

Wallace says he's thinking about entering Oregon's Demo presidential primary

PORTLAND (UPI) — Gov. George Wallace of Alabama says he is thinking about entering the Oregon Democratic presidential primary.

Wallace, who flew into Portland Sunday evening from San Francisco, said a primary campaign would be a method of giving the South a larger voice in national politics.

The governor said he had received a large amount of mail from Oregonians expressing support for his policies.

Wallace was greeted by both critical and friendly demonstrators when he arrived at the Hilton Hotel but no serious incidents were reported. One student was booked on a disorderly conduct charge after a complaint alleged a pro-Wallace demonstrator was pushed off a sidewalk.

A quiet demonstration opposing Wallace's segregationist policies had been planned but a few youths joined marchers and chanted, "Wallace go home." A few persons carried signs saying, "Welcome Gov. Wallace."

Estimates of the number of demonstrators varied from around 175 to 300.

Wallace said purpose of his trip was "to emancipate the people of Oregon from the distorted views of the national press and radio and television."

He attacked the proposed civil rights bill. In an earlier television appearance in San Francisco Sunday he said the "federal government's grab for power," not segregation, was the real issue in the south.

He said if the civil rights bill pending in Congress was passed the government will "take over business and tell you who you can hire and fire."

Wallace was to go to Eugene this afternoon for a news conference and a speech tonight at the University of Oregon. He winds up his western swing Tuesday with appearances in Seattle, where he flies tonight.

PORTLAND (UPI) — The Multnomah County Democratic Central Committee today disavowed the racial views of Alabama Gov. George Wallace.

"His segregationist policies do not reflect the civil rights views of the Democratic Party" at the county, state or national level, the Democrats said in a resolution released by county chairman Bill Bradley.

But the resolution emphasized that the party was not against allowing him to speak at the University of Oregon or anywhere else. It appealed to Oregonians to show Wallace the courtesy due a governor and representative of the people of Alabama.

"Ironically, Wallace's visit can bring attention to Oregon's outstanding civil rights legislative record," Bradley said.

"Oregon adopted its Public Accommodation Law in 1953. Regrettably, the only congressman who opposes the milder public accommodation section of the civil rights bill now being considered in Washington, D.C., is Oregon's only Republican congressman," Bradley said in a jab at Rep. Walter Norblad.

Remodeling work noted at Sisters

Special to The Bulletin

SISTERS — For twenty-one years a building stood, solidly planted in the center of Sisters on Cascade Drive. Last week it was moved to the back of the lot next door by Bend contractor E. W. Beaver.

There it is undergoing a facelift operation. A concrete foundation and sidewalks, new windows and new paint are planned.

This is the first in a series of moves planned by Mr. and Mrs. Neil Winkle to improve and enlarge their business establishments, which include Ruth's Cafe. Tentative plans are in mind to enlarge the cafe itself.

I. H. Lenaburg, Bend contractor who remodeled the cafe some months ago, is to remodel the building, said Winkle, who purchased the building about two months ago. It houses the public frozen food lockers, private storage for the cafe, and Seiber's Radio and TV Repair Shop. Seiber Werner, who lives in an apartment in the building is maintenance man for the food lockers.

Fill dirt which is 80 per cent gravel has been hauled in to fill and cover the vacant spot to make a large parking lot for the cafe and locker building. When weather permits it will be covered with asphalt.

Chairman role eyed for Mark

WASHINGTON (UPI) — National GOP Chairman William F. Miller confirmed Sunday that Oregon Gov. Mark Hatfield is being considered as permanent chairman of the 1964 Republican national convention.

The post traditionally is filled by the House speaker or—in a Democratically controlled house—by the minority leader. House GOP leader Charles A. Halleck, Ind., was permanent convention chairman in 1960.

Miller told a television interviewer ("Face the Nation," CBS) that Hatfield was proposed unanimously by a meeting of Republican governors several months ago in Denver, and that their support would carry weight in the final selection.

But Miller said Halleck is still in the running, and that Sen. Thurston Morton, R-Ky., former GOP national chairman, may be a compromise choice.

The permanent convention chairman will be elected by a majority of party's convention arrangements committee, which is expected to meet in May. The convention will begin in San Francisco on July 13.

DEATH TOLL NOTED

SALEM (UPI) — The Oregon Marine Board said today that 25 persons lost their lives in boating accidents in the state last year.

The board said that only three of the victims were wearing life preservers at the time of the accidents. Nineteen deaths occurred when small open boats capsized, the board said.

Hill tells of making payments to Bobby Baker

By John A. Goldsmith
UPI Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former vending machine company officer said today he gave Robert G. (Bobby) Baker a total of $5,600 in cash payments over a period of 17 months for the former Senate official's help in obtaining and keeping a controversial contract.

Ralph L. Hill told the Senate Rules Committee the payments were first negotiated at $250 a month and later at $650 a month before Baker told him last year that Hill's company, Capitol Vending Co., Inc., would lose the profitable contract at the Melpar, Inc., plant in suburban Virginia.

Hill said Baker was "powerful" enough to control the Melpar contract but "I was surprised that he would take it away from me." He said the monthly payments were carried on Capitol's books, as operating expenses because "I was trying to protect Mr. Baker as well as myself."

The former vending company official said he made the monthly cash payments directly to Baker in the former Senate Democratic Secretary's office at the Capitol.

Hill said Baker originally sought $1,000 a month when he stopped by to thank the former senate aide for his help. "We argued back and forth and finally settled for $250," Hill said. The committee is digging into Baker's outside business interests which led to his resignation from his $19,500 a year Senate post last year.

The private payments to Baker were increased to $650 a month after Baker interceded to let Capitol raise prices at Melpar, Hill said, although Baker still asked $1,000 a month.

Capitol Vending put the spotlight on Baker's outside business interests last September by filing a $300,000 civil damage suit in which Baker was a defendant. It alleged that Capitol paid Baker $5,600 for securing and maintaining a $300,000 vending machine franchise with Melpar which later went to another company.

"I thought, as a token of my appreciation, I would offer him a case of whisky," Hill said of his visit to Baker's office.

After the niceties of the thank-you were completed, however, Hill said Baker commented that the contract was valuable to Capitol "and he wanted $1,000." In that or a subsequent conversation, Hill said, Baker claimed to have been offered $1,000 a month for the Melpar franchise.

Tells Of Meeting

Hill told of the meeting after he testified that he visited Melpar for the first time in February, 1962, at Baker's request, along with Eugene A. Hancock, now a Miami vending machine operator. Hancock is a former president of Serv-U Corp., the vending machine firm in which Baker, according to previous committee testimony, claimed a one-third interest.

Hill testified that Edward N. Bostick, Melpar president, ordered all vending machine records made available to him and to Hancock. He recalled Bostick's exact words that "he had promised Mr. Baker the vending machine contract and was going to try to give it to him."

Hill, who said he has residences in Washington and in South Carolina — Baker's home state — said he met Baker in 1955 but never discussed the details of his business with Baker until the time in 1962 when Baker invited him to the University

Firemen answer general alarm

Three fire rigs and some three dozen regular and volunteer firemen responded by general alarm Sunday, when a fire that started in an electric dryer ignited a wall at the River-view Terrace Apartments, W. Portland Avenue at Fifth Street.

Crews used a small booster line and extinguished the fire with small damage. The fire was in the laundry room. A smoke ejector was used to clear the air.

Only other weekend fire was in a radio transformer Sunday at the 508 Hill Street residence of Jessie Smith. It was put out with CO-2.

U.S. ship taking Americans off newly independent Zanzibar

ZANZIBAR (UPI) — A U.S. destroyer today began taking Americans off the newly independent island nation of Zanzibar, where a leftist rebellion overthrew the British-backed sultan and proclaimed a republic.

(Observers in Nairobi, Kenya, on the African mainland opposite Zanzibar, said the new government was pro-Communist and some of its leaders were sympathizers with Communist China. There was speculation in Kenya that Zanzibar could become the Cuba of Africa — the first Communist foothold in the area.)

(Sources in Washington said some of the rebels are largely financed by the Communists, including those headed by Abdul Rahman Mohammed Babu, leader of the outlawed Umma party, and new defense and foreign minister. He was described as pro-Peking.)

First reports said three persons were killed and 28 injured in the fighting that toppled Sultan Seyyid Jamahid Bin Khalife Saturday night and Sunday.

The nation's new leader is Sheikh Abed Karume, who was named president of the rebel republic.

(Karume also is considered a Chinese Communist sympathizer by many observers.)

There were reports that the 53-year-old sultan, feted Dec. 10 as Zanzibar's first independent ruler in 132 years, had fled on his yacht.

The American destroyer Manley rushed to Zanzibar and began removing the 57 Americans here. A British ship, the Owen, headed toward the islands to protect the 300 Britons here.

The United States maintains a space tracking station here.

There was no indication it had been endangered in the revolt. (But U.S. sources in Washington expressed concern at reports the rebel leadership included leftists who have been agitating for removal of the U.S. station, which was one of the primary tracking points for U.S. astronauts during the Mercury space program.)

(The station would have a lesser role in the new Gemini space program, they said.)

(Washington sources viewed with particular concern reports that Babu was behind the revolt.)
