Reilly and Hill "have tendered their resignations and the department has accepted them to be effective at an early date." Phillips said this will be some time next month.

Phillips said it was customary in such cases to permit employees a reasonable time to wind up their affairs. He said both Reilly and Hill, however, had been relieved of their normal duties.

Reilly's resignation left David I. Belisle, special assistant for personnel security, in charge of the security office. Belisle also had been involved in the Senate testimony concerning the Otepa wire tap case. But Belisle stated he had been out of the country when the incident took place, and had no first hand knowledge of it.
