Complete with an elevator, an outside patio, and a view of the Potomac from a rooftop "captain's watch," the house was listed for sale at $190,000. The exact sale price, however, was not announced.

dent was a senator.

A spokesman for Mrs. Kennedy said Wednesday that she and her two children, Caroline, 6, and John Jr., 3, would move into the house next month.

The house was purchased from James M. Gibson, a retired investment broker. Gibson originally listed the house for sale at $350,000 but recently lowered it.

Built around 1794, Gibson said the mottled brick building is believed to be Georgetown's sec-ond oldest house. It has seven bedrooms, cathedral ceilings and foot-thick walls.

The first floor drawing room opens out on to an enclosed patio. To the right of the center hall is the dining room. Behind It is the kitchen and servants

The house was described by Pamela Turnure, Mrs. Kennedy's press secretary, as "quite spacious." She said the President's widow is expected to move in about the middle of January. In the White House Wednesday, President Johnson signed legislation giving Mrs. Kennedy Secret Service protection, along with free mailing privileges, and office help.

The entire amount authorized Mrs. Kennedy was $65,000. Out of this $15,000 was to be used to defray burial costs for President Kennedy and $50,000 to pay Settling into the White House, Mrs. Johnson took over a tradi-tional First Lady's job. She brought Christmas toys to chil-dren in the District of Columdren in the District of Columbia General Hospital. With her daughter, Lucy Baines, Mrs. Johnson toured the wards giving the youngsters puzzles, blocks, and sewing sets.

Mrs. Johnson told the children that one of the "last things President Kennedy did was to arrange for all the toys that were brought here today."

The decision was made at the December meeting of the county school board this week. The board had earlier feared that it might be necessary to dispense with the outdoor classes as part of an economy program, when it was announced from Salem that state monies to schools appeared due for a cut due to lack of state funds. The county board was notified by the state department of edu-

In other business at their De-cember meeting the school board renewed, for another five years, an agreement with four families in Powell Butte by which the families use the Powell Butte school cistern for their water supply. Some time ago, a well was drilled at the Powell Butte school, and the use of the cistern was abandoned. The four families petitioned for use of the cistern, which was ap-
