The New Year offers new and many opportunities for us as we face the future. To live for the future is the aspiration of life. It is well to remember some things of the past but we must not live in the past because we can not change anything that was done or relive it in order to change it. The things to remember are the ones that will help us do or be better in the future. The present and the future are what we live in and for. The Apostle Paul has advised, "Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended: but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Philippians 3: 14-15. What better admonishment can we find? The present is not enough for us to dwell upon as we become parasites of the day and lose our drive to press forward reaching for higher planes of life. We should live for the present, however, but we should never lose sight of a greater future. As we lay the foundation today, so will the building of tomorrow be built there on. This brings us to the thought that it is the duty of the parents of today to lay the solid foundations in the world that their children will be building upon. If we lay the wrong kind can we expect our children to build a great world of tomorrow? It is also true that we will realize greater blessings as we give ourselves unto the Lord as well as others. Jesus has said it is more blessed to give than to receive. This does not mean just to give of our finances, but we are to do as the apostles did: they gave of themselves first. Man may live a long and prosperous life and even build an empire, but the life that will be most remembered and honored in the life to come is the life that is lived for Christ and others. There is no price tag attached to the service that is rendered in service to others, because the reward is the joy of knowing we have been of help to a friend. If in this life alone we look for rewards we are a most miserable people. Jesus has set the example and we are urged to follow his leadership. He gave us many promises and he has never broken a one. He knows our needs even before we ask his help, yet, he still wants us to pray and seek his face and will.

The Forest Avenue Baptist Church was established in 1951 and stands ready to give spiritual help to all in the coming year. Your church will be the one institution that is most interested in you. If you do not belong to a church, why not attend the one nearest you and learn about Christ, the one who can answer your every question and give peace to every heart.
